David Sabbagh, mathematics and statistics, to study numerical analysis and computer science;

Larry Smith, English and humanities/Firelands, to accept a Fulbright lectureship in Italy;

Ronald Stoner, physics, for professional training and research in observational astronomy and in planetarium programming.

Two-quarter leaves have been granted to:

David Addington, speech communication, to research the relationships between theater and society;

Robert Byler, journalism, to develop an organizational journalism curriculum;

David Hyslop, business education, to study current office administration theory and practice;

Vakula Srinivasan, chemistry, for an internship at the Finnigan Institute where he will study analytical chemistry.

One-quarter leaves have been granted to:

Lawrence Daly, history, to study Themistius of Constantinople, a mandarin of late antiquity;

Wallace DePue, music composition and history, to study advanced composition techniques with composer Gregory Kostek;

N. William Easterly, biological sciences, for horticultural botany training;

Jane Forsyth, geology, to complete scholarly papers and a book on the geology of Ohio;

James Gordon, journalism, to develop a photo/graphics course;

James Q. Graham, history, to study stability and change in the French Chamber of Deputies, 1871-1940;

Lucille G. Hagman, education curriculum and instruction, to study the middle school;

Ronald Hartley, accounting and management information systems, to study emerging concepts in managerial accounting and their potential usefulness in today's practice;

Fujiya Kawashima, history, to study the gentry associations and the local administration in mid- to late-Yi Dynasty Korea;

Radha Laha, mathematics and statistics, to research random fields in probability theory;

Walter McKeever, psychology, to study language lateralization in university-enrolled Navaho Indians;

F.R. McMorris, mathematics and statistics, to study graphs and partially ordered sets;

Paul Parnell, English, to complete studies in sentimentalism;

Terry W. Parsons, health, physical education and recreation, to study approaches to the required university-level physical education programs;

John Pettibone, journalism, to profile the Hispanic newspaper in the United States and Hispanics' perceptions of Spanish-English newspapers;

David Roller, history, to research uses of the computer in history;

William Spragens, political science, to complete a political, legal and journalistic analysis of the secrecy-disclosure effects of recent first amendment rulings focused on allegations of "chilling effects" on media activities;

Ryan Tweney, psychology, to study the psychological basis of scientific creativity;

Antony van Beysterveldt, romance languages, to complete a book on "New Vision of the Literary Culture of Pre-Renaissance Spain;"

Glenn Varney, management, to research and develop organizational development skills

Stephen Vessey, biological sciences, to research the reproductive strategies of male rhesus monkeys;

R. Charles Warren, art, to do creative work on botanical images;

Doris Williams, home economics, to complete a text on "Parents and Education."

Award enhanced Dr. Bradford's 1978-79 improvement leave

When nine scholars of contemporary poetry gathered for a year-long seminar on symbolism and surrealism at New York University in 1978-79, Carole Bradford, romance languages, was among them.

Dr. Bradford secured a fellowship in residence at the National Endowment for the Humanities-sponsored seminar and at the same time was granted a Faculty Improvement Leave from Bowling Green. The seminar was directed by Anna Balakian, department of comparative literature at NYU.

"I asked for the leave to broaden my background in contemporary Spanish poetry, which is one of my teaching and research specialties," Dr. Bradford said. She added that during the summer of 1976 she studied 20th century Spanish poetry at an NEH institute hosted by the University of Kansas.

Dr. Bradford described her year in New York as stimulating and productive. It provided her first leave from teaching in eight years and was an opportunity to communicate with other scholars in her area of specialization.

"We led discussions ourselves and had numerous guest speakers," Dr. Bradford said, adding that just living in New York City was also tremendously invigorating.

Noting that her experience in New York has improved both her teaching and research, Dr. Bradford said, "I believe that good teaching and good scholarship go hand in hand. It is important to have the opportunity to conduct research on a full-time basis because it provides a firmer foundation for teaching." She added that she also has been able to share her experiences with some of her colleagues.

Dr. Bradford's leave resulted in several papers which she has presented around the country and in a recent publication, an article on the Spanish poet Claudio Rodriguez, which was included in the fall, 1979 edition of the "Journal of Spanish Studies: Twentieth Century." She will speak at the Kentucky Language Conference in late April on the contemporary Spanish poet Francisco Brines and his confrontation with time.

In addition, Dr. Bradford is writing a book on contemporary Spanish poets. Background for the book was gathered both in Spain and at the New York seminar, she said.

