

9-28-1998

Monitor Newsletter September 28, 1998

Bowling Green State University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor>

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!

---

Recommended Citation

Bowling Green State University, "Monitor Newsletter September 28, 1998" (1998). Monitor. 510.
<https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor/510>

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at ScholarWorks@BGSU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Monitor by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks@BGSU.

MONITOR

VOL. 23 NO. 10 ♦ SEPTEMBER 28, 1998

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. Postage PAID
Permit No. 1
Bowling Green, Ohio

University forms partnership with public, parochial schools

It's an idea whose time has finally come: The Bowling Green Educational Network has been formed to enhance communication and partnership between the University and the public and parochial schools.

The alliance was formally endorsed in May by President Sidney Ribeau and city schools' Superintendent Hugh Caumartin, who both attended the group's first official meeting. Sister Janet Doyle, superintendent of the Diocese of Toledo, also lent her support and named two representatives to the committee.

"The BG Educational Network represents an excellent example of our continuing efforts to build community by initiating a focus in our own backyard," Ribeau said.

The group's founding members are all BGSU staff who are parents of children in the city schools. They wanted to help the schools more academically and had been frustrated by the lack of interaction between the two institutions, according to Roger Thibault, director of environmental programs. They were also dismayed to see grant opportunities come and go, with no way for the schools and University to take advantage of them.

"There seems to be an invisible wall between the two, and we need to knock that down," said Jill Carr, associate dean of students in the Office of Student Life.

The group began meeting informally last school year to discuss what they could do to promote collaboration. They visited with parents, teachers, principals, guidance counselors and PTO representatives to see what the district's needs were and whether people at the University could help.

The more they discussed the partnership idea, the more possible connections between faculty, students and staff began to emerge, including ways in which the University could benefit from association with the schools beyond the traditional student teacher and field experience programs.

Thibault and Michael Walsh, director of admissions, met with Ribeau to ask for his support. "He jumped at it and thought it was a great idea," Carr said. He also suggested that the parochial schools be included, which sparked the involvement of Mary Kay Williams, principal of St. Aloysius in Bowling Green and Sister Diane Hay, principal of St. Jerome in Walbridge.

"The University has had a long-standing relationship with the local schools in programs such as Arts Unlimited and the College of Education and Human Development. I believe, however, that this partnership allows us to expand our collaborative efforts across a much wider spectrum and identify needs and provide resources in more nontraditional areas such as the sciences, technology and professional development," Ribeau said. "We anticipate the efforts of these professionals will enhance the experiences of all our students. BGSU students will likely have the potential for service learning in the Bowling Green community."

Caumartin was equally enthusiastic when he was approached with the idea. "The University has for too long been an untouched resource for us," he said. "This represents a change from the past and is a major expansion of the whole idea of how we interact. Traditionally, we've dealt with the College of Education and Human Development, which has been very valuable, but this throws the whole thing open to many other cooperative efforts. It's truly a symbiotic relationship."

"This collaboration came about because of three things: a group of individuals who had the gumption to get it started, the endorsement of President Ribeau and our realization of what a tremendous resource BGSU is."

Comprising the city schools' contingent are Bev Anthony, a high school science teacher, Paula Williams, junior high science; Jeff Burkett, sixth grade at Crim; Helene Weinberger, kindergarten at Conneaut; Jean McCullough, assistant high school principal; Thomas Ross, high school English, and Eric Myers, executive director of administrative services.

Also on the committee are University representatives Al Gonzalez, interpersonal communications, and Marc Simon, political science, who is teaching in Austria this school year.

The group has already organized four subcommittees, on resources—whose members are putting together teacher "wish lists" and identifying organizations and departments on campus willing to participate—reading, science and professional development.

"Technology has been a main area we're hearing a need for training in," Carr said.

Holly Myers-Jones, Sponsored Programs and Research, will focus on understanding what types of grants might benefit the schools and searching for them, and on training teachers to write grant proposals. She has already had some requests. At the group's September meeting, Williams asked her to research a possible science grant for a project she would like to do with students.

