Wilson book examines educating children with behavior disorders

Dr. Ralph Wilson, special education specialist, and three other University of Alabama students have succeeded in completing a book examining educating children with behavior disorders.

"In general, a behavior disorder is a maladaptive behavior that interferes with educational performance," Wilson said. "But there is no question that sometimes it can have serious consequences for both the student and the teacher." Wilson added that the three authors—Wilson, Rich Albritton, and Edmond Trahan—have written the book to help parents and teachers understand the nature of behavior disorders and to give them ideas for improving educational performance.

The authors said that they hope the book will help parents and teachers to better understand the nature of behavior disorders and to give them ideas for improving educational performance. Wilson said that they believe that the book will be of great use to students, parents, and teachers who are working with children with behavior disorders.

Wilson is currently working on a second book that will cover the same topic but will focus on the latest research and developments in the field.

European tour yields contacts for possible student, faculty exchanges

Dean Andrew Karuk, arts and social sciences, has been selected to participate in the 1993-94 Imaginative Education and Social Moral and Social Education program in Europe. The program is being offered by the United States Information Agency (USIA), in collaboration with the Association of Colleges of Educators International (ACEI). The program was funded by the USIA and the ACEI with the goal of helping educators expand their horizons by providing them with opportunities to develop new ideas and contacts for potential future exchange relationships and experiences.

The program provide opportunities for educational leaders and faculty to visit educational systems and institutions in twelve European countries, including the United Kingdom, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Austria, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, and Hungary, and other Eastern and Western European countries.

The students had already been prepared when they set forth. They have been encouraged to seek out contacts and potential partners for future exchange relationships. This year, there are no travel restrictions for Americans, and the Western European countries are concerned about the alliances of future students seeking graduate-level exchange opportunities in the United States.

The trip is sponsored by the United States Information Agency (USIA) and the ACEI in collaboration with the USIA, with the goal of helping educators expand their horizons by providing them with opportunities to develop new ideas and contacts for potential future exchange relationships and experiences.

Wilson to develop environmental education programs

Dr. Ruth Wilson, special education, has been awarded a $30,000 grant from the Ohio Department of Education to develop programs to teach pre-school children environmental awareness. The goal of the project is to develop awareness of environmental issues and to motivate early childhood education educators to provide opportunities for young children to learn about and value the natural world.

The project will be designed to provide early childhood education educators with the knowledge, skills, and resources to develop effective educational programs that are age-appropriate and culturally relevant. The project will be implemented in early childhood education settings throughout the state, with a focus on providing resources and support to educators.

The project will include the following elements:

1. Development of a curriculum to be used in early childhood education settings
2. Training of educators in the implementation of the curriculum
3. Development of a resource center to provide ongoing support and resources for educators
4. Evaluation of the effectiveness of the program

The grant will support the development and implementation of the project, which will be evaluated through the collection of data on program outcomes and the provision of technical assistance to educators.

The forms are designed to ensure that the university is hiring qualified applicants for all positions and that the process is fair and consistent.

Also, the new forms will save time and resources for the university by eliminating the need to create multiple copies of the same form.

Another benefit of the new forms is that they will help to reduce errors in the hiring process, which can be costly and time-consuming.

The new forms will be used for all hiring processes and will be available for use immediately.