TOWERING TRANSMITTER--A translator antenna for WBGU-TV, Channel 57, was installed on the roof of the Administration Building March 18. According to Duane E. Tucker, general manager of the station, the translator is being tested in an attempt to improve the reception of WBGU-TV for Bowling Green area residents. The new translator station airs on Channel 27. Dr. Tucker said Channel 27 does not replace Channel 57, which will continue to broadcast as usual. The new channel operates with an effective radiated power of 2,000 watts, permitting persons within a seven-mile radius to receive the signal.

Capital appropriations

University suffers as legislature delays

An unprecedented delay in legislative action on HB 834, the capital appropriations bill, has already begun to create problems for the University.

At the March 13 meeting of the Board of Trustees, a resolution was approved to issue an interim internal financing note of up to $80,000 for immediate emergency repairs to the roof of the Psychology Building.

Bowling Green is seeking $7.9 million from the state for capital improvements, including $185,000 for major repairs to existing facilities, particularly the Psychology Building.

In moving to issue the interim note, the trustees reported that the Psychology Building repairs could be delayed no longer because portions of the fourth and fifth floors of the building have been rendered unuseable.

The roof repairs, however, are not the only matters of concern for University officials eyeing the state appropriations bill, which originally was slated for action last summer but has been detained in conference committee.

According to Richard Edwards, vice president, inflation is cutting into Bowling Green's $7.9 million request at the rate of 1.5-2 percent per month.

The monies sought would be used to fund a biological sciences laboratory annex, a physical education complex, waste-water treatment facilities, a physical sciences building, planetarium, a storage building at Firelands and renovations to Overman and Moseley halls and the former Music Building, as well as to complete major repairs to other buildings on campus.

Edwards said there is some hope that the bill will be approved prior to the legislators' April 21 primary election recess, but an equally good chance exists that no action will be taken until after the June 3 state primary.

Robert McGeein, director of academic facilities planning, added there is real concern over the delay, particularly because of the erosion of dollars due to inflation.

"We do anticipate a problem and we do anticipate having to address it in some manner," he said, but he added that at this time the University does not know the extent of the problem.

"If and when the bill is passed, we will have to take a look at the appropriations noted in the final

Photographer headlines Journalism Week

Two showings of the film "All The President's Men" at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Sunday, April 13, in 210 Math-Science Building will launch "Journalism Week" at the University this year.

Highlighting the week (April 13-18) will be the annual Grove Patterson Address by Eddie Adams, special correspondent for the Associated Press and a Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer who spent two years in Vietnam and is known for his picture studies of people.

Adams' lecture, to follow a 6 p.m. dinner on Tuesday at the Holiday Inn, is sponsored by The Blade and honors the paper's late editor.

Tickets for the dinner and lecture, available in the School of Journalism office, 104 University Hall, are $8.75 for non-students.

HAROLD A. FISHER

Dr. Fisher to head journalism school

Harold A. Fisher, an associate professor of journalism, has been named director of the School of Journalism, effective July 1, 1980.

Announcement of the appointment was made Thursday by Karl Vogt, dean of the College of Business Administration, and Provost Ferrari.

Dr. Fisher, a specialist in international communications, joined the faculty in 1972 after spending 13 years in Africa and the Near East doing radio broadcasting and production.

An ordained Presbyterian minister, he earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Dubuque and bachelor of divinity and master of sacred theology degrees from San Francisco Theological Seminary. His master's and doctorate degrees in journalism were earned at Indiana University.

Andrew Young to speak tonight

Andrew J. Young, a former top aide to civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and the controversial former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, will examine U.S. foreign policy during a lecture at 8 p.m. today (April 7) in Memorial Hall.

Young's lecture is being sponsored by the UAO, the Black Student Union and the Board of Black Cultural Activities.

Buckeye Boys' State scheduled June 21-29

For the third consecutive year, Bowling Green will host the American Legion-sponsored Buckeye Boys' State, a workshop in citizenship and government.

Sessions will be conducted this year June 21-29.

Last year, the sessions attracted approximately 1,400 high school juniors and 100 American Legion staff to campus.

Jim Sharp, director of conferences and arrangements, is the University's liaison with the American Legion in coordinating the Boys' State program on campus.

legislation. We will have to get new cost estimates on each project and see if the buildings and budgets balance. If they don't balance, then in all likelihood we will have to adjust the project to the budget," McGeein said.

He added that the University is uncertain as yet if there will be any attempts by the legislature to increase the total appropriations to help compensate for inflationary losses. At the same time, he said, there is a possibility that the contractors will "sharpen their pencils" when approached again about the projects.

