Professors’ book helps teachers apply computer skills in classroom

A new computer education text, A Map for the Teacher: Clarifying Vision, offers an alternative to Memorizing with a Method. Co-authored by renowned computer faculty members collaborated with two practicing teachers at Bowling Green State University and a student from Groveport Madison High School to produce a user-friendly text that offers tips on the practical application of computer skills in both elementary and secondary classrooms.

The book, which covers both Clarifying Vision and MemoriZing with a Method, was written by Dr. Greg Brownell, EDC 290, and can be purchased through educational and computer suppliers.
