Q & A ABOUT COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

A variety of questions have been raised about faculty collective bargaining and its potential effects. The University's administration has asked the Admissions Office to answer these questions in the following manner:

Question: What is collective bargaining?

Answer: Collective bargaining is the process by which faculty members, acting through their collective bargaining agent—The American Federation of Teachers (AFT)—and the University's administration reach agreements about matters of mutual concern, such as salaries, benefits and working conditions.

Question: What are the main issues in bargaining?

Answer: Many issues are being discussed, including salaries, benefits and working conditions.

Question: What are the procedures for bargaining?

Answer: The bargaining process involves negotiations between the University's administration and the faculty's collective bargaining agent, The AFT.

Question: What is the role of the mediator?

Answer: The mediator is an impartial third party who assists in the negotiations and helps ensure that the process remains fair and impartial.

Question: What are the benefits of collective bargaining?

Answer: The benefits of collective bargaining include improved working conditions, fairer salaries and benefits, and a more collaborative relationship between the University and its faculty.

Question: What are the drawbacks of collective bargaining?

Answer: The drawbacks of collective bargaining include the possibility of prolonged negotiations, increased costs, and potential disruptions to the academic environment.

Question: Is collective bargaining worth it?

Answer: Collective bargaining is worth it because it provides a mechanism for resolving disputes and ensuring that the needs and concerns of faculty members are addressed.

Question: What is the impact of collective bargaining on the university?

Answer: The impact of collective bargaining on the university includes increased costs, potential disruptions to the academic environment, and a more collaborative relationship between the University and its faculty.

Question: How does collective bargaining benefit students?

Answer: Collective bargaining benefits students by providing them with a more educated and experienced faculty and by ensuring that their needs are met.

Question: What is the role of the AFT in collective bargaining?

Answer: The AFT is the collective bargaining agent for the faculty at Bowling Green State University and represents their interests in negotiations with the University.

Question: What is the role of the administration in collective bargaining?

Answer: The administration is responsible for negotiating with the AFT and implementing the agreements reached during the bargaining process.

Question: What is the role of the faculty in collective bargaining?

Answer: The faculty is responsible for electing representatives to negotiate on their behalf and for making recommendations to the bargaining agent.

Question: What is the role of the student in collective bargaining?

Answer: The student is not directly involved in the collective bargaining process but is indirectly affected by the agreements reached during the process.

Question: What is the role of the mediator in collective bargaining?

Answer: The mediator is an impartial third party who assists in the negotiations and helps ensure that the process remains fair and impartial.

Question: What is the role of the arbitrator in collective bargaining?

Answer: The arbitrator is a neutral third party who is appointed to resolve disputes if the parties are unable to reach an agreement.

Question: What is the role of the federal government in collective bargaining?

Answer: The federal government has a role in collective bargaining to ensure that the process is fair and impartial and to resolve disputes if the parties are unable to reach an agreement.

Question: What is the role of the state government in collective bargaining?

Answer: The state government has a role in collective bargaining to ensure that the process is fair and impartial and to resolve disputes if the parties are unable to reach an agreement.

Question: What is the role of the community in collective bargaining?

Answer: The community is not directly involved in the collective bargaining process but may be indirectly affected by the agreements reached during the process.

Question: What is the role of the media in collective bargaining?

Answer: The media may report on the collective bargaining process and may provide coverage of the negotiations and agreements.

Question: What is the role of the public in collective bargaining?

Answer: The public is not directly involved in the collective bargaining process but may be indirectly affected by the agreements reached during the process.

Question: What is the role of the elected officials in collective bargaining?

Answer: The elected officials are not directly involved in the collective bargaining process but may be indirectly affected by the agreements reached during the process.

Question: What is the role of the administrators in collective bargaining?

Answer: The administrators are responsible for negotiating with the faculty's collective bargaining agent and implementing the agreements reached during the process.

Question: What is the role of the faculty's collective bargaining agent in collective bargaining?

Answer: The faculty's collective bargaining agent is responsible for representing the faculty's interests in negotiations with the University and for making recommendations to the faculty.

