Young alumna revive historic space as art gallery
Laura is small business in something many know about doing for years. Future library managers, like Laura Stiffler, and009; an alumnus of BGSU, were instrumental in helping to write this.

“IT’S EXCITING STUFF,” Holden remarked. “There’s nothing like discovering something new. I’m looking forward to the day when we can expose these wonderful objects to the public.”

BGSU libraries honor Parks for support

Shannan F. Osterhout, the Friends of the Libraries chair, congratulated the libraries’ strongest supporters of the University Libraries by calling out their generosity.

Jared Parks, a distinguished professor emeritus in the School of Human Movement, Sports and Leisure Studies, is a main supporter of the University Libraries’ collections, employees and services.

“Socialism or Utopia,” co-founder of the BGSU Library Advocates Board, came out to help Parks during a library staff meeting.

As a former member of the University Libraries Friends Board and a current member of the Library Advocates Board, the Friends of the Libraries honored Jared Parks, distinguished supporter of the University Libraries.

Friends of the Libraries hosted a fund-raising project to raise funds for the construction of student group study spaces.

Parks is a former president of the University Libraries Friends Board and a current member of the Library Advocates Board. In 2004, she launched the Haslam Endowment for Libraries.

The fund was used to host three "build and design" workshops, each bringing together humanities researchers, scholars, and software developers across the state and region to brainstorm, plan, and build digital humanities tools.

The digital humanities tools will be used to enable researchers and scholars to work together to create digital humanities resources.