The University's Organization Development Program will assist the city schools in creating a climate conducive to change, a goal of the district's new strategic plan.

Members of the committee have volunteered to attend each of Bowling Green schools' open houses over the next few weeks, and Williams and Sister Hay will announce the initiative at their schools' events.

"Broader involvement is the next step," Thibault said. "We can't identify all the needs ourselves. We're looking for ideas, suggestions and volunteers." ♦

Homecoming events planned all weekend

"Paint the Town Orange and Brown" is the theme for Homecoming 1998, with events planned all over campus this week.

Kicking off the festivities will be a parade, beginning on Main Street at 6 p.m. Thursday (Oct. 1). A pep rally will follow at 8 p.m. in the field between Harshman and Kreisler, topped off with fireworks around 9 p.m.

On Friday (Oct. 2), the UAO homecoming concert and barbecue will be held from 5:30-11:30 p.m. at Memorial Hall. The alumni awards dinner will also be Friday, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. in the Quality Inn Atrium. (See separate story, page 2)

Saturday's (Oct. 3) events will begin with an open house, from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. at Mileti Alumni Center, and an alumni swim meet, beginning at 9 a.m. in the Student Recreation Center's Cooper Pool. In addition, admissions tours for sons and daughters of alumni will start at 10:15 a.m. in the assembly room at McFall Center.

Alumni and college tent parties will get under way at 10 a.m. at the alumni center and Doyt Perry Stadium. The College of Health and Human Services will hold an open house both from 1-5 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m.-noon Saturday.

The football team will host Ohio University at noon, and the hockey team will meet Western Ontario at 4 p.m. in the Ice Arena.

Saturday's activities will end with the all-alumni dance, planned for 7 p.m.-1 a.m. in the Student Union's Lenhart Grand Ballroom. Cost is $20.

On Sunday (Oct. 4), the UAO Homecoming Brunch will be held from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. in the ballroom, and a golf outing will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Creason Golf Course.

In other sports, home volleyball matches are set for 7 p.m. Friday (vs. Buffalo) and Saturday (Kent State); the men's soccer team hosts Akron at 3 p.m. Friday and Buffalo at 1 p.m. Sunday; the women's soccer team hosts Western Michigan at 3 p.m. Sunday, and the BGSU/Keefe Invitational tennis tournament will run Friday-Sunday. ♦

LEADING & LEARNING TOGETHER

Enhancing Student Success

- ♦ Help less capable students arrange tutoring.
- ♦ "Stretch" students in class so they are forced to discover and utilize their full potential.
- ♦ Clarify expectations for students at the beginning of the course (and reiterate throughout the semester).
- ♦ Incorporate reviews before tests and identify the number and type of test questions.
- ♦ Demonstrate the relevance of the course to the major degree program.

From Pringle, C. D. (1995). Expectancy theory: Its applicability to student academic performance, College Student Journal, 29(2), 249-255.

For more information about how to improve your classroom techniques to enhance student success, contact the Center for Teaching, Learning and Technology at ctl@mailserver.bgsu.edu or 2-6898. This column is provided to the faculty and staff of BGSU by the Leading and Learning Together Team. If you have teaching suggestions to share, please contact Lee Meserve at lmserve@bgnnet.bgsu.edu or 2-8361.

Editor's note: Above is the first of six biweekly features from the Leading & Learning Together team which will appear in Monitor through the end of fall semester.

Faculty welcomes 67 new members

The University has added 67 new tenured and tenure-track faculty this year, the largest number of newcomers in the past decade.

"We have been able to attract an outstanding group of new faculty, and we welcome them to the BGSU community," said Charles Middleton, provost and vice president for academic affairs.

"I am delighted they have agreed to come here to further their careers and at the same time help Bowling Green achieve its goal of becoming the premier learning community in Ohio."

Most of the new faculty are replacements for the 60 professors who retired this year—the last for the Early Retirement Incentive Plan. Most of the retirees are continuing their teaching at the University under the Supplemental Retirement Plan.

