Token of affection

Rona Klein (left), English and women's studies, accepts flowers from Colleen Coughlin, a doctoral student in American culture studies and instructor in women's studies. They were among nearly 50 attendees at a March 31 luncheon for students and their favorite female professors, coaches or mentors. The event capped off Women's History Month activities organized by the Women's Studies Program and the Women's Center.

New SPAR director named

Cynthia A. Price will become the new director of the Office of Sponsored Programs and Research on May 1.

For the past five years, the Perrysburg resident has been director of Research Services at the University of Toledo.

At Bowling Green, she will be responsible for all aspects of the planning, submission and administration of external grants, including government-funded faculty research grants, for the University.

She also is charged with further developing corporate relationships and partnerships to benefit major research projects and sponsored activities.

"Bowling Green is fortunate to have such an experienced and respected administrator of research activities join the University. Her knowledge of technology transfer and corporate relations will be a major benefit to the University," Steven Ballard, vice provost for research and dean of the Graduate College, said.

Price has more than 16 years of research funding experience, including more than 11 years as a grants administrator at the University of Toledo before accepting the position of director in 1994.

She is a founding member of the Ohio chapter of the Society of Research Administrators and serves as chair of its membership committee.

In 1991, she received Toledo's Outstanding University Woman Award.

A 1970 graduate of Heidelberg College, Price earned her master's and doctoral degrees from Ohio University and the University of Toledo, respectively.

She previously taught at Ohio University, the universities of Findlay and Toledo, and at Owens Community College.

Technology dean candidates to visit campus

The three finalists for the position of dean of the College of Technology will be on campus in the coming weeks for two-and-a-half-day visits.

In addition to interviews with numerous campus groups and individuals, including undergraduate and graduate students, each candidate will interview by phone with John Folkins, incoming provost and vice president for academic affairs.

Open forums have been scheduled for each candidate to make a short presentation on "The Future of Technology: Implications for Higher Education, Business and Society," and then answer questions from the audience. All three forums will be held in the Pallister Conference Room of Jerome Library.