The possibility of eliminating a project from the improvements plan does exist, although it is unlikely, McGeein said. "It may be that because of budget erosion due to inflation, a particular project will have marginal usefulness after comparing the amount of work that can be done with existing funds to the amount of work that should be done." He added, however, that should this occur, the University cannot be certain that the regents will allow dollars to be shifted among projects.

Although all state institutions are suffering because of the legislative delay, both Edwards and McGeein noted that Bowling Green is in a particularly critical situation because every dollar being sought is actually needed.

"Bowling Green has always had a straightforward physical planning and budgeting effort," McGeein said. "We don't play games with inflated budgets and we don't submit 'wish lists' to the legislature."

Visiting philosopher to speak on 'Motivation and Human Action'

Myles Brand, chair of the philosophy department at the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle, will deliver a University Lecture at 8 p.m. Monday, April 14, in the Alumni Room of the Union.

Dr. Brand, a distinguished visiting professor in philosophy at Bowling Green this quarter, will speak on "Motivation and Human Action." His talk is jointly sponsored by the philosophy department and provost's office and will be followed by a reception.

Author of three books and numerous articles on action and causation, Dr. Brand is on campus to assist the philosophy department with development of a master's program in applied philosophy. Bowling Green's efforts to develop such a program are being funded by a $220,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

French students on campus for third consecutive year

For the third consecutive year, the College of Business Administration is hosting a group of French students from The Higher School of Business and Administration at Nantes, France.

The 79 students, who began classes April 1, are housed in University residence halls with American students and are enrolled in a variety of business classes and some elective courses.

When the French students leave this country in June, they will be followed back to France by a group of approximately 25 Bowling Green students who are participating in the first-ever exchange program between the University and the business college in Nantes.

"We believe that this exchange program is the beginning of a long-term relationship between our University and the Nantes business college," said William Hoskins, marketing, who is coordinating the exchange within

Admissions to close; residence halls full

Fall quarter admission for students desiring on-campus housing will close April 11, John W. Martin, director of admissions, has announced.

Martin said the April 11 deadline does not apply to prospective freshmen who plan to commute to campus or to academically outstanding students who will receive special consideration.

According to Martin, 92 percent of next fall's entering freshmen will reside in residence halls, and room space in those units is nearly gone for September.

the College of Business Administration.

The American students, who will leave Bowling Green June 15, will spend five weeks in France and receive nine hours of academic credit for their work at the Nantes business college. They will be enrolled in courses on European finance, the Common Market and European business, government and labor relationships. All courses will be taught in English by experts in European business.

Meanwhile, the French students currently in Bowling Green will familiarize themselves with American culture, business and academics while fulfilling a graduation requirement of the Nantes school to spend a portion of their third year studying in an English-speaking country.

"We believe the exchange program will provide a tremendous experience in international education for young people from both countries," Dr. Hoskins said.

The first visit by the French students to Bowling Green in 1978 was arranged largely through the efforts of L. Edward Shuck, international programs, who also initiated the student exchange project.

Grants

David Beach, School of Technology, $9,800 from the Ohio Dept. of Education to develop a competency testing program which would show effective abilities possessed by successful workers in the fields of horticulture, clerk stenography, general merchandising, food service, machine trades, animal care, data processing and auto mechanics.

Suzanne Crawford, Center for Continued Learning, $11,430 from the Ohio Board of Regents to implement a telephone counseling system to assist non-traditional students with career-related decisions.

Alan Dafforn, chemistry, $40,509 from the Army Research Office to continue his research into the preparation of transition state analog inhibitors based on ketones.

The transition state analogs may prove useful in treating muscular disorders and glaucoma and may help develop new, more effective, insecticides and snake bite treatments.

William B. Jackson, biological sciences, $20,500 from the Office of International Cooperation and Development, United States Dept. of Agriculture, to fund three years of pest management training for international student Mohamed A. Karim.

Arthur G. Neal and H. Theodore Groat, sociology, $27,606 from the National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development, Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, to continue their study of the relationship between social, psychological and fertility-related variables. The study will supply information about why some couples decide to have children and others do not.

Michael Pustay, economics, $4,766 from the Dept. of Transportation to expand his study of the impact of Interstate Commerce Commission regulations on the trucking industry.

Faculty choose 17 senators

Seventeen faculty have been elected to new three-year terms on the Faculty Senate. The newly-elected senators will begin their terms in the fall of 1980.

