Twenty University students are to be elected this week, according to Major J. K. Raney, instructor of aeronautical engineering.

Aeronautical Engineering class will have its first meeting Monday night, with an address by Major Raney.

The aerial training program at the university consists of a primary and advanced portion, the latter being for students who wish to fly for the United States Army Airways Reserve.

The primary stage is given to approximately 30 students at a time and consists of 30 hours of instruction and 20 hours of actual flight training. Major Raney said that there is an initial test of 20 students in the primary stage and that those who pass will be permitted to carry passengers free, from 32 to 40 hours of actual flight time, and 10 students in the secondary stage.

The new students are as follows:

Helen Sturgeon, June Smith and Florence Baird, Darl Gatchell, C. Glenn Swanson, John W. Bunn, Helen Sturgeon, Joe Coale and Darl Gatchell.

Raney said: "The Student Council does not have the right to exclude students from the student body, but if in good faith—not maliciously." He continued.

FRAGMENTS OF THOUGHT
By ALBERT L. BOUCHER

The story is told of the American traveler who after returning from foreign lands saw a group of animals, one of which was a horse. "What about the antelope?" asked the guide. "It made the best impression on us," answered the traveler, "as a symbol of freedom." While this may not have been the answer that the guide was looking for, it does provide a helpful reminder of the value of freedom. The antelope, for example, is often seen as a symbol of freedom and independence, particularly in the wild. Similarly, the horse is often associated with freedom and independence, as seen in its role as a symbol of the American West. In both cases, the animals are depicted as being free to roam and live as they please, without the constraints of captivity. This is a valuable reminder of the importance of freedom and independence, not only for animals, but for humans as well. It is a reminder that, in order to truly appreciate the value of freedom, we must recognize and respect the differences between ourselves and the animals we share our planet with.
