Proverbial Thumb Takes Two Students 3,315 Miles On Nine-Day Hitch-Hiking Trip

The old adage of "two's company, three's a crowd" is coming true in this story of two students, Elmer Weitz and K. C. Shaw, who have taken a nine-day hitch-hiking trip across the United States.

Elmer Weitz and K. C. Shaw, both sophomores in the College of Arts and Sciences, started their journey on April 1, the first day of spring. They left from the west coast and headed east, crossing the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York, before reaching New York City on April 8.

They then rode to New York City, where they stayed for a few days to visit friends and see the sights. They then continued their journey on April 10, the last day of the month.

They plan to return to Bowling Green by May 15, 1941, to complete their nine-day hitch-hiking trip across the United States.
Letters Show That Students Read The Editorial Page

One thing is certain. Students do read the editorial page of the newspaper. On the whole, they have been comments both fair and foul on the page in recent days. Though some of the letters written to the editors have been long and wordy, there is little doubt that the brain capacity of the editors as well as the professors and students is being exercised. A representative group of the letters written to the students are as follows:

Because the letters have been personal in their subject matter and in their writing style, there is a bit of comment in order that the national and international situation may be realized under the deluge of personal criticism.

‘Aspire To Serve’ Can Be Motto Of Two Schools

The following editorial from the Kent Stater, student publication of Kent State University, would apply equally well to Bowling Green.

While it is flattering to the university to have students come from the distant cities and towns to attend Kent State, those offices which are reorganized to take care of these students are not in the habit of looking for applause of the university student who should not lose sight of the fact that the university is there for the students of Ohio and particularly north-eastern Ohio.

In fancy substance, facilities and general reputation, Kent State is among the leaders of universities in the country. To achieve these goals, the university has made an academic endeavor which follows the effort to develop and maintain the university to the highest educational level.

In the little point in becoming just one more of the dozens of great schools of the country. The competition in the field is great and getting larger and larger established as far as attracting students is concerned. It is an as university to which all north-eastern counties of Ohio send their high school graduates, we can become not only leaders in our state but leaders in the country and that is what the university students of Kent State are trying to do.

Knoch Before You Enter

By GORDON HUMPHREY

Our GOOD FRIEND, Mr. BILL:

Way back in the good old days when the sun was set on Stater, there were a few good articles written. Shakespeare and a couple others, maybe.

These little tidals declined to rule the world. Now, these, though they have always been great, are hardly mentioned.

They have carried the light of sense Christianly and civilly to the darkened arc of the world. The great man of names and these little solids carried civilization to the West by leading them to understanding and freedom over the next seats. Sir William Johnson and his pals seduced the Indians to our guns and gun slingers for collecting American souls. The noble man of the Pen and rich nuns by siding by his side, is the beginning of months and slicing their gates across the states. In 18th England our master against China. England had to have a market.

The English carried several disease to the Polynesian Islands. A German discovered the cure for some of the races.

When England was burning witches at the stake the students of Bowling Green was burning books in Germany.

Art, science, democracy, civilization or any other catch-words have nothing to do with this war. As the English called them, it was a bad era of an age.

The English and Americans fought the Germans in war.

So, Mr. John Bull, who do you think you are?

SOME ACTION AT LAST

On April 19 members of the American Student Union in a meeting at the Sidewalk's Banjo Club, New York, have made their demonstration, making known thereby to the community that the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. are just as far apart as the end of Europe and the war.

The American Student Union, a patriotic international organization was founded in 1917 when students advancing peace and democracy were the only ones who had declared themselves against war.

There was one question which was asked, "Why is the war being fought?" and why, and which is entirely in the war?"

Students demonstrate, placed as they are, and that the square measures a day of anti-German sentiment.

Many of these students are new freshmen in French, German and English, and are still working on the subject for the propaganda's side.

"Green Belt" with Dvouglas Fair and Jean Arthur, Monday.

They had another chance ... or not.

This type of activity is what the public, Mr. Litte, will not stop, since he is a Don American that does not like to see his son die in his war.

...in the last war... (1918) we had to learn the technique used to quell expressions of American entrance into the war to be labeled all those who believed in and fought for peace as so-called "peace agitators" and spine.

As a result, thousands of persons were jailed. If you recall, Mr. John Bull, who do you think you are?

As Mr. Hume writes one word, "(book", the "complementary", republicanism, fascism, laborism, and anomic communalism."—L. H. Hume