Elected from the College of Arts and Sciences were Gary Heberlein, biological sciences; Faith Jackson, speech communications; Clifford Long, mathematics and statistics; George Rendina, chemistry, and Karl Schurr, biological sciences.

The College of Business Administration will be presented by newly-elected senators Raj Padmaraj, finance and insurance; Michael Pearson, marketing; Wei Shih, applied statistics and operations research; Richard Ward, management, and Stephanie Yaworski, business education.

Elected from the College of Education were James McKenzie, health, physical education and recreation; Terry Parsons, health, physical education and recreation, and Adelia Peters, educational foundations and inquiry.

Frances Povsic, Library, and Nancy Wygant, Counseling and Career Development Center, will represent the instructional support services area.

David Pope, music performance studies, will represent the College of Musical Arts, and Jerry Holmberg, medical technology, will represent the College of Health and Community Services.

Richard Wright, Center for Archival Collections, $5,287 from the Landmarks Committee of the Maumee Valley Historical Society to continue a survey of historic and architectural sites and buildings in northwest Ohio.

Recognitions

Thomas C. Bach, School of Technology, was named Ohio Teacher Educator of the Year at the annual conference of the Ohio Industrial Arts Association March 6-8 in Dayton.

A team of public relations majors coached by James Bissland, journalism, won the Public Relations Student Society of America district case competition in Dayton March 29.

The Bowling Green team, the first ever to be entered in the contest, defeated a team from Kent State University, which last year won the national case competition championship.

Diane Burton, health, physical education and recreation, has compiled an 18-record square dance kit which is being distributed by the Lloyd Shaw Foundation, Roxbury, N.Y.

Kathleen Hagan, School of Art, judged the Central Ohio Weavers Guild Exhibit on display during March at Capital University's Schumacher Gallery.

Gerald Rigby, criminal justice, has been elected president of the North Atlantic Association of Criminal Justice Educators, an association of criminal justice educators and practitioners in the region which encompasses Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia and Washington, D.C. NAACJE is one of six regional organizations within the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences, the national professional association of criminal justice educators and practitioners.

Dr. Rigby's term will extend through April, 1981. He also is a member of the executive committee of the Ohio Council of Higher Education in Criminal Justice.

Doris Williams, home economics, has received the Distinguished Alumni Award from the College of Agriculture, Home Economics and Natural Resources at Ohio State University.

She was one of eight recipients recognized March 15 during Alumni Day on the OSU campus.

Publications

Gerald R. Bergman, education foundations and inquiry, "The Suicide Rate Among Psychiatrists Revisited: A Review," in the winter, 1979 issue of "Suicide and Life Threatening Behavior."

Dr. Bergman also has written "The Effectiveness of Peer Ratings at the University Level," published in the December, 1979 issue of the "Journal of Teaching and Learning," and "The Attitude of University Students Toward the Teaching of Creation and Evolution in the Schools," published in "Origins," Vol. 6, No. 2.

A chapter in the book, "A World Without Prisons" by Calvert Dodger also was written by Dr. Bergman. The chapter is titled "Some Criticisms of the Community Treatment Projects and Other Alternatives Examined."

Dr. Bergman also has written "Teaching About the Creation/Evolution Controversy," a professional monograph published by Phi Delta Kappa, and a monograph discussing the problems of peer evaluation which will be published by the "College Student Journal."

Theodore Berland, journalism/sociology, "The Fitness Fact

Book," a guide to diet, exercise and sport, published by the Newspaper Enterprise Association, New York. The book will be distributed by newspapers throughout the United States during March and April.

Leslie J. Chamberlin, education administration and supervision, and Gerald R. Bergman, education foundations and inquiry, "Helping Those Who Drop Out—Act Out—Opt Out," in the February, 1980 issue of "School and Community."

Harold Fisher, journalism, and John C. Merrill, University of Maryland, "The World's Great Dailies: Profiles of 50 Newspapers," published by Hastings House.

The book, which describes 50 of the world's best daily newspapers, was written as a college text on the world press and as a reference book for journalism professionals.

Richard Gargiulo, special education, "Litigation and Legislation for Exceptional Children," a monograph included in the winter issue of the "ICEC Quarterly," a publication of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children.

James Hodge, alumni and development, John Ketzner, health services, and Daniel Nagelberg, former Ph.D. student now of Birmingham, Ala., "Reducing Health Risks Through Peer Health Education," in the "Journal of the American College Health Association."

