MEMORANDUM

TO: Paul Kostyu, The Monitor
FROM: Sally Blair, Chair
Michael R. Ferrari Award Committee

Please include this information in the next two issues of the Monitor:

March 21, is the deadline for nominations for the 1986 Michael R. Ferrari Award.

The award was authorized by the Board of Trustees in 1982 to honor Dr. Ferrari who served as interim president during 1981-82.

Nominations may be submitted by faculty, students or staff. Nominees must be non-faculty, contract employees who have completed a minimum of one year of service at the University. Criteria for selection include innovation and initiative, emphasis on the human dimension, performance and relationship with the University community.

Suzanne Crawford, affirmative action received the first Ferrari Award followed by Sola Buford, registration and records. Last year's recipient was Patrick Fitzgerald, WBGU-TV.

The selection of the 1986 award will be made by a committee of administrative staff representing the various Vice Presidential and Presidential areas. Selection will be based on information provided through the nomination process, which is open to the entire University community.

Nomination forms have been mailed to the University's administrative staff. Additional forms are available at the University Union Information Desk, University Bookstore and the Administrative Staff Personnel Services office (119 Administration Building).

Completed forms should be sent to Sally Blair, WBGU-TV, chair of the 1986 Ferrari Award Committee, no later than the March 21, deadline.

1986 file

March 27, 1986

Dear Paul,

I am so pleased that you have been nominated for the Ferrari Award. As you remember from our first selection committee meeting, we agreed that any member of this committee could not serve if nominated for the award. It is your decision, of course, as to whether you wish to remain on the committee or on the list of nominees. Will you please let me know what decision you have made by April 7? If you decide to remove yourself from the selection committee I will want to fill that vacancy before our April 11, meeting.

Sincerely,

Sally Blair

RE: Nominations

Nineteen eighty-six marks the fourth year in which the Michael R. Ferrari Award will be presented to a member of the Administrative Staff. The award was authorized by the Board of Trustees in 1982 to honor Dr. Ferrari who served as interim president during 1981-82. The initial recipient of the award was Suzanne Crawford from the office of Affirmative Action, the second was Sola Buford, from the Registrar's Office and last year's award was presented to Patrick Fitzgerald, of WBGU-TV.

The first step in choosing this year's recipient is the seeking of nominations. The attached criteria sheet outlines those factors which should be addressed in nominating individuals for the award. The nomination form is to be used, in conjunction with additional support material, for the purpose of placing names into nomination. This initial process is open to all members of the University community. The selection of the award recipient will be made by a committee of administrative staff representing each of the Vice Presidential and Presidential areas. Selection will be made on the basis of the information supplied through the nomination process. Additional information and support over and above that listed in the Criteria Sheet are welcome.

All nominations should be submitted by March 21, 1986.

THE MICHAEL R. FERRARI AWARD

Criteria

1. ELIGIBILITY - Any person who is a member of the Administrative Staff, i.e., non-faculty contract employee, may be nominated. Nominee must have been an employee for at least one contract year and may not have received the award the previous year.

2. NOMINEES - Must have exhibited exceptional performance and must have demonstrated an emphasis on the human dimension. This means that the nominee exhibits a genuine sensitivity to others by showing an open, caring attitude and is attentive to the growth and development of the University. In addition, the nominee must demonstrate at least one of the following attributes:
 - A. Innovation and initiative - a demonstration of resourcefulness in the work place, including the formulation and implementation of creative new ideas. The emphasis of these ideas should be to improve the work environment, to save time and/or money and, in general, to contribute to the better overall efficiency and effectiveness of the University.

 - B. Performance - "above and beyond" that required by the position, e.g., accepting special projects, additional responsibilities such as committee work, giving non-compensable time to effectively complete an assignment, service in professional organizations, or recognition brought to the University through the receipt of grants or through publications.

 - C. Relationship with University community - The nominee must effectively interact with faculty, staff or students in providing services that promote growth and harmony in their respective departments, areas, etc., as well as the campus. (This would not mandate service on University groups, committees, boards, etc.)

NOTE: The prominence of the University position held by the nominee should not be considered in the selection process.

TO: Ferrari Award Committee Members
 FROM: Sally Blair, Chair

The 15 nominations for the 1986 Ferrari Award have been placed in the Administrative Staff Personnel Services Office, Room 911, Administration Building. Please go to this office between April 14 and 25, between the hours of 8-12:00 or 1:00-5:00 and ask the secretary, Marcia Buckenmyer, for the file containing all of the nominations. This file is not to leave that office. Marcia will be glad to provide you an area where you can read all of the information on each of the nominees and complete your selection sheet that is provided with this memo.

