Publicly Engaged Sociology of Sport

Tampa Downtown Hilton, Tampa Bay, Florida, USA
November 2 -5, 2016
Publicly Engaged Sociology of Sport

Inspired by recent momentous cultural events, the conference theme questions and considers the role of sport sociology and sport sociologists in public engagement. In the context of growing economic inequality, we see public money being siphoned into private stadiums within professional sport, corruption within international sporting organizations, and U.S. college coaches being the highest paid employees in state institutions within ‘amateur’ sport. In a time of continued and deadly racial violence, sport remains segregated and stratified in terms of sports, positions, and particularly in terms of positions of power. Even as girls and women demonstrate unflagging interest in sport in all levels and types, they are still recognized primarily for how they look rather than for what they can accomplish. We have witnessed marriage equality for all people in the United States and many places around the world, regardless of sexuality, yet ‘out’ gay male athletes remain rare in the highest levels of sport. We watch technology transform the athletic possibilities of those with a variety of physical impairments, at the same time that access to sport participation remains a barrier. Importantly, as we know, none of these brief examples work in isolation of the others. The clear, and also submerged, intersections offer fruitful examinations in much of the work that we do within our field. As Don Sabo (1995) noted in his NASSS presidential address, “Sport sociologists from the political left to the political right are embroiled by the politics of knowledge construction, and our myriad identities as theorists and researchers bring us closer to, or push us further from, the concerns and needs of community” (p. 248). Thus, what is our role beyond the study of sport? Who should be responsible for public engagement? How do we do it?

While much of our work becomes public through publication or presentation, how accessible is our work, both in terms of the language we use and where our work appears? How civically and politically engaged are we in our various publics? How much does our work inform public policies? Are our voices being heard through the media outlets from which most people gain their information? What are our moral obligations? As journalist Dave Zirin (2008) argued, in “Calling Sport Sociology off the Bench,” “The athletic industrial complex keeps throwing pitch after juicy pitch down the middle of the plate. It’s time for sports sociologists to get the bats off their shoulders and begin to shape debates within the sports world.”

MODERN SPORT AND THE AFRICAN AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

Edited by Gary Sailes

Modern Sport and the African American Experience is a collection of essays from some of America’s most brilliant and vibrant sport sociologists and race scholars. This text highlights more of the experiences of African Americans in modern sport than any of its kind. Among its diverse topics, this book examines predictions about African American sports performance and participation in the 21st century, discusses the role of sport in African American culture, and gives a candid look at the experiences of African American athletes attending America’s predominantly white colleges and universities.

A book of this type would not be complete without also examining racism, discrimination, and the conflict black athletes and coaches encounter with the white establishment. This volume is a representation of Dr. Gary Sailes’ well-known, much-respected scholarship and work as a consultant in American commercial sports.

SPORTS IN HIGHER EDUCATION
ISSUES AND CONTROVERSIES IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Edited by Gary Sailes

Sports in Higher Education: Issues and Controversies in College Athletics provides students with a comprehensive foundation in the study of college sports. While college sports scandals have dominated the news recently, these scandals are offset by fan interest, increasing revenue streams, extensive television coverage, and alumni interest and support. This text informs readers about college sports as a critical aspect of the university education system, with material written by experts in their respective areas in Sport Management and the Sociology of Sport.

The goal of the material is not only to inform and educate, but to stimulate dialogue about college sports, and move understanding of this topic beyond box scores and championships, to encompass ethics, philosophy, sociology, and the education of the student-athlete as a whole person. Sports in Higher Education is the first comprehensive textbook of its kind, and is ideal for classes on American college sports at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Our Mission

The mission of The Drake Group is to defend academic integrity in higher education from the corrosive aspects of commercialized college sports.

The Robert M. Hutchins Award

The Robert Maynard Hutchins Award is given annually to faculty or staff members who take a courageous stand to defend academic integrity at their institutions, often risking job security. Hutchins was the President of the University of Chicago from 1929 to 1951, where he defended the liberal arts, and opposed the rampant commercialization of college football which, in his view, undermined core values of higher learning.

TDG INVITES NASSS MEMBERS TO CONSIDER JOINING THE FACULTY-BASED MOVEMENT DEVOTED TO ACADEMIC INTEGRITY IN COLLEGE SPORTS

PROFESSIONAL ANNUAL FEE $35

The Sport Studies Program provides students with the opportunity to develop a program of advanced study focusing on the pedagogical, historical, and sociological aspects of physical activity and sport.

The Sport and Recreation Management master's program provides students with a knowledge base in management theory and application in both sport and recreation settings. Graduates of the program are prepared for administrative and coordinative positions in sport and recreation, as well as a variety of other positions in the field.

The field of cultural foundations of education understands education to be a broad and complex undertaking that is best understood through the lenses of a range of disciplines and fields of study.

The Evaluation and Measurement Program is designed to introduce students to theories, skills, and applications in the fields of research methodology, statistical analyses, program evaluation, assessment, and measurement/psychometrics.

The Hospitality Management program is the only four-year program in Ohio accredited by ACPHA. The curriculum combines specialty classes in hospitality and business management, preparing graduates for well-compensated positions as managers in restaurants, hotels, conference centers, country clubs and other hospitality venues.

The School of Foundations, Leadership, and Administration (FLA) offers focused programs that will broaden your ability and deepen capacity to inspire, lead, and achieve. Our faculty are internationally recognized scholars and expert teachers who foster dynamic learning interactions in educational, professional, and industry settings and through a variety of distance-learning experiences. Our graduates are the leaders of tomorrow, come and see what FLA can offer you today!

The Educational Studies program is a non-licensure option which is designed for individuals who wish to function as educators in human services and resource settings such as business and industry, religious, community, or interest and advocacy groups.

The Higher Education Administration program prepares students for careers as highly effective higher education administrators and staff professionals. The coursework prepares students for the varied challenges facing two-year, four-year, and graduate institutions today and in the future.

The EDAD program is committed to helping candidates be the catalyst to improve student learning in a changing world. Our graduates drive systematic and systemic change to increase achievement for all students, build strong public and private partnerships, and restore public confidence in public schools in the communities they serve.

The Recreation, Park, and Tourism Management program prepares students for successful careers in a variety of leisure service settings. Graduates of the program find work opportunities at resorts, recreation centers, youth programs, parks and recreation departments, state and national parks, and a wide variety of other fields.