New faculty members are: Madhavarao Raghunathan, accounting and management information systems; Robert Huber, Daniel Wiegmann and Mary Wilmes-Riesenberg, all biological sciences; Jewel Hairston, business education; Felix Castellano, chemistry; James Blustein, computer science; William King and Marian Williams, both criminal justice; Robert Ludwig, David Nicholls and Patrick Pauken, all educational administration and supervision; Cynthia

(Continued on page 2)

Information gathering

Lori Goetz (left), a freshman education major, and Shannon Celusta, a freshman art therapy major, talk to Jeannie Ludlow, American culture studies and representing the Coalition Against Sexual Offenses, at Wednesday's (Sept. 23) Women's Health Fair.

University projects receive Eisenhower funds

Three projects led by University faculty are among 40 in Ohio chosen to receive Eisenhower Professional Development Program funding, which supports math and science education improvement initiatives.

BGSU recipients of Eisenhower funds are:

- ASCEND—Assessment Collaborative for Educators seeking New Directions ($86,685), directed by Daniel Brahier, educational curriculum and instruction. The project's primary purpose is to provide inservice for teachers, kindergarten through 12th grade, on the use of alternative math assessment.

- Science Goes to the Movies ($70,000), coordinated by Roger Thibault, director, Center for Environmental Programs. Making science exciting and fun, as well as accurate, with the help of film is an overriding objective of the project, for grades 6-12.

- Experiencing the Vision: Developing Deep Understanding of Mathematics ($68,774), directed by Barbara Moses, mathematics and statistics. The project is aimed at teachers of grades 2-5 in Findlay and other Hancock County schools, and at their perceptions about math.

The three University proposals were among 64 received from 33 colleges and universities and six non-profit organizations, according to the Ohio Board of Regents. Those requests totaled nearly $4.5 million.

A 20-member panel with representation from all levels of math and science education ranked the proposals and made funding recommendations to the regents, who released more than $2.4 million in Eisenhower funds for the 40 projects selected.

"The projects link 20 of Ohio's colleges and universities and two non-profit educational organizations with school systems across the state in an effort to improve mathematics and science education," according to the regents' office. Of the 20 colleges and universities, 10 are state assisted, eight are private and two are community colleges.

The Eisenhower program annually distributes federal funds to all 50 states—based upon the number of schoolchildren in the state—to support activities that will strengthen math and science education. ♦

Alumni Association honorees include Cormier, Keefe, Bryden

Two former faculty members and long-time University supporters, as well as a current faculty member and two other alumni, will be honored by the Alumni Association at a Friday (Oct. 2) dinner.

Ramona Cormier, a Trustee Professor emeritus of philosophy, and Robert Keefe, a professor emeritus of health, physical education and recreation, will be presented Honorary Alumnus awards.

Jeff Bryden, a former advertising executive and now a member of the marketing department faculty, will receive the Alumni Service Award.

In addition, Denise Dawson of the Ohio Department of Human Services and Jason Gray of Fairfax, Va., who is associate executive director of the Northern Virginia Community College Educational Foundation, Inc., will be honored with Recent Graduate Awards. They graduated in 1988 and 1989, respectively.

The dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Quality Inn Atrium, 1628 E. Wooster St. Cost is $20, and reservations can be made by calling the Office of Alumni Affairs at 2-2701. The deadline for registering is Tuesday (Sept. 29).

The Honorary Alumnus Award, created in 1973, recognizes individuals who are not graduates of Bowling Green but whose efforts have been important to the success of the University and the community.

Cormier taught at the University for 25 years before her retirement in 1990. During her career, she founded the Philosopher's Index, an internationally known index to philosophy literature published worldwide. She also held a number of administrative posts, including associate provost and dean of continuing education.

Her gifts of books, journals and cash to the University Libraries through the years is estimated at more than $25,000. To honor her commitment to the library, a reading room within the Jerome Library was dedicated in her name earlier this year.

Cormier is current president of the BGSU Retirees Association and immediate past president of the Bowling Green Community Foundation. She's also a volunteer mediator for Bowling Green Municipal Court.