After you have completed reviewing all the nominees, please rank your top 5 choices with number 5 representing your first choice, 4 your second choice etc. and then return this selection form to me in the envelope provided by April 28. The standing committee will tabulate all of the results before our May 2, meeting. If there is not an obvious winner I will then contact the other two references on each of the nomination forms of the top nominees. I will request that these other references provide additional information in writing on their candidate. When the committee meets as a whole on May 2, I will have this new information available so we can use it in making our final decision that day.

Remember, that next and final meeting is scheduled for Friday, May 2, at 2:00 p.m. in the WBGU-TV conference room.

If you have any questions please feel free to call me at 372-7035.

Dear Mick,

It is with great pleasure that I inform you that the 1986 Ferrari Award will be presented to Greg DeCrane. The committee took a great deal of time reviewing the 15 applications for this award and decided without question that Greg should be the recipient.

The award will be presented to Greg as a surprise at the Administrative Staff Council's opening day reception on Monday, August 25, 1986. His name is being engraved on the Ferrari Award Plaque. The award amount has been increased to $300 for Greg's choice of an original work of art from our School of Art.

Please give my warmest regards to Jan, Beth and Michael.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

September 3, 1986

Dear Sally:

How delighted I am to learn that Greg DeCrane has been selected as the recipient of the 1986 Ferrari Award at Bowling Green. Having some appreciation for Greg's many accomplishments and contributions to the university, I am delighted that he has been selected as this year's recipient. Please convey to the Administrative Staff Council, and to Greg my pleasure at learning of his recognition.

I continue to hope that at some time in the future the administrative staff recipient will be able to be recognized by the entire faculty and professional staff of Bowling Green rather than the current format. The important contributions of professional and administrative staff are usually not fully understood or recognized by faculty generally, and a broader recognition occasion would certainly be meaningful to the recipient and the entire staff.

Once again, thank you for your letter and best wishes for a fine year.

Sincerely,

The deal to liberate Daniloff would involve temporarily releasing Gennady Zakharov, a physicist who was assigned to the United Nations Secretariat, to the Soviet ambassador, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

STATE DEPARTMENT spokesman Charles Redman said the United States is "taking every appropriate measure" in an effort to secure Daniloff's release.

Redman said the Soviet's "failure to resolve this satisfactorily cannot help but have a negative effect on U.S.-Soviet relations."

Zuckerman said he himself favors the proposal to get Daniloff back in exchange for temporarily releasing Zakharov.

Orientation leader receives Ferrari Award

by Greg Connel
staff reporter

Gregg DeCrane, assistant vice president of student affairs, student activities, and orientation was recently given the Michael R. Ferrari Award by the University's Board of Trustees.

DeCrane began working for the University as a program coordinator in student activities in 1969. Later that year, he left to serve in the Army in Thailand, and he returned to the University in 1971.

In 1972 he was promoted to director of student activities and new student programs, and with the promotion his control over the freshman orientation program increased. Under his care, orientation has been entirely reorganized.

"The changes we have made," he said, "have come from student input. We have gotten the students more involved in both the planning and the leadership of orientation, and almost every event involved with orientation is the result of student input."

DeCrane is also responsible for bringing the parents of freshmen into the pre-registration program.

"When I came here in 1969, the parents had no involvement in the pre-registration process. Now they are a major consideration in the program," he said.

CURRENTLY THE chairman of the University Program Council, DeCrane is responsible for the coordination and scheduling of all campus events.

The council is made up of administrative officers, as well as graduate and undergraduate representatives from campus organizations. The council has final approval over any event geared toward the general student body.

As last year's administrative staff council chairman, DeCrane directed the group which "represents the concerns of the administration to the trustees and the higher administration and finds representatives for other University committees."

Maurer met with building officials Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday to determine the evacuation deadline. A list detailing what work had to be done before the building could be occupied was also given to Maurer, Connelly said.

Connelly said once a structure's building, plumbing, heating, electric and fire inspections are complete, a certificate of occupancy is issued. The building at Ridge and Main streets has no

Noonan said building residents have found the situation upsetting.

