Q & A ABOUT COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

A variety of questions have been raised about faculty collective bargaining and its potential effects. It is also the major issue that has dominated the union election. So far, the union has not revealed whether it has more than 50% of the votes. The union will be in session this week, and the union will announce whether it has won or lost.

Question: When will the election be held?

Answer: From BGSU-FU. This question is the one BGSU-FU is most often asked. It is also the major issue that has dominated the union election. So far, the union has not revealed whether it has more than 50% of the votes. The union will be in session this week, and the union will announce whether it has won or lost.

COMMENTARY

Editor, the Monitor:

The costs of staying alive is overwhelming at BGSU—at least of the liberal. Last semester’s offerings of bioethics and psychology, for example, had no students enrolled. Why? Because our students can best study these subjects without having to pay the $57,000 fee. We cannot continue to subsidize that by devoting this semester to such topics. The students' and faculty's decision was that they would do as they wish, not as what the administration wants them to do. We should not force them to do what they do not want to do.

If we want to retain our student body, we need to provide them with the tools they need to learn and grow. We need to provide them with the resources they need to succeed. We need to provide them with the opportunity to learn and grow.

We cannot continue to subsidize these courses and expect our students to continue to enroll in them. It is time to stop subsidizing these courses and to provide our students with the resources they need to succeed.

Sincerely,

In her letter to the editor of the Monitor, Mary Johnson raises two issues concerning the philosophy of the philosophy of the class offerings at BGSU. First, she suggests that the philosophy of these classes is not in line with the philosophy of the philosophy of the class offerings at BGSU. Second, she suggests that the philosophy of these classes is not in line with the philosophy of the class offerings at BGSU.

In response to these concerns, the philosophy of the class offerings at BGSU is designed to provide our students with the tools they need to learn and grow. We need to provide them with the resources they need to succeed. We need to provide them with the opportunity to learn and grow.

We cannot continue to subsidize these courses and expect our students to continue to enroll in them. It is time to stop subsidizing these courses and to provide our students with the resources they need to succeed.

Editor, the Monitor:

Mr. Tucker's letter concerning women in the workforce is informative. However, I disagree with his arguments. I believe that women should have the same opportunities as men to work in any field they choose.

Mr. Tucker argues that women should not have the same opportunities as men to work in any field they choose. He cites a study that found women to be less capable than men in certain fields. However, this study is flawed in its methodology. It is not clear what criteria were used to determine these capabilities. Furthermore, it is not clear what the implications of these results are for the workforce.

Mr. Tucker also argues that women should not have the same opportunities as men to work in any field they choose. He cites a study that found women to be less capable than men in certain fields. However, this study is flawed in its methodology. It is not clear what criteria were used to determine these capabilities.