Keefe spent 23 years at the University, beginning in 1955. In addition to teaching, he was both assistant dean of the College of Education and director of graduate studies for the then-Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

For 11 years, he coached the varsity tennis team, and in 1979, the year after his retirement, the tennis courts were named in his honor. Last year, the former coach was inducted into the BGSU

Athletic Hall of Fame.

The Alumni Service Award honors graduates who have devoted their time and work on behalf of the Alumni Association and the University.

Bryden earned a bachelor's degree and an MBA degree from the University in 1966 and 1967, respectively. Before joining the faculty in 1997 as instructor and executive-in-residence, he was vice chairman and chief operating officer of Meldrum & Fewsmith Advertising in Cleveland.

An active member of the Alumni Association Board of Trustees, he served as president from 1995-96. He is also a member of the Presidents Club and co-chairs a University-wide marketing committee.

Within the marketing department, he serves as director of the department's annual symposium and its advisory council. ♦

Darby named ACSM Fellow

Lynn Darby, human movement, sport and leisure studies, has been named a Fellow in the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM).

Fellowship status allows an ACSM member to be a national officer and serve on ad-hoc or special interest committees, Darby said, adding that only about 2,000 of ACSM's roughly 16,000 members are Fellows. ♦

MONITOR

Published for faculty and staff of Bowling Green State University

University Vision Statement:

Bowling Green State University aspires to be the premier learning community in Ohio and one of the best in the nation. Through the interdependence of teaching, learning, scholarship and service we will create an academic environment grounded in intellectual discovery and guided by rational discourse and civility.

BGSU is an AA/EEO educator and employer.

Office of Public Relations, 516 Administration Bldg., Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio 43403

Phone: (419) 372-8586, Fax: (419) 372-8579

Email: monitor@bgnnet.bgsu.edu

World Wide Web: <http://www.bgsu.edu/offices/pr/monitor/>

Editor: Scott Borgelt

Writers: Shannon McFarlin and Bonnie Blankinship

Photographer: Gary Guydosh

Contributors: Clifton P. Boutelle, Marilyn Bratz, Gardner A. McLean Jr., Teri Sharp and Linda Swaisgood

Copy deadline: 5 p.m. Tuesday for following Monday during the academic year. (Published every other week during the summer.)

Faculty

(Continued from page 1)

Bertelsen, educational curriculum and instruction; Haithe Anderson, Patricia Kubow and Rachel Vannatta, all educational foundations and inquiry; Valerie Rohy and Deborah Alvarez, both English; Cecilia Anne Green, ethnic studies; Jean Hines, family and consumer sciences; Terry Richardson, finance; Edgar Landgraf, German, Russian and East Asian languages; Fred Bonner, higher education and student affairs; Liette Gidlow, history; Lisa McClung, Raymond Schneider and Nancy Spencer, all human movement, sport and leisure studies; Catherine Cardwell and Carol Singer, both Libraries and Learning Resources; Wayne Norton, journalism; Linda Ueltschy, legal studies and international business; Bryant Hudson, Mitchell Neubert and Diana Wong, all management; Stacey Baker and Judith Washburn, both marketing; Mikel Kuehn, music composition and history; Elaine Colprit and C. Victor Fung, both music education; Kevin Schempf, Christopher Scholl, Robert Satterlee, Edward Maclary, Russell Schmidt and Jane Solose, all music performance studies; Christine Genovese, biology, and Roberta Slater, applied sciences and teaching learning, both Firelands College;

Marina Oshana and David Copp, both philosophy; Andrew Layden, physics and astronomy (on leave); Steven Ballard, political science, Graduate College dean and vice provost for research; Joe Austin and Jeffrey Brown, both popular culture; Mary Hare, Dara Eizenman and Yiwei Chen, all psychology; Mark Hernandez and Philip Peek, both romance languages; Bonnie Mitchell, art; Jacob Adetunji, Susan Brown and Jeffrey Houser, all sociology; Susan Huss, special education; David Border, technology systems; Stan Guidera, Kathryn Hoff and Frank Petrella, all visual communication and technology education. ♦

in brief

Harassment teleconference today

A national teleconference, "How to Address Claims of Sexual Harassment: What the Law Demands," will be presented live via satellite from 2-4 p.m. today (Sept. 28) in 113 Olscamp Hall.