"This has caused such a great disruption. It's the beginning of the year, and we're trying to get settled and organized," Noonan said. "And now we're getting switched around. I don't understand... we've been here a week and everything was fine. Whoever intended for this to happen, succeeded."

Connelly could not say why his office, the Wood County Building Inspection Department, waited a week to address the situation.

Repairs delayed by state

by Melissa McGillieray
staff reporter

Over the years, construction signs and barricades have become a familiar trademark of many University buildings.

But the University is not to blame for delays in completing these projects, according to University Architect Rollie Engler.

The State Architect's office is handling many other projects this year, and the University may not be high on its list of priorities, Engler said.

An example of this is large prison construction projects, which have had high priority this year, he said.

Projects like the library steps and the back of Mosley Hall should be completed by November. But construction on the Business Administration building, addition and on Williams Hall will not begin until December or January and probably will not be completed until 1983, he said.

In his State of the University address Aug. 25, University President Paul Olscamp told faculty and staff that the delays "... are not our responsibility, and the money is in hand to do the work."

"The problems are with delays, apparently caused by understaffing, in the State Architect's office," Olscamp said. "All I can tell you is that we are making every effort to break this logjam."

ENGLER SAID "B.U. is in competition with other larger state projects," adding that the University's $3 million Business Administration building addition cannot compete with a $30 million prison construction job.

Engler blamed the delays on Gov. Richard Celeste's goal to "get Ohio busy again," which means more construction in the state, and more paperwork for the State Architect's Office.

"Since Celeste got into office, we've had more problems in getting projects approved," he said.

The delays have necessitated shifting offices to different buildings.

"It's been a real problem for us just finding space for all the departments," he said. "It becomes a domino effect."

The "domino effect" results from new projects that are in the works, which will mean more shifting of offices and less space, he said.

Five departments from Williams Hall are now housed in Founders and South halls. Shatzel, Overman and Hayes halls are also on the renovation list, with the Overman construction to begin in December or January. Offices in these buildings will also be moved to other buildings, he said.

"I feel I never get finished with projects; they are always continuing," he said.

Engler said his office has its hands full with all the renovation projects.

"There are only two of us to handle $30 million worth of projects - my associate and I," he said. "People get upset, but it's not like we're not doing anything."

BACCHUS plans 'dry' bar

by Valerie Lonero
staff reporter

Group to offer social alternative to drinking

Most bars in town contain the major ingredients of the average college student's night out - alcohol, dancing and loud music. But imagine a bar that eliminated alcohol from that recipe and provided the same social advantages.

BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), an organization aimed at promoting alcohol awareness and responsible drinking, is planning to offer an alternative to students who are looking for a fun social atmosphere without the alcohol.

Art Willhite, senior criminal justice major and president of BACCHUS, said plans are in the making to open a non-alcoholic bar which will be located on campus.

"The bar will contain the same crowd, the same setting and the same type of music with the exception of no booze," Willhite said. "I think a bar on campus would be a lot of fun for the students."

Willhite said ideas for the bar started when the issue of raising the drinking age to 21 began.

"We started thinking that if the 21 drinking age issue passed, many of the students wouldn't have a bar to go to and socialize," he said. "We wanted to be able to offer an alternative to students since many people often say they have nothing to do or they are sick of the bar scene."

WILLHITE SAID BACCHUS is hoping to get the University Activities Organization to plan shows with stand-up comedians and bands at the bar.

"There may also be drinks available like virgin strawberry daiquiris and pina colodas," he said. "We are planning a lot of fun, sociable activities when our plans are finally formalized."

Willhite said the bar should be open by the beginning of October. A meeting will be held sometime next week to organize the plans.

Willhite said the bar may be located in the Mid-Am room, which is under Harshman Quadrangle.

"Presently the idea for the location is tentative but it's (Mid-Am) a great place to have it," he said. "It's a very large room, and we could have the bar open on the weekends."

"I really hope students go for this because this project is for students, so we are hoping for any suggestions or feedback. I hope the non-alcoholic part won't steer people away," he said. "The bar will provide a fun and social setting for many of the students."

"I DON'T know why we didn't take action (earlier). There were inquiries... neighbors wanting to know what was going on," he said. "We knew people were bringing things in and out. It appeared to be more as though people were staying."

Remaining brickwork, the installation of water heaters, the completion of a staircase and the replacement of the building's doors are among items on the list, Maurer said. He said he hoped the items will be remedied by Tuesday and residents would be able to move in Wednesday.

