Donations still needed

The establishment is planning to distribute a pair of tickets to its annual Christmas party. The Distressed Graduate Award has received donations to the tune of more than $80,000 in pledges and gifts. Dr. Harold Lunsford, chair of the senate, said the first $10,000 of the fund will be matched dollar for dollar, and any group that matches more than $7,500 in the initial return, the fund will be matched for the second year. The fund is being set up to assist students who are currently enrolled in the graduate school. The amounts raised for the fund can only be awarded the $1,000,000 which have been accumulated to award recipients.

He said he would like to see the fund grow even more as the college is planning an extensive program of activities and services for students. Contributions can be made by both alumni and non-alumni.

Friends of the college who wish to make a contribution should contact the office of Student Services.

Flextime is an option designed to make life easier for staff.

The concept of flextime is to take the rigidity out of the job description and allow the employee some flexibility in the way they work. Flextime is especially helpful in departments where a number of people may work together. By giving employees some freedom of schedule, there may be an increased effort made to come to work on time and make changes to the schedule as necessary.

The flextime concept has been very successful in the University's College of Education where many students are involved in research projects. Faculty members have been allowed to work more flexibly and the results have been very positive. In the past, all students were required to be at work at 8 a.m. on weekdays. With the new flextime system, students can choose to work at any time during the day and be counted present.

Flextime also allows faculty members to work more efficiently. By having more flexibility in their schedules, they can better plan their time and get more work done. In addition, flextime can be very helpful for students who need to take care of personal responsibilities during the day.

In conclusion, flextime is a system that has been very successful in the University's College of Education. It allows faculty members to work more efficiently and gives students more flexibility in their schedules. The system has been well received and has led to increased productivity and satisfaction for both faculty and students.

Approval of the flextime system requires the approval of the university president and the academic senate. The system has been widely accepted and is now in place in all departments.

Faculty Senate gets bogged down in debate, table decision again.

The Faculty Senate has been unable to reach a decision on the issue of flextime in the University's College of Education. The Senate met on this topic at a special meeting on Dec. 14 and tabled the decision due to a lack of agreement.

During the meeting, the Senate discussed the possibility of allowing faculty members to work on a flexible schedule. Many faculty members feel that this would allow them to better manage their time and be more productive. However, others feel that strict adherence to a set schedule is necessary for the smooth operation of the university.

The Senate failed to come to a consensus on the issue and will likely revisit the topic at a future meeting.

Campus' United Way donations total $74,462.

The United Way campaign for the University's College of Education has been very successful. The campaign, which runs from Oct. 1 to Dec. 15, has raised a total of $74,462. This amount is up 34 percent from last year's total of $55,486.

The money raised will be used to support local United Way agencies and will be matched by the university's College of Education. The total amount raised will be distributed to local United Way agencies on March 1, 1986.

The campaign was a great success and the students, faculty, and staff are to be commended for their generosity.