Teleconference features will include how the law defines sexual harassment, the current status of sexual harassment law, an overview of recent Supreme Court rulings on the issue, scenarios and role plays and BGSU's sexual harassment grievance procedures.

Faculty and staff who didn't attend one of last year's sexual harassment workshops sponsored by the affirmative action office will satisfy that requirement by attending today's teleconference. Preregistration isn't necessary but a sign-in sheet must be signed. ♦

Administrative staff reception set

The Fall Administrative Staff Reception will be held from 3-5 p.m. Tuesday (Sept. 29) at Mileti Alumni Center.

The 1998 Ferrari Award recipient will be named at an awards presentation, scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. Also recognized will be this year's Administrative Staff Council scholarship recipients and 1997-98 ASC Chair Duane Whitmire and Secretary Judy Donald. ♦

Tickets for All-Stars available

Single tickets go on sale today (Sept. 28) for an Oct. 9 concert by the Bang On A Can All-Stars, who will open the 1998-99 Festival Series at 8 p.m. in Kobacker Hall of the Moore Musical Arts Center.

Part classical ensemble, part rock band and part jazz band, the All-Stars feature a repertoire from a new generation of composers. The program will include Brian Eno's "Music for Airports," as well as works by David Lang, Steve Reich and Julia Wolfe.

Tickets are priced at $32, $25 and $16 and can be reserved by calling 2-8171. ♦

Managerial training workshops set

A Managerial Training Series of workshops, offered by the BGSU Training Center, will begin Friday (Oct. 2) with "Workplace Counseling: Make Time to Mentor."

Subsequent sessions are "Staff Esteem Builders: Easy Ways to Encourage Others," on Oct. 16; "Learned Optimism: Giving Feedback/Listening" on Oct. 30, and "Team-Based Leadership: Avoiding Team Nightmares" on Nov. 13.

The workshops will be held from 8-10 a.m. in College Park Office Building, Room 2. They are a cooperative effort involving the continuing education and human resources offices and the College of Business Administration.

For more information or to register, call continuing education at 2-8181. ♦

Campus to host business center

The University's Office of Continuing Education, International & Summer Programs will host the Wood County Small Business Development Center, effective Thursday (Oct. 1).

Housed in the College Park Office Building, the center will offer training for owners of small businesses, providing one-on-one assistance with business planning, marketing, budgets and finances, and legal aspects. The center also will help small business owners determine eligibility for state and federal programs.

Another aspect of the center is the Small Business Institute, which offers noncredit workshops for small business owners or people thinking about starting a small business.

For more information, call the center at 2-9536. ♦

Rome trip still has openings

Openings remain for the Alumni Association-sponsored trip to Rome Nov. 10-17.

The eight-day, seven-night travel program includes air, hotel and extras for $1,595 per person.

For more information, call the alumni affairs office at 2-2701. ♦

Television Learning Services offers distance learning, more

It's the next best thing to being there.

Thanks to the Tucker Center of Telecommunications, classes offered by the University can be beamed to remote locations throughout Ohio. With the latest technology, faculty and students at the different locations can not only see and hear each other, but speak with each other as well.

Last fall, the Tucker Center delivered seven classes through its distance learning program. This semester, 14 distance classes are being offered to sites at Firelands College, Terra Technical College, Ameritech in Toledo, Miami University, Four County Vocational School and Lima Technical College.

According to Tim Smith, director of public relations for WBGU-TV, "the Miami University class is a reciprocal agreement through which Bowling Green sent a satellite geologic remote sensing class to Miami last semester, and this semester has Miami sending an eminent scholar to Bowling Green."

The Ameritech class in Toledo is a graduate class that the Tucker Center is sending to Ameritech employees in their offices, he said, and the classes at Lima, Firelands and Four County are professional classes for teachers.

"The technology utilized at Tucker Center to send and receive classes is called compressed video," Smith said, "allowing for two-way communication of video, voice and data."