The article describes the research which preceded the formation of "The Well," the University's new center for health education.

John Holmes, marketing, Darlene Thomas, former graduate student in college student personnel, and Gerald L. Saddlemire, college student personnel, "No-Shows: A Vexing Problem," in the February, 1980 issue of the "Journal of the National Association of College Admissions Counselors."

The article highlights a study by the three authors on why students admitted to Bowling Green chose not to enroll.

The same issue of the ACAC Journal features a cover photograph of Tom Glick, associate director of admissions, counseling prospective students.

Michael T. Marsden, popular culture, "A Conversation with Louis L'Amour," based on a personal interview, in the current issue of the "Journal of American Culture."

Janis L. Pallister, romance languages, translations of poems by French Canadian women poets in the winter, 1980 issue of "Sackbut Review."

Dr. Pallister has translated works by Fina Lasnier, Suzanne Paradis, Jovette Bernier, Jeannine Belanger, Simone Routier and Michele Lalonde. She also has written "Egyptienne I" and "Egyptienne II," two original poems in the French language based on the "Book of the Dead" and published in the winter issue of "Poesie U.S.A."

An article by Dr. Pallister on "Fifteenth Century Surgery in France: Contributions to Language and Literature," has been published in "Fifteenth-Century Studies," vol. 1.

JANET B. PARKS

Janet Parks, health, physical education and recreation, "Physical Education: The Profession, An Introductory Text," published in February, 1980 by C. V. Mosby Co.

Boleslav S. Povsic, romance languages, "Locutiones cotidianae quae in M. Tulli Ciceronis epistulis reperiuntur" in the December, 1979 issue of "Vita Latina."

Frances Povsic, library, "Czechoslovakia: Children's Fiction in English," in the March issue of "The Reading Teacher."

This is the second in a series of articles about children's fiction dealing with southern and middle European Slavic countries.

Staff awards banquet

Three to be honored for 30 years' service

Three University administrators will be honored for 30 years of service to Bowling Green at the annual Staff Awards Dinner at 6 p.m. Friday, April 11.

Joseph K. Balogh, dean of the College of Health and Community Services; Charles Coddling, director of the physical plant, and Helen J. Lorenzen, director of payroll accounting, will be among 126 employees recognized for service of 10 years or more at the dinner.

Four employees with 25 years of service also will be recognized. They are Harry Dick, a building maintenance superintendent; Phyllis Johnston, a mail clerk in the University post office; Willa M. Spears, a laundry supervisor, and Laurene M. Wiegman, a coordinator of custodial services in the residence halls who retired from the University earlier this year.

Fifteen people who have been with the University 20 years will be honored, as will 30 15-year employees and 74 10-year employees.

President Moore will present certificates and awards to those employees with 30, 25, 20 and 15 years of service.

In addition to Mrs. Wiegman, four other employees who have served the University 10 years or more and have retired this year will be recognized. They are Avis Geisbuhler, former secretary in the alumni and development offices, who accumulated 15 years of service; Arnold L. Gonyer, building maintenance foreman, 10 years; Marion I. Rasey, maintenance repairman, 10 years; and Charles F. Seibold, groundskeeper, 10 years.

Annual giving sets new record with 42 percent increase

A record $1,977,334 was received by the University in cash contributions and gifts-in-kind during the 1979 calendar year, according to the 1979 Annual Giving Report released March 13 to the Board of Trustees by the Office of Development and Alumni Affairs.

James E. Hof, vice president for alumni and development, told the trustees that total cash contributions last year amounted to $1,757,482, while gifts of equipment and other non-cash items amounted to an additional $219,852.

Hof said the gifts reflect a 42 percent increase over 1978 and noted that the addition of 35 new members to the President's Club is especially significant. Total membership in that organization is now 192.

Cash contributions to the University during 1979 included $537,275 from 8,677 alumni, whose average gift was $39, according to Kim Kreiger, director of annual funds. Faculty and staff contributed $46,048. Of that total, $34,422 was given by 308 non-alumni faculty and staff.

Kreiger said 34 percent of Bowling Green's alumni have contributed to the University, a figure which exceeds the national average. He also told the trustees that the number of donors has grown from 400 in 1959 to nearly 9,000 in 1979.

Total gifts to the University last year also included two bequests which together exceeded $250,000 and a $100,000 foundation grant.

Other funds were contributed by business and industry, friends of the University, organizations and

Cleveland Orchestra ticket sales begin

Tickets go on sale today (April 7) for faculty, staff and students seeking admission to either of two concerts by the Cleveland Orchestra on May 3 and 4.