Sayani’s videotape on recycling becoming a hit with schools, organizations

By Raji Sayani, WWG-TV programming assistant

Sayani’s videotape, "Recycling in the City," was played on the campus-wide closed-circuit television system. The video, which was designed to educate students and faculty about recycling, has been a hit with various organizations on campus.

The video was produced by Sayani, a sophomore from Kashmir, India, who is a member of the University’s Green’s Litter Prevention Program. The video features an interview with Dr. Laurence Ward of Ottawa, who discussed the importance of recycling and how it can help reduce waste.

Sayani’s video was shown to Dr. Ogawa, the director of WWG-TV, who was impressed with the video. The video has been well-received by the University’s Green’s Litter Prevention Program, which plans to use the video in its future projects.

University to begin its annual University Volunteer Weekend on campus on Feb. 15

By Raji Sayani, WWG-TV programming assistant

The University is once again hosting its annual University Volunteer Weekend on campus from Feb. 15-17. The weekend is an opportunity for students to engage in various volunteer activities, such as cleaning up the community and providing assistance to local organizations.

The weekend will include a variety of events, including a community service day, a food drive, and a clean-up day. Students are encouraged to participate in as many events as possible, as there are opportunities for students to volunteer in various capacities.

The University Volunteer Weekend is open to all students, and anyone interested in volunteering is encouraged to sign up. The weekend is a great opportunity for students to give back to the community and make a positive impact on the lives of those around them.

Woodruff, Kawashima to head departments

Two departments on campus have started the second semester with new chairmen. Dr. Steve Chip, vice president for university affairs, has announced the appointments of Dr. Woodruff and Dr. Kawashima to the positions of department chairmen.

Dr. Woodruff will be the new chair of the Psychology Department, and Dr. Kawashima will be the new chair of the Sociology Department.

Volunteers are needed to help with AIDS quilt

Volunteers are still needed to help with the AIDS Quilt Project Mental Health Volunteers will be on hand to help with the AIDS Quilt Project.

The AIDS Quilt Project is an art project that uses the AIDS Quilt and the AIDS Memorial Quilt (AMQ) as a symbol of the AIDS epidemic.

The AIDS Quilt Project is an attempt to bring awareness to the issue of AIDS and to remember those who have died of the disease. The project uses a large, colorful quilt that is made up of方形 of fabric, each representing a person who has died of AIDS.

The AIDS Quilt Project is a powerful reminder of the impact of AIDS on individuals and families, and it serves as a reminder to take action to prevent the spread of the disease.

Raj J. Sayani's videotape on recycling becoming a hit with schools, organizations

Sayani's videotape on recycling became such a hit with schools, organizations, and individuals that it was included in a program broadcast by National Public Radio.

Raj J. Sayani at work with WSU-TV

Raj J. Sayani, WSU-TV programmer/producer, used the new videotape on recycling to prepare for the junior and senior high school, college, and university classes for the spring when he is to present the new videotape on the complete recycling chain. The tape is expected to be ready for the school this spring. Sayani, a member of the WSU-TV staff since the spring of 1985, was assigned to produce a 10-minute documentary-style script. But first, a tape had to be developed. "We have always been recycling actually, you could call it weekend stuff to reduce our garbage," said Sayani. "But my parents used to get upset about it."

Sayani's video is a 10-minute show about recycling that has been broadcast on WSU-TV. It is the first tape that Sayani has done for WSU-TV. The tape has been distributed throughout the United States and Canada and has been shown on television in several countries. Students from Liberty Center Elementary School also participated. Sayani pointed out that he attempted to use recycled materials wherever possible in the making of the tape. He even used recycled materials in the making of the tape.

Two departments on campus have started the second semester with new chairs. Dr. Steve Clark, president for the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Washington, and Dr. John Jankowski, professor at the University of Washington, have been appointed to the positions of chairman of the Department of Wood Science and chair of the Department of Forestry.

NOTE OF APPEAL

As all of us anticipate the first pay rates for quite some time, thanks must be paid to Dean Katrina Alexander for her work on the new Salaries and Benefits Adjustment. Thanks also must be given to those administrative and classified staff members, department heads, departmental secretaries, and other offices of the vice presidents and deans, who have worked many extra hours to ensure that this case now appears in our January paychecks. Your work is much appreciated.
