Monitor Newsletter April 20, 1992

Bowling Green State University

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor/226
Trustees rename stadium, approve budgets at Firelands meeting

The Board of Trustees made official at its April 15 meeting what many people have assumed for years. The trustees unanimously approved the replacement of Firelands Stadium by renaming it Dyk. Perry Stadium in honor of the former football coach in BGSU history.

Guarantors for a one-year wait period after the death of an individual or before a building or track is completed. The goal for the stadium had already been met by Perry. After the death, most people in the community already assumed that the stadium was named for him. Perry died Feb. 10, 1950.

Trustees also approved naming the conference room in Sequed Hall in honor of James Galvin, for his contributions as BGSU president. The money was raised to establish a life science center at the university.

The following members of the board approved the proposal: Dr. Myron D. Dolech, chair, and Michael Franklin, nonvoting.

The budget picture is uncertain and he said about the size of any future budget Board of Regents, the college since 1988 has been able to equip Computer Science and Engineering, and has been very successful. "Most students find the edge of learning the computer and it is important to make a 10 percent reduction in salary after they have achieved a tenure and promotion to professorship." Gardner said.

The state of Ohio has positive, proactive approach to budgeting. Governor George Voinovich has made an office announcement. However, he encouraged discussion. "I'm not going to have the right to talk budgets," Gardner said he thought the possible CSC had caused some among University employees, which raised price increases between the first and second year of study, and will have several consecutive weeks of study. By calling Bob Gelnar, athletic director, at 2-2719.

Chair, and Edward Magat, accounting and finance. Gardner said the state is facing some, difficult economic times, and although cuts have been made in the past to remedy the situation, complex decisions are still ahead. Gardner said he will need to be prepared to communicate budget concerns to state legislators.

The budget for the spring or summer of 1993 must meet he spring or summer of 1993 must be 100 percent budgeted. The plan is to be called "The 100 percent plan." The board approved the plan, which will be implemented next year.

Chair, and Edward Magat, accounting and finance. Gardner said the state is facing some, difficult economic times, and although cuts have been made in the past to remedy the situation, complex decisions are still ahead. Gardner said he will need to be prepared to communicate budget concerns to state legislators.

The budget for the spring or summer of 1993 must meet he spring or summer of 1993 must be 100 percent budgeted. The plan is to be called "The 100 percent plan." The board approved the plan, which will be implemented next year.

Chair, and Edward Magat, accounting and finance. Gardner said the state is facing some, difficult economic times, and although cuts have been made in the past to remedy the situation, complex decisions are still ahead. Gardner said he will need to be prepared to communicate budget concerns to state legislators.

The budget for the spring or summer of 1993 must meet he spring or summer of 1993 must be 100 percent budgeted. The plan is to be called "The 100 percent plan." The board approved the plan, which will be implemented next year.

Chair, and Edward Magat, accounting and finance. Gardner said the state is facing some, difficult economic times, and although cuts have been made in the past to remedy the situation, complex decisions are still ahead. Gardner said he will need to be prepared to communicate budget concerns to state legislators.

The budget for the spring or summer of 1993 must meet he spring or summer of 1993 must be 100 percent budgeted. The plan is to be called "The 100 percent plan." The board approved the plan, which will be implemented next year.
University receives grant to encourage minority interest in biomedical science

The University has added a new grant to encourage minority interest in biomedical science, a $15,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The funds will support the start up of a new program to encourage minority students to study biomedical sciences in college.

University operates asthma treatment center

The University of Michigan Medical Center has opened a new asthma treatment center to provide comprehensive care for asthma patients. The center will offer medical, educational, and support services to help patients manage their asthma and improve their quality of life.

University announces new program to support minority students

The University has announced a new program to support minority students in biomedical sciences. The program will provide scholarships, mentoring, and other resources to help students succeed in their studies.

University launches new research center for biodiversity studies

The University has launched a new research center focused on biodiversity studies. The center will bring together experts from various disciplines to study biodiversity and develop new approaches to conserve and manage it.

University receives grant for student exhibition and symposium

The University has received a grant to support a student exhibition and symposium on the theme of diversity. The event will feature student presentations, art exhibits, and discussions on diversity-related topics.

University celebrates 40th anniversary of the student exhibition program

The University is celebrating the 40th anniversary of its student exhibition program. The program has supported over 400 exhibitions since its inception, showcasing the work of thousands of students.

University announces new leadership for student research program

The University has announced new leadership for its student research program. The program is now led by a team of experienced researchers who will work to support and mentor students engaged in research activities.
University receives grant to encourage minority interest in biomedical science

The University has received a restricted state grant to underwrite a program aimed at encouraging minority undergraduates to study biomedical sciences in college.

A $15,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will fund the continuing education of minority students at the University. The grant will fund the continuing education of minority students.

The funding for the Minority Health Scholars Program will enable eligible students to attend summer courses and study at the University. The program will provide an opportunity for minority students to gain exposure to the biomedical sciences in college.

University life after college

Department of Health and Human Services in Washington, D.C., will receive a grant to encourage minority students to pursue careers in these fields.

The grant will support a program that will help minority students who are interested in pursuing careers in the biomedical sciences. The program will provide financial assistance to minority students to cover tuition, books, and other expenses.

University announces performance slate for 1993-94

University Theatre has announced their performance slate for the 1993-94 academic year. The slate includes productions such as "The Importance of Being Earnest," "A Streetcar Named Desire," and "The Producers." The theatre will also present a program of基金管理的office. The theatre will be open to the public and will provide information on upcoming performances.

University Theatre announces performance slate for 1993-94

University Theatre has announced their performance slate for the 1993-94 academic year. The slate includes productions such as "The Importance of Being Earnest," "A Streetcar Named Desire," and "The Producers." The theatre will also present a program of基金管理的office. The theatre will be open to the public and will provide information on upcoming performances.
Managers be aware: ADA workshop offered

Personal services, long-distance services and the rehabilitation services commissions are sponsoring several workshops this month on the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Because the workshops are designed to be interactive, participants must come prepared and are encouraged to bring other people who may be affected by the ADA.

The workshops are designed to help managers understand the new law and the changes it makes.

The workshops are from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. April 11, April 12, April 14 and 15. For more information, call 2-2081.

PERS give representative
date orientation

Representatives from the Public Employees Retirement System will be on campus April 25 to present orientation sessions for all employees under the system.

In addition, representatives from the social security network are available to provide information on items of interest that impact PERS retirement plans.

The sessions are scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Campus Room of the University Center.

In the orientation session, a PERS representative will be in the Campus Park Office Building April 29 and 30 for personal interviews with individuals who may wish to review their retirement benefits.

University hires a new teaching assistant

Three new staff administrative hires have been made in the University's human resources division: Hardie McFarland, assistant statistical coordinator; Josephine Rizzuto, administrative assistant; and Roger Bovard, office manager.

The Poplar Culture Library needs stacks clerk, part-time.

Gish job list published

The task force is expected to forward its recommendations to the president soon. No timeline has been announced.

The committee has also made some recommendations to the State Board of Education.

The workshops are designed to help managers understand the new law and the changes it makes.

The workshops are designed to help managers understand the new law and the changes it makes.