The opinions expressed in the various signal columns of this paper are those of the writers and not that of any group or individual.

Our Doors Are Open... Another year is beginning as another freshman class registers to fill the vacant seats in Bowling Green State University's twenty-seventh freshman class. In all the years the freshman has changed very little. Except, of course, he has learned different externals at various times, but he is still the same character essentially. The idea that education is as good as ever.

For many years the freshman class has been cordial and sincere when early in September of each year, hundreds of new faces appear on campus. We are glad to see you, because in a very short time, almost before you know it, you will be seniors and graduating in the same group. You will be writing the same editorial column and looking forward to another freshman class. And you too shall pass away and be replaced by another generation.

But during your stay here you shall not fail to prove your mark, to do your work, to give, and to strive with those young men and women to make Bowling Green State University the best known, the wholesome institution for higher education.

THE EDITOR

Buy in Bowling Green... To the merchants of Bowling Green the opening of the fall term means only that they must prepare their goods and services to the exact needs of the University students. Experience has taught the merchants of all the needs and desires of Bowling Green students, and now their stores and services reveal that their anticipations of individuality and luxury has been right.

Because Bowling Green is a college town, haberdashers, shoe stores, drug stores, restaurants, cleaning shops, barber shops and other stores have ready collegiate styles and services. At the same time they realize the financial situation of most students and are therefore, very careful to keep prices as reasonable as possible and at the same time all merchandise and services of high quality.

The merchants want to serve the student body and to prove it they have not only stocked in anticipation of its needs but they will take the initiative of advertising in this paper to remind us from time to time what they have for you.

Highlighting The Sidelights

As you may have observed this week, every student enrolled in our college is an individual, each with a different background, experiences, talents, and interests. It would be a waste of time to dwell to think of our college students as all alike. Each one is unique in his own way, with the result that the needs and desires of education toward learning how to do these differs a little from the other. Each day in the classroom gives them experience and helps them to become educated and helping the world to be more wholesome permanently. If that may be achieved, education will have succeeded.

As the University continues to grow, it is also good in see the various departments with their activities covering the fields of education, journalism, business administration, and

Fragments of Thought

By ALBERT L. BOUCHER

Somebody once said that nothing is as old as yesterday's news. Probably quite true. Ten years ago I should have predicted the physical description of the body.

Let's start out with a profession. Conservation is a step toward fascism. I don't believe in fascism. Therefore, I don't believe in conservation! I am no paradoxist, of course. I am merely the student of the great names in the conservation text-book. Trusty world! O. K. Let's try again.

If the government decided that a larger military force was necessary, it would make enlistment attractive through propaganda, competitive pay, special privileges, and the like; and as individuals— who would make the final decision—would be impressed with the inference that the inference would be increased to the point where it required no campaign information. That was yesterday.

Under the Constitution Act it is the nation— not the individuals—who makes the final decision. It relates to the welfare and development and volunteerism for results. That such military force and the like must, however, be so employed that the invasion of this hemisphere than do mid-western the participation of individual careers is recognized and defended. There is no better way to do this than to work at the matter. With voluntary enlistment, it is in the interest of the nation. With conscription, it is for the state.

First year students often wonder what it is that he is talking about in this hemispheric area? Of which area? Of what possible invasion of this hemisphere? Of what possible invasion of this hemisphere by anyone? By whom? Probably quite true. Yet I would ignore this. I would be more interested in the practical interpretation of the philosophy of conservation that he favored. Small construction of the national defense is workable. The state is responsible.

As an individual I don't like to be told what to do. It's bad enough when life or anything like it is being done. I would say that we must say to have certain place for the future which leaves room for all the living. The idea is that we are all going to be together. We are all going to be together.

The situation of the United States is that of a state— of a group of states— which have certain plans for the future which leaves room for all the living. The idea is that we are all going to be together. We are all going to be together.

Although I am opposed to fascism, I believe in the intervention of the state in the economic life of the state. I believe that the state must protect and promote the general welfare in the economic life of the state. I believe that the state must protect and promote the general welfare in the economic life of the state. Dances Fill Social Calendar; Inter-Sorority Set For Nov. 16

When the big dances of the year come around (and there will be plenty of them), BGSU students look forward to the festivities. The first big affair to open this season was the weekend and a week from Saturday when the All-Campus dances arranged by the Three Key Sorority.

Then there is a lot, so far as big social activities are concerned, and some coming ones. Look for the Inter-Sorority Council's inaugural the weekend of October 18 when the Inter-Sorority Prom will be held.

The week following, the Los Amigos society sponsors another all-campus dance. On November 5, Skulls have their annual "Skull Busters" sport dance and the whole U. is invited.

A week later on November 14, the boys and girls don their formal finery for the first time of the year to go to the Inter-Fraternity Formal. This ball, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council members and their dates.

The Varsity Club steps into the spotlight on November 22 to sponsor the All-Campus Kick-Off dance.

The evening after, there is the International Festival put on by the Y. W.C.A. The colorful affair is usually held in the Recreation Hall.

The last big dance before Christmas vacation is the Commoners' All-Campus Winter Dance. Following vacation on January 17, again the Skol provides an all-campus dance which concedes all dances for the first semester.
