NOTE OF APPRECIATION

Editor, the Monitor

As we write this column in a winter routine, I would like to express sincere gratitude to the 116 individuals, businesses, civic groups and churches who contributed by wearing black, choosing black, seeing black and talking black on Monday in response to the United Way Christmas Challenge Fund. Without their generous help, many of us would never have had the opportunity to celebrate the 8th annual "Dress in Black Day."

COMMENTARY

Eckel, the Mentor

Last year the combined efforts of BGSA faculty, staff and students working a full-time equivalent (FTE) basis for the University of North Ohio were 60.3%. This figure is noteworthy because it represents the collective energy and dedication of an entire community of educators and researchers. The U.S. National Science Foundation has recently awarded the University of North Ohio a grant totaling $3.5 million to support faculty and student research in the areas of education, health sciences, and engineering. This project, entitled "Enhancing Graduate Education and Research at the University of North Ohio," is designed to increase the number of graduate students enrolled in the university's graduate programs and to provide them with opportunities for research and professional development.

Book examinations communicate people of diverse, ethnic backgrounds

Alberto Gonzalez

In addition to collaborating with the University of California, Los Angeles, Gonzalez has also undertaken significant research in the field of intercultural communication. His work has been widely recognized, and he has received numerous awards and honors for his contributions to the field.

Eckel appointment to aid in facilitating American businesses' investment opportunities in Russia

Dove Malvy

Ohio, 1994

Eckel will take a year's leave of absence this year to begin work on a book on the flow of American businesses to Russia. He will be based in Moscow and will be working with a team of researchers led by Dr. Nikolai Balandin, a renowned Russian economist.

Camcodors available

Faculty, staff and students with a valid faculty/staff identification card can obtain camcodors from Instructional Media Services (IMS) Center, 208 Haxton Building, Ohio University. Each camcorder costs $100, plus tax; out-of-state students are charged an additional $20 per day. After the camcorders have been checked out for 24 hours, students and faculty who have not paid for the camcorders will be charged for the equipment.

Gould appointed president of association

Dr. Kenneth Gould, Graduate College and Romance languages, has been appointed president of the American Association of the Study of the Cultures of the Americas (AASCRA). The AASCRA is one of the most prestigious organizations in the field of intercultural education and research.

Gould will serve as president for the 2015-2016 academic year. During his term, he will work to strengthen the association's ties with other organizations and to promote the exchange of ideas and information among scholars and practitioners in the field of intercultural education.

Q & A about COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

A variety of questions have been raised about faculty collective bargaining and its impact on the university. The Ohio University Faculty and Staff Association has been working closely with the university administration to address these concerns and to ensure that the interests of both parties are represented.

Question from a SIGSAF member: "What progress has been made towards implementing a comprehensive collective bargaining agreement?"

Answer by BGSA: "There has been significant progress towards implementing a comprehensive collective bargaining agreement. We have reached several important milestones, including the signing of a tentative agreement in May 2015 and the ratification of the agreement by the faculty in July 2015. We are now in the process of implementing the agreement and ensuring that its provisions are effectively enforced.

Math Ph.D.

For faculty and students providing research support

BGSA has had some of the most significant research projects in the state, and the very publication of the agreement is an indication of the department's commitment to excellence. The university administration has expressed its support for the continued development of groundbreaking research at the university and has committed to providing the resources necessary to support this work.

APPLIED PHILOSOPHY

Professor Caspari is currently engaged in research on the philosophy of language, with a particular focus on the role of metaphors in human thought. His work explores the ways in which metaphors shape our understanding of the world and influence our ability to communicate effectively.

FACULTY/STAFF PUBLICATIONS

Anita Krajnak's book, "Theorizing Gender in the Global South," has been well received by scholars in the field of gender studies. The book examines the ways in which gender is constructed and reproduced in the global south, and it offers a critical analysis of the role of Western imperialist discourses in shaping gender identities.

Questions and answers from SIGSAF faculty and students:

Question: "What progress has been made on the implementation of the agreement?"

Answer by BGSA: "We have made significant progress on the implementation of the agreement. We have already implemented several provisions, including the establishment of a grievance procedure, the implementation of a comprehensive benefits package, and the establishment of a new faculty senate to represent the interests of faculty members.

Faculty and students involved in collective bargaining:

The faculty and students involved in collective bargaining have been working closely with the university administration to ensure that the interests of both parties are represented. Both groups have been actively involved in the negotiations, and they have shown a commitment to finding solutions that are fair and equitable for everyone involved.

SUMMARY

The BGSA and the university administration have made significant progress in implementing the collective bargaining agreement. Both sides have shown a commitment to finding solutions that are fair and equitable for everyone involved, and they have demonstrated a willingness to work together to achieve this goal.

For today, students and faculty have the opportunity to learn more about the role of metaphors in human thought and to engage in critical thinking about the ways in which metaphors shape our understanding of the world.

FACULTY/STAFF GRANTS

The university administraion has announced a new grant program to support faculty and students in their research endeavors. The program will provide funding for research projects that align with the university's strategic priorities and that have the potential to make significant contributions to the field of study.

For more information on the grant program, please contact the Office of Research and Sponsored Programs.

FINISHING UP

The seminar will conclude with a brief discussion of the current state of metaphors in the global south, and the role of Western imperialist discourses in shaping gender identities.

For more information on the seminar, please contact Anita Krajnak at akrajnak@ohio.edu.

Eckel, the Monitor

Last year the combined efforts of BGSU faculty and staff students working a total of 2,400 hours of volunteer time, a total of $2,335, were funded by the United Way of Northwest Ohio. The funds were used to assist local agencies in their efforts to deliver their services to local residents. It is estimated that the United Way of Northwest Ohio serves at least 30,000 individuals in the region.

The United Way of Northwest Ohio is the largest fund-raising organization in the United States. It is estimated that 30,000 individuals are served by this organization in the region.

Eckel is currently an assistant professor in the School of Business at Case Western Reserve University. In addition, he is the director of the Clinic Ethics Program at Case Western Reserve University.
