University's report for reaccreditation process to be distributed this month

by Chris Beck

University's report for reaccreditation process to be distributed this month

The University is preparing to participate in the University of Toledo and Bowling Green State University's first joint visit in the reaccreditation process. The visit is scheduled for March 26-28.

The visit will be conducted by a team of four from the National Accrediting Agency for Education Programs (NCA) to review the University's self-study report and to meet with key University stakeholders to assess the University's progress toward meeting NCA accreditation standards.

The University's self-study report, which was completed in fall 2019, includes an assessment of all major areas of the University's operations. The report is intended to help the University identify areas for improvement and to guide its planning efforts.

The visit will begin with a meeting of the University's Board of Trustees and the Board of Governors, followed by a series of meetings with faculty, staff, and students. The visit will conclude with a presentation to the University's Board of Trustees.

The University is preparing for the visit by organizing a team of faculty and staff members to serve as liaisons with the accreditation team. The team includes representatives from all major divisions of the University.

The University's Board of Trustees and the Board of Governors have already reviewed the self-study report and have approved it for submission to the accreditation team.

The University is committed to ensuring that the self-study report accurately reflects the University's progress toward meeting NCA accreditation standards. The University is also committed to working with the accreditation team to address any concerns that may be identified during the visit.

The University's Board of Trustees and the Board of Governors have already reviewed the self-study report and have approved it for submission to the accreditation team.

Commentary

Editor, the Monitor:

Yes, BGSU is facing a union election. But until the time period ends on Oct. 15, the campus mail box will be loaded with notices to vote. What is needed is for all faculty to be educated on how to vote. If you wish to contribute before Oct. 15 to be sure, you may forward your request to the University at Bowling Green Post Office, 1516 E. Wooster St., Bowling Green. Please be sure to make the donation as part of the BGSU campaign.

This year's campus campaign is looking toward an organized and successful election time. We hope you will help make this year's effort one of our best.

Chris Keck, Chair, United Way Campaign Committee

The University's record for reaccreditation process to be distributed this month

University officials have announced the University's report for reaccreditation process to be distributed this month. The report, completed by the University's management for the Future Task Force, indicates that the University will have to deal with in the future.

The report states, "Having met with the University officials, the campus community is represented in the process of the University's reaccreditation process. The University as well as mission and strategic planning is represented in the report. It goes on to say, "We are going to have to have the campus community represented in the process of the University's reaccreditation process."

Copies of the report will be available in the directors and campus offices, and in the office of the University's director, Dr. Emily L. Adams, vice president for student and enrollment management and the University's director for the report's release.

Couples needed to participate in Alzheimer's study

Researchers at the University of Miami are seeking couples willing to participate in a study of Alzheimer's disease. The study is focused on the caregivers of people with Alzheimer's disease.

With support from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the University of Miami's Alzheimer's Disease Research Center is seeking couples for its Alzheimer's disease and caregivers study.

The researchers are conducting a study of the psychological effects of caring for a spouse with Alzheimer's disease and caregivers' perspectives on the situation.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive brain disorder that destroys memory and other cognitive abilities. The disease has no cure and no known prevention.

After reviewing the report, the North Central Board of Directors recommended that the University of Miami's Alzheimer's Disease Research Center be allowed to participate in the Alzheimer's disease and caregivers study.

They will present their conclusions to the Board of Directors on the 20th anniversary of the Alzheimer's disease study.

The researchers say that the study will be "a good opportunity for people who are interested in the disease to get involved." They also say that the study will be "a good opportunity for people who are interested in the disease to get involved."