DeCrane

DeCrane has been very active as past chairman, he said, helping to ease the transition from his chairmanship to that of present chairman Deborah Helman, associate director of financial aid and student employment.

DeCrane said it is difficult for him to know exactly what projects he will be working on in the future.

"Things around here tend to evolve based on student need, and new challenges are constantly arising, so we try to keep our office accessible to the students," he said.

One project DeCrane hopes will be ready by next fall is a computer system to match students' interests with appropriate on-campus organizations.

lists of potential members, DeCrane hopes more students will get involved. "Many students are so diverse."

DeCrane, 41, said his favorite part of his job is working directly with the students. "Not knowing just what's going to happen on a given day keeps the job exciting," he said.

On the other hand, he said the most difficult duty he must face is to sometimes take disciplinary action against a student or an organization.

In his 17 years with the University, DeCrane has served on 24 University committees and has received other awards, including the National Hemophilia Service Award in 1979; the Hollis A. Moore Award in 1982 and the Hazel Smith Award for Service to Commuter Students in 1985.

The Ferrari Award is given each year to "administrators who demonstrate a genuine sensitivity to others by showing an open, caring attitude, and by effectively working with students, faculty, and staff."

USG holds drive to register voters

Students who have not registered to vote or want to transfer their voter registration from their hometown to Bowling Green for the Nov. 4 election can do so next week in Undergraduate Student Government's voter registration drive.

Held Turner, USG national, state and community affairs coordinator, said the goal would be to register at least 600 students.

"Voting isn't a right or privilege but a duty," Turner said. "A lot of people don't think it's available to them."

Students can either register in the booths set up in the Business Administration building before noon or in Turner's office, 405 Student Services. Registration will continue until Oct. 3.

DeCrane is fourth winner of staff's Ferrari Award

Gregory T. DeCrane, assistant vice president of student affairs; student activities and orientation, is the fourth winner of the Michael R. Ferrari Award.

The Ferrari Award was created in 1982 by the Board of Trustees to recognize Michael Ferrari, who was interim president of the University in 1981-82. Dr. Ferrari currently is president of Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa.

The award "recognizes administrators who demonstrate a genuine sensitivity to others by showing an open, caring attitude, by being attentive to the growth and development of others, and by effectively working with faculty, students and staff at the University."

Candidates are nominated by the entire University community and the recipient is chosen by a committee of administrative staff based upon criteria that include innovation and initiative, job performance and relationship with the University community.

DeCrane was cited for his work in developing the University's highly regarded pre-registration program for incoming freshmen, his concern for and work with students, and his involvement in the Administrative Staff Council as an elected representative, chair-elect and chair.

DeCrane, whose current post involves coordinating all student events, joined the University in 1969.

He was tapped for honoris causa membership in Omicron Delta Kappa national leadership honorary in 1975 and also has received a University Special Achievement Award for service. In 1982 he received the Hollis A. Moore Award, given annually to an outstanding administrator on campus. He also holds honorary membership in the Golden Key National Honor Society and in 1985 received the Hazel Smith Award for Service to Commuter Students.

Regional recruiter Bowling Green 'c

Cheryl Kroecker McKeon doesn't get to see the Bowling Green campus too often. But she knows what's here.

McKeon is one of the mainstays of the University admissions recruiting team. However, instead of talking to prospective students in Ohio, McKeon is often on the road throughout New York and Pennsylvania.

The recruiting season, which is once again getting underway in earnest searching out next year's crop of students, keeps admissions counselors going day and night.

It's no different for McKeon, the University's regional admissions counselor who attends college nights and visits high schools promoting the benefits of coming to Bowling Green. Associated with the University since summer 1983, McKeon lives in Hornell, N.Y., just south of Rochester.

"It's a unique position and the more people who know about it the more we can do," she said on a recent visit to the home base. "We want to acquaint the campus community with the fact that I exist."

Her job is to attract out-of-state students to the University as a means of balancing the Ohio influence. "It's a benefit not only for enrollment purposes, but also for the students because it exposes them to fellow students from different areas of the country," she said.

Although Bowling Green-based admissions counselors have recruited in Michigan, Illinois, Florida and Texas, McKeon is the only counselor based in the area in which she recruits.

Although hers is primarily a six-month job, covering fall and spring, McKeon is kept on the go. She has expanded her area from western New York to include the Albany, Syracuse and Long Island areas.

"We've expanded with good response," she said.

She credits much of her success to the support of active alumni groups in
