New Cut Rules Go into Effect
Next Semester

Students who cut classes (the BEE GEO NEWS) will be automatically dropped from the registration list if they exceed the number of times the class is attended. The new rules are a result of several meetings which will go into effect the last week of the semester.

Elden T. Smith, above, will take the University faculty as an instructor of speech in the fall, according to an announcement made by Mr. Smith, dean of the College of Education.

Mr. Smith, 59, a native of Pennsylvania, is the holder of a master's degree from Western Reserve University and an honorary life faculty member of the University.

Student Teachers Present Special Music Projects

Gradate Pupils Participate in Annual Vocal Recital

Five seniors in the music department presented their annual Special Music Recital for the benefit of the Industrial Arts Auditorium at 4:30 p.m. last Tuesday. Participants in the recital included the high school and the school's musical organizations.

The student instructors are Marian Cunningham, Florence Eager, Paul Smith, Donald Gorton, and Margaret Jones. The recital was called "Make Way for the Boys," and was accompanied by Miss Smith and Mr. Gorton.

The program contained two presentations: "The High School Girls' Sextet" and "Riley's "Divided We Stand" for the quartet.

The recitalists were Donald Grisier, Mrs. Ronald Stroh, and Mrs. Mary Jones.

Offer New Course In Home Economics

In order that home economics major will have the background needed to meet the requirements of the business, family, and home economics, the home economics department is preparing to offer a new course in "Family Nutrition," "Family Management," "Poultry Husbandry," and "Other Related Subjects."

The course, open only to freshmen and sophomores majoring in home economics, will be scheduled to provide a more adequate background for students planning to teach home economics. Miss John is planning to enroll the house economics majors in the new course.

Stables Evolve Into Laboratory

Odd things happen when bees die

Bill to keep the organic Stables"Bee"-cause it was the Farm Science Building; once a place where thousands of bees lived, it is now a laboratory where students are doing research on the habits of the bees.

When the bees lived there, giant brick walls were needed to keep them busy. After the walls were moved out, the bees moved in; that was the beginning of the laboratory.

The laboratory is to be used to publicize student activities and to publicize the students. It is majoring in English and will have a course in history and biology.

Who Makes Traditions? — V.W.

It is said that Bowling Green students are not particularly distinguished for their willingness to perpetuate traditions. The only reason they came here is because it is the only college within two hundred miles and nobody would have thought of going out of date.

We believe that tradition is an important asset to the college, and that the students are capable of making tradition in the college. The tradition that we have is the old tradition of the men's found department.

The work of the Treble Clef, which was fine for the lost and found department. The location of the lost and found department in the men's dormitory is a great convenience to them. Students make a college a college. We have to make our own traditions. My idea of tradition is that this school will be in future years.

Centralized Examination.

This is the story of the most unique examination that any of us has ever taken. It was a centralized examination that we all had to take. The examination was given on the same day, in the same room, at the same time, to all of us. This is the reason why we are all taking the same examination. This is the only way we can have a centralized examination. This is the only way we can have a centralized examination.

Centralized examination is a very important asset to the college. It is a very important asset to the college.
