University names Milton D. Hakele as its third Ohio Eminent Scholar

Milton D. Hakele, director of the industrial/organizational psychology program and chairperson of the Department of Psychology at Bowling Green State University, has been named the third Ohio Eminent Scholar in industrial/organizational (IO) psychology at the University, President Omori announced yesterday.

Hakele, who will join the faculty in August, is Bowling Green’s third Ohio Eminent Scholar. Dr. Michael A. Hodgson became one of the first IO psychologists at Bowling Green when he was named an Ohio Eminent Scholar in 1987. Dr. Edward McElheen was named an Ohio Eminent Scholar in industrial psychology in 1996.

Hakele, who has been at the University of Akron since 1971, was selected by the Ohio Board of Regents and funded by the legislature to attract world-class scholars to the state.

Bowling Green’s Ohio Eminent Scholar is in industrial/organizational psychology. He was nominated by the Board of Regents. Omori said the University has had many candidates and that one of the top five in the state region.

Hakele was selected for his contributions to the study of personality, leadership, group dynamics, attitude formation, and organizational behavior. He has contributed to the development of the field of IO psychology and has been recognized for his innovative research in industrial/organizational psychology.

Hakele earned his Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Akron in 1971 and is a member of the American Psychological Association and the Society for Industrial Organizational Psychology. He has published numerous articles and has served on the editorial boards of several journals.

dated on page 3

The addition to the Fine Arts Building will be under construction next week with a ground-breaking ceremony. The addition is a $2 million project and is expected to be completed in August 1989.

Two sisters win award After 5 p.m., secretary changes hats and writes about romance

Yesterday, the University held its annual Fine Arts Building groundbreaking ceremony. President Persoff was on hand to greet the guests and to lend a hand to the construction workers. The ceremony included speeches from President Persoff, the Ohio Board of Regents, and the Ohio University Board of Trustees.

"I am very pleased to be here today," President Persoff said. "This is a major milestone for the University and for the Fine Arts Building project."

The University plans to add a new wing to the Fine Arts Building to provide additional space for the department of English, which has been relocated to a temporary facility. The new wing will also provide space for the departments of music, dance, and theatre.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the Great Hall of the Fine Arts Building. Guests were treated to refreshments and a tour of the new wing. The University plans to open the new wing in the fall of 1989.
The Great ideas finally gets a text of its own

Book explores what constitutes an educated person

When three University professors collaborated on a book, their main worry was to create a book that would be readable and useful, but at the same time, it provided them the opportunity of writing a book that dealt with an important and critical subject. The book, "Great Ideas," is a work of art that has been recognized with several awards, including the National Book Award. It is a book that has been praised by critics and readers alike for its clarity and depth.

"Great Ideas" is a collection of essays that explore the fundamental concepts that underpin our understanding of the world. The essays are written by some of the world's leading thinkers, including Thomas S. Kuhn, John Rawls, and Noam Chomsky.

"Great Ideas" has been translated into several languages and has been used as a textbook in universities around the world. It has also been used as a guide for self-improvement and personal development.

"Great Ideas" is not only a book for students and scholars but also for anyone who is interested in exploring the deeper meanings of life. It is a book that can be read, enjoyed, and appreciated by people of all ages and backgrounds.

Now, as the paperback edition of "Great Ideas" is released, we are proud to present an abridged version of the book that includes some of the key insights that are essential for understanding the world we live in.

"Great Ideas" is a book that will continue to be relevant for generations to come. It is a book that will inspire us to think more deeply about the world around us and to understand the complexities of human thought and action.

"Great Ideas" is a book that we recommend to everyone who is interested in understanding the world we live in. It is a book that will open your mind and broaden your perspective, and we encourage you to read it and enjoy its many insights.

---

President to hold meeting to explain budget situation

An adjustment to the budget situation will be held from 2-3 p.m. in the Board Room of Maltsev. Following the meeting, the President will be available for questions.
Monday, April 15
Art Exhibit, "The 48th Annual Undergraduate Student Art Show: The Arts Arena," through April 18 from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Student Union.

Tuesday, April 16
Classified Staff Council Meeting, 7 p.m., State University Union.

Wednesday, April 17
Earth Day Celebration, 3-4 p.m., Student Union Union.

Thursday, April 18
April 18-21: The 13th Annual National Library Week.

Friday, April 19
Call for the Budget Situation, 7 p.m., Union Ballroom.

April 19-21: The 13th Annual National Library Week.

Saturday, April 20
...