"Our bottom line is that we are a service agency for the University that is available to everyone," said Tony Short, Television Learning Services (TLS) director. "We have a range of services available to faculty. In addition to distance learning, we also have a library which holds 4,000 tapes which run the gamut of topics. We can purchase tapes for anyone. They just have to let us know what they want and we order it for them. We also have a video production component through which we can produce videos for faculty members."

Faculty members who are unable to find tapes which cover the topics or issues they plan to present in class can pitch their idea to TLS staff, which then can produce a video for them. "For example, we produced a video for the philosophy department on sign language for them to use in the classroom," Short said.

Distance learning expands that classroom, providing seemingly endless possibilities.

"There are very few things that couldn't be taught via distance learning," Short said. "If students are highly motivated, they could learn just about anything through that method. Not everything, though—I think you'd have a problem learning how to be a heart surgeon that way, for instance."

Why are Bowling Green classes beamed to other universities?

"We've had requests from other universities where we have the faculty to present things and they don't, such as the satellite remote sensing request from Miami University. They wanted to teach it, but had no faculty there to do that. In another instance, we had AIDS experts here that OSU and OU didn't have, and so we provided them with distance classes for some AIDS education programs they wanted to conduct," Short said.

Feedback from faculty and students who have participated in distance learning is varied, he said.

"We've experienced markedly different reactions from the 18-21-year-olds than we have from the adult students," he said. "Adult students are very pleased they didn't have to drive here and have that added expense and time." On the other hand, he added, "some 18-21-year-olds have not been pleased—they feel it's distracting not having the teacher in the room with them."

"In reality, the professor can see and hear them, so they can have a dialogue," Short said. "The classroom information is exactly the same as it is with the faculty right there in the room with them. But for some of the younger students, it's difficult for them to get beyond not having the professor physically in the same room."

Short acknowledged the irony that younger students, who are considered more video-oriented, would be more resistant to distance learning.

"I think the fact that the younger ones are so video-oriented is the reason they are having trouble with it," he said. "They approach it the same way they do when they look at TV at home, which (is) it's a one-way thing with the person just sitting there watching it and there's no interaction."

"It's not like watching TV at home," he continued. "This is your faculty member talking to you, and you have to give it the same attention you do when the faculty member is in the classroom with you. You can't read a newspaper while you're watching the TV; you can't go to the refrigerator. It's not like watching a sitcom or a soap opera where they repeat themselves over and over."

"But it's like anything else—there's an orientation period that people go through until they get used to it. It's a little like email. There's a certain protocol you go through to communicate with email, and some people have difficulty getting past that until they're comfortable with it," Short said. ♦

Supply side

University staff look over vendors' wares at an office supply product show, held Wednesday (Sept. 23) in the McFall Center Gallery.

New minor in Africana studies offered

The University is now offering a minor in Africana studies.

The new minor is multidisciplinary, drawing courses from several departments, schools and colleges. Also international in scope, it offers courses that investigate the historical, artistic, cultural and political aspects of people of African descent throughout the world.

The minor is designed to strengthen students' liberal arts background while preparing them to cope with a world of increasing racial and cultural diversity. It consists of 21 hours with two required courses plus five elective courses. At least 15 hours must be in courses at the 300-level or higher, and selected from at least three departments.

Other Africana Studies-related offerings include summer/spring workshops in Ghana (College of Musical Arts), Burkina Faso (French department) and the Republic of Benin (history department).

Among the course offerings are Novels of Black Liberation, Aesthetics of Black Music, African Political Systems, Slavery in the Americas, African Literature, Aspects of African-American History, Black Families in America, Survey of Jazz Styles, Music in African Culture and Black Popular Culture. To determine which will be offered during the spring semester, consult departmental listings in the schedule of classes.

Anyone interested in learning more about the minor should contact either the College of Arts and Sciences, 2-2016; Lillian Ashcraft-Eason, 2-8120, or Donald Nieman, 2-2030. Ashcraft-Eason and Nieman, both history, are co-chairs of the Africana Studies Committee. ♦

Series to address diversity in religion

"All in the Name of Religion: Diversity and Discord" is the theme for this year's Issues in Cultural Diversity series, sponsored by Libraries and Learning Resources' Multicultural Affairs Committee.

