History of Bee Gee

Through out the first ten years of the campaign for a teachers training school in northwestern Ohio, the greatest leadership in the fight was always centered in the work of Bowling Green men.

It was natural, then, that when the Committee on Schools referred to the Lowry Bill to the house recommending its passage, other towns in this section should look to Bowling Green for active support. This active support was found in Rep. George H. Reed, of Prairie Depot, (now Wayne), in Wood county.

But unemployment developed again, as it had for years, in the presence of college professors and teachers in the other three state supported institutions. To this group came the powerful support of officials at Ohio Northern, where a normal course was offered.

The opposition became more tremendous with addition of officials of the small county normal schools, which were quite numerous throughout northern Ohio at that time in view of the failure of the state to provide adequate facilities for teacher training.

The Lowry Bill came up before the House on March 16, 1910 for an extended debate. Five men were cited as powerful speakers in favor of the bill that day and were highly praised by the friends of the measure. These men were Rep. George H. Reed, of Wood county; Rep. Bense, of Ottawa county; Rep. Canfield, of Fulton county; Rep. Bowersox, of Williams county and Rep. Huber of Defiance county.

No record of the vote is available from records at hand but the bill passed by a narrow margin and then was referred to the finance committee, which took no action on it for several weeks.

The opposition became more tremendous, and although the bill was not reported out of committee, the demand for a teachers training school was so strong that the commissioners had to make a decision.

The Lowry Bill was reported out of committee on March 24, 1910. It was then referred to the House of Representatives for consideration. The bill was passed on May 10, 1910 and approved on May 19, 1910.

The opposition continued to fight against the bill, but eventually it was passed by a vote of 61 to 41. The bill was then sent to the Senate, where it was debated for several weeks.

The Senate voted 32 to 14 in favor of the bill, and it was then sent back to the House for consideration. The House voted 61 to 41 in favor of the bill, and it was then sent to the governor for his signature.

Judson Harmon, who was the governor at the time, signed the bill on May 23, 1910, making it law. The new school was then called the State Normal School at Bowling Green. The school was later renamed Bowling Green State University.

The school was established with the help of a group of local citizens who were dedicated to the cause of education in the area. They worked hard to raise money and secure funding for the school, and they were successful in their efforts.

The school has continued to grow and thrive over the years, and it has become one of the top universities in the state. It is a testament to the hard work and dedication of those who came before us.
Delhi Fraternity

Another Formal Delhi Dinner-Dance has gone into history as one of the features of college life that make it truly distinctive. Saturday evening the fraternity climaxcd its year of social activities with the finest and best dinner-dance that it has ever attempted.

A three-course dinner was served at the Women's Club Dining room at seven o'clock. The center table was occupied by Mr. Wilfred McArtor and Miss Vivian White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Rees, and Mrs. C. M. Davis and her son, Charles.

At eight-thirty o'clock the party motored to the Women's Gymnasium and spent several hours in happy dancing. The program consisted of a grand march and ten dances, with two extras. The fifth dance was an especially arranged waltz. The favors for the ladies were hammered-silver wrist bands bearing the fraternity coat-of-arms.

Music was furnished by the popular Valencian nine-piece band from the Governor Ballroom at Mansfield. They won as much favor in Bowling Green as they did on the campus of Ohio State, while playing there for fraternity functions.

Country Life

To all those interested—and if you're not, why not? Country Life club will meet next Wednesday night, Feb. 25. A member of Les Liseurs will entertain us with a reading; John Cicanese will give an interesting current event; Paul Galanka and Cleo Yoder will present a novelty act, followed by a short skit, and then the usual dancing will follow. Come one, come all; it's FREE!

The Committee

Why Not a Basket Ball Party?

One of the traditional affairs which has become synonymous with the end of the football season is the "kick-off" party.

At this party the ball is kicked-off to the captain-elect and the remainder of the evening is spent in dancing.

Now that the end of the basketball season is in sight, the question arises, "Why not have a party to conclude the basketball season?" It might be called a "Tip-Off" party and the ball could be tipped off to the most valuable player or the captain-elect.

A dinner might or might not be included, but due to the fact that the basketball teams have been obliged to miss several dances during the season, a dance might be given.

The basketball season should be remembered. Give the team some recognition of their work besides a letter. (Editor's note: Who will sponsor the party? Idea is fine.)

Three weeks, then the check up on how things are going.

HOW COULD THEY TIP THE WATER?

“In the days of Rome's greatest glory, it was a common custom of the patricians to swim across the river Tiber three times every morning before breakfast,” said the Professor of History. “What is the matter, Mr. Smith? You appear incredulous. Do you doubt this statement?”

“Not at all, Professor,” replied the student. “But there is one thing about it that rather puzzles me.”