The Cleveland Orchestra, which will perform as part of the dedication for the new Musical Arts Center, has scheduled concerts in Kobacker Hall at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 3, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 4, the day of the dedication.

Tickets, priced at $10 for adults and $6 for students, will be available exclusively to University personnel through April 14, when they go on sale to the general public.

The box office in the Musical Arts Center, where all tickets will be sold, is open weekdays from 12:30-1:30 p.m. and 4:30-6:30 p.m. Phone reservations may be made by calling 372-2183.

associations, and parents.

The gifts-in-kind, which frequently free dollars for other educational purposes, according to James Hodge, director of planned giving, included a baby grand piano and stained glass window for the new Musical Arts Center, a Franklin D. Roosevelt book collection and X-ray equipment.

Of all dollars received during 1979, 88 percent were designated by the donor for some specific purpose. A total of more than $721,000 was given for capital projects, while more than $263,000 was earmarked for scholarships, awards and student loan funds.

Academic and administrative departments were the recipients of more than $205,000 and WBGU-TV received in excess of $203,000. Other money was specified for research and development, athletics and Alumni Association programs.

Unrestricted dollars will be used to fund 42 scholarships, including Alumni Merit awards, and such projects as undergraduate chemistry research, a marine biology field trip and journalism week.

The trend to earmark contributions to the University is relatively recent, Kreiger said. In 1969, 86 percent of all alumni gifts were unrestricted, compared to only 12 percent in 1979.

News Review

Art therapy program approved by regents

A bachelor of science degree program in art therapy has been approved by the Ohio Board of Regents.

The four-year, interdisciplinary curriculum, offered by the College of Health and Community Services in cooperation with the School of Art, is the first undergraduate degree program of its kind at a state-assisted university in Ohio.

Regents' approval of the program came on March 21, nine months after Academic Council endorsed the proposal. The regents earlier had mandated that the University seek support for the art therapy program from the Consortium on Health Education in Northwest Ohio before submitting it for board review.

Dr. Trauth to chair radio-TV-film program

Denise Trauth, speech communication, has been named chair of the radio-television-film program, effective September, 1980.

Dr. Trauth, who is also assistant director of the School of Speech Communication, joined the Bowling Green faculty in 1977 after teaching three years at the University of Tulsa.

She received her doctorate in mass communications from the University of Iowa in 1975.

Dr. Hoare named geology chair

Richard Hoare, professor of geology, has been named chair of that department, effective Jan. 17.

Dr. Hoare, who succeeds Edmund F. Pawlowicz, joined the faculty as an instructor of geology in 1957.

He served two previous terms as chair of the department, from 1967 to 1970 and from 1971 to 1975.

'Stealing Home' wins national nomination

"Stealing Home" by Philip F. O'Connor, creative writing, has been nominated for best "first novel" in the inaugural American Book Awards program.

The American Booksellers Association, sponsor of the new awards, announced nominees in 13 categories in late March. Nominees in the fiction category included "Just Above My Head" by James Baldwin, who was a distinguished visiting professor of ethnic studies at Bowling Green fall quarter.

Nominations were made by 11-member panels of writers, critics, publishers, booksellers and librarians from 1,300 titles submitted by publishers. There were five nominations for awards in most categories.

Winners will be selected by 2,000 voters representing the same segments of the industry and will be announced May 1 in New York City. Each winner will receive $1,000 and a trophy.

"Stealing Home," published by Alfred Knopf, was chosen as a Book-of-the-Month Club alternate selection last summer.

Dr. McMillen wins playwriting contest

William McMillen, conference director in the Office of Continuing Education, Regional and Summer Programs, has won the 1980 University Playwriting Contest.

His play, "The Peacock Colony," will be produced May 15-17 by the University Theater as part of the Joe E. Brown Theater season which offers new and experimental plays which focus on acting and directing.

A native of Wisconsin, Dr. McMillen joined the University staff in 1978. He has published fiction, poetry and literary criticism in a number of journals.

Library extends Saturday hours

Saturday hours at the Library have been extended in response to student requests, according to Dwight Burlingame, dean of libraries and learning resources.

Effective April 5, the Library changed its Saturday closing time from 5 to 6 p.m. The facility opens at 10 a.m. each Saturday.

Dr. Burlingame said additional study of library hours for the 1980-81 academic year will be conducted during spring quarter in response to a graduate student survey on the hours issue.