The series will begin Oct. 28 with "What Is It Like to be a Member of a Religious Minority in America?" Several members of religious minorities will relate their experiences, along with an overview of their religious doctrines, philosophy and practices.

"The Black Church in America: Civil Rights and Religion" will be the Martin Luther King Jr. tribute program on Jan. 20. From their African religious roots to the current impact of the civil rights movement, panel members will discuss how African Americans respond to religious diversity and discord.

On March 3, Susan Henking, religious studies and acting dean of faculty of Hobart & William Smith Colleges, Geneva, N.Y., will discuss "Collisions Within Religion: Conservatives, Mainstream and Liberals." She will address approaches to understanding conflict within and between faiths from the perspective of sociology of religion.

All programs will be held from 10 a.m.-noon in Jerome Library's Pallister Conference Room. ♦

Retirement reception planned, scholarship created for Moore

The campus community is invited to a retirement reception for John Moore, interim vice president for University advancement, from 4-7 p.m. Oct. 9 in 101 Olscamp Hall.

Moore is leaving the University Wednesday (Sept. 30) after eight years, six as executive director of human resources and two as interim vice president for University advancement.

J. Douglas Smith, who in August was appointed to succeed Moore, said that Moore's tenure at BGSU "has been marked by the same qualities he exhibited throughout his career: integrity, sincerity, teamwork and a willingness to accept and resolve new challenges."

Smith said that as a tribute to Moore's interest in and commitment to young people, a John C. and Alvetta Y. Moore Scholarship is being created. The endowed scholarship will be awarded annually to greater Toledo-area students who are enrolled in the President's Leadership Academy.

For more information on the Moore Scholarship Fund, contact the Office of Development at 2-2424. ♦

Reservations being taken for Panksepp presentation

Reservations will be accepted through Friday (Oct. 2) for the Oct. 9 "Breakfast in BG," featuring Jaak Panksepp, Distinguished Research Professor of Psychobiology.

Panksepp will speak on "Emotional Intelligence, Emotional Consciousness and Affective Neuroscience at BGSU," describing his work toward understanding how such things as social bonding, playfulness, fear and cravings are organized in the brain.

Panksepp captured worldwide media attention recently because of his study of playfulness and joy. He has discovered that when tickled, rats play and emit sounds which could be interpreted as laughter.

Articles about Panksepp's work have appeared in publications ranging from "People" magazine to "New Scientist Planet Science" on the Internet. News crews from the Discovery Channel and the British Broadcasting Corp. also have interviewed him for programs scheduled for telecast next spring.

"Breakfast in BG" will be held in 101 Olscamp Hall. The breakfast buffet will open at 7 a.m., with the program beginning at 7:45 a.m.

Reservations are $8 per person and may be made by sending a check, payable to the BGSU Foundation Inc., to "Breakfast in BG," Mileti Alumni Center.

For more information or to register by phone, call Carol Sanner, University advancement, at 2-2708. ♦

Flu shots to be offered in Oct.

Student Health Services will offer flu shots for faculty and staff, as well as students, beginning Oct. 13. Specific dates and times will be announced as the time draws nearer. ♦ ## campus calendar...

Tuesday, Sept. 29

Going Back to School—What's Involved?, 6-8 p.m., Wood County Public Library. Discuss the concerns of adult students when they begin or return to higher education. Free. For more information, call continuing education, 2-8181.

Managing Time Effectively, 6-8 p.m., Wood County Public Library. Learn time management techniques that will help you juggle work, home and school. Free. For more information, call continuing education, 2-8181.

Student Composers' Forum, 8 p.m., Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center, featuring works by graduate and undergraduate composition students in the College of Musical Arts. Free.

Wednesday, Sept. 30

Brown Bag Lunch Special, "A Human Rights Ordinance in Toledo?", with presenters from the Human Rights Ordinance Committee of Toledo, noon, 107 Hanna Hall. Sponsored by the Women's Center. Free.