“And what is that?” asked the Professor.

“Why didn’t they swim it FOUR times and have their clothes and their breakfast on the same side of the river?”

WASN'T ULYSSES

“Did I understand you to say that your husband was lost at sea? Drowned?” inquired the new neighbor.

“No,” answered Mrs. Reno, “a bathing beauty got him.”

A popular definition of egotism: A person who thought he knew it all when young and can't get over it.
To The Finish

Findlay at Toledo
Defiance at Bluffton
Findlay at Bluffton
Bowling Green at Defiance

It Can Be Done

Faculty, students and followers let's get together and follow our team to Defiance and cheer for them while they play the Defiance College team in a game of basketball that will decide the conference championship. Never before has the conference race been so hotly contested. Bluffton, even in next to last place has a chance to share in the honors before the season ends next week. Toledo is the only conference team that has met defeat on the home floor. Bluffton played the first part of its schedule on foreign courts and now has a fine chance to upset the league standing by defeating Findlay, something that would not be at all surprising. Then the last conference game will be played on Thursday night while Bluffton and Findlay are fighting it out at Bluffton, the Defiance and Bowling Green teams will be doing like wise on the Defiance court. The team has fought hard to win and now is the chance to show our college spirit in the last game of the season. See Prof. Holt in regard to transportation, and let's all go and cheer the Falcons to victory.

Extra!

Prof. Holt has just announced that a special bus will be available for the benefit of those who desire to accompany the team. A special low rate is offered. Those desiring reservations leave name with Prof. Holt. Let's fill the bus with rooters!

Freshman Team

The College "B" team is the thing of the past. All season Coach Landis has tried various combinations in an effort to get a winning team, and even with the closing of the season only a couple of weeks away he decided to try a new combination. The team is now represented by W. Thomas, O. Thomas, Murray, Foster, Dunson, Shaller, Johnson and Van Camp.

The team defeated a fraternity team in a preliminary game at Ohio Northern last week by a score of 13 to 12.

Toledo U Freshmen took a 21 to 13 beating from the local team before the Vari- sity contest. Murray registered points to lead the Frosh in scoring. Johnson played a good floor game and worked well with his teammates.

Falcons Win!

Before one of the largest crowds of the season the Bowling Green College quintet downed the Toledo U cagers 31 to 20. It was the last home game for the Orange and Brown.

The Bowling Green outfit jumped into the lead when Perry's first attempt at the basket went sailing through the net. A moment later Swearingen tossed in a two point counter. That's the way the Bee Gee team went until the total of thirty-one points were scored. Toledo never threatened during the entire game, although at one time they opened an attack that accounted for six consecutive points. The game was well under way before Straka counted the first point for Toledo from the foul line. The half ended 13 to 6.

In the second period Toledo passed better and showed more team work but the inability to shoot and failure to recover the ball from the backboard was a big handicap. The Falcons had little trouble in getting possession of the ball. Gill was a big factor in this department. Thourot and Hyatt was back at the guard position and these Stryker lads played together and kept the Toledo team from shooting from close range. The home team continued their scoring during the remainder of the game. The regulars gave way to the reserve strength during the final minutes of play. Steven- son made good a pair of foul shots, that brought a cheer from the rooters.

The game was well attended, and much praise is due to those who have worked so hard to develop school spirit. The college cheering section was packed and every loyal rooter was doing his bit. That's the kind of pep that helps the team during the toughest moments of the game.

Drop Non Conference Game

Playing their opponents to a standstill for three-quarters of the game the Falcons crumpled the last ten minutes of play and were defeated by the Ohio Northern Bears 30 to 27. Perry tossed in the first counter of the game and lost no time in getting number two and three before Northern came to life. Bowling Green held the early lead and it was just a few seconds before the half ended that the score was tied. Gill made a lofty shot from mid-floor and the gun sounded just as the oval swished thru the net. The half ended 12 to 14.

In the last half Swearingen rang up a number of baskets that gave the Falcons a good lead. The team was playing a fine passing game and guarded their opponents close. The Falcons were leading seven points when the Northern aggregation went on a scoring spree. Before the local lads found themselves the home team had the game in their hands. Coach Landis made several changes in the line-up the last few minutes but was unable to pull the game out of the air.

Swearingen led the Falcon attack with thirteen points, Perry accounted for seven and Gill six; Hyatt was the only other player to break in the scoring column and that was from the free-throw line. The Northern points were evenly distributed among seven members of the team.

"Listen," said the blacksmith to Pat, who just got the job helping the smith, "I'm going to bring this horseshoe from the fire and lay it on the anvil; when I nod my head, hit it hard with this hammer."

Pat obeyed instructions and the blacksmith never nodded his head again.