International Travel Grant Forms Due, Center for International Programs.

Thursday, Oct. 1

Administrative Staff Council, 1:30 p.m., Alumni Room.

Women's Soccer hosts Central Michigan, 3 p.m., Cochrane Field.

Women's Workshop, "No Fear: Women Wielding Technology for Global Communication," 122 Jerome Library. Free.

Contemporary French Film Series, "Microcosmos," 8 p.m., Gish Film Theater. Free.

Student Jazz Combos, 8 p.m., Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

Friday, Oct. 2

Board of Trustees meeting, 10 a.m., McFall Center.

Men's Soccer hosts Akron, 3 p.m., Cochrane Field.

Volleyball hosts Buffalo, 7 p.m., Anderson Arena.

Wind Ensemble and Concert Band, 8 p.m., Kobacker Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

In Search of Planets with Life, 8 p.m., Planetarium, $1 donation.

UAO Film, "Rainmaker," 8 p.m. and 11 p.m., 111 Olscamp Hall. $2.

Men's Tennis hosts BGSU/Keefe Invitational, Keefe Courts, 4 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 3

Football hosts Ohio University, noon, Perry Stadium.

Hockey hosts Western Ontario, 4 p.m., Ice Arena.

Volleyball hosts Kent State, 7 p.m., Anderson Arena.

UAO Film, "Rainmaker," 8 p.m. and 11 p.m., 111 Olscamp Hall. $2.

Men's Tennis hosts BGSU/Keefe Invitational, Keefe Courts, 8 a.m.

Sunday, Oct. 4

Men's Soccer hosts Buffalo, 1 p.m., Cochrane Field.

Women's Soccer hosts Western Michigan, 3 p.m., Cochrane Field.

In Search of Planets with Life, 7:30 p.m., Planetarium, $1 donation.

Men's Tennis hosts BGSU/Keefe Invitational, Keefe Courts, 9 a.m.

Monday, Oct. 5

International Film Series, "Stage Sisters," 8:15 p.m., Gish Film Theater, Hanna Hall, 1966 Chinese film. Free.

Continuing Events

Sept. 30-Oct. 3, 8 p.m., and Oct. 4, 2 p.m.

BGSU Theatre, "The Learned Ladies," Eva Marie Saint Theatre. Moliere's witty examination of intellectual pretension and the vicissitudes of love. For ticket information, call 2-2719.

job postings.....

FACULTY
(Unless noted otherwise, all faculty positions are for assistant professors on tenure track.)

Physics and Astronomy. Call Robert Boughton, department chair, 2-2421. Deadline: Jan. 15.

Geography. Call Bruce Smith, 2-7829. Deadline: Feb. 1.

Contact human resources at 372-8421 for information regarding the following:

CLASSIFIED
Deadline for employees to apply is noon Friday (Oct. 2).

Secretary 1 (10-2-1)—Interpersonal Communication. Pay grade 6.

Typist 2 (10-2-2)—Physics and Astronomy. Nine-month, part-time position, also being posted off campus. Pay grade 4.

ADMINISTRATIVE
Manager, Technology Stores (M-079)—College of Technology. Administrative grade level 10. Deadline: Oct. 2.

Psychologist (M-067)—Counseling Center. Ten-month, full-time position. Administrative grade level 17. Deadline: Oct. 5.

Manager (V-052)—Dining Services. Administrative grade level 12. Deadline: Oct. 9 (search extended).

Assistant Director of Residence Life for Business Affairs (M-082)—Office of Residence Life. Administrative grade level 14. Deadline: Oct. 9.

Coordinator, Photo Services (M-083)—Public Relations. Administrative grade level 14. Deadline: Oct. 16.

Major Gift Officer (V-078 and V-081)—Office of Development, two positions. Administrative grade level 16. Deadline: Oct. 26.

Managing Editor (M-069)—Social Philosophy and Policy Center. Administrative grade level 12. Deadline: Jan. 31.

In filling these positions, the University seeks to identify enthusiastic team players committed to serving the institution's faculty, staff and students in a manner consistent with the vision and core values of Bowling Green State University.