Ribeau to offer look at the 'BiG Picture'

President Sidney Ribeau will deliver his Opening Day address on Friday (Aug. 25), focusing on "Seeing the BiG Picture in 2004: Meeting the Challenges and Realizing the Possibilities." The president is taking this moment, between the successful completion of his initial five years and the advent of a new four-year term, to share his vision for building Bowling Green State University's future.

The program will highlight BGSU's past, present and future. As the leader of the institutional journey to become the premier learning community in Ohio and one of the best in the nation, Ribeau will consider where the University has been (1995), reflect on its current accomplishments (2000), and make some projections for the year 2004. The three benchmark years coincide with the beginning of his first term, the end of his first term and the end of his second term, respectively.

These three benchmarks will provide a reference over the next four years for University and community members to see that the University has met the challenges and realized the possibilities before it.

The president will speak on five key areas: engaged learners, vibrant technologies, premier discoveries, principled graduates and supportive communities. In closing, he will discuss achieving the University's vision for the future.

Prior to the program there will be time for coffee and fellowship beginning at 9:30 a.m. in 101 Olscamp Hall. The program will begin at 10 a.m.

Catalog gives BGSU high marks

BGSU is a "hot" and "trendy" university that gives students good value for their investment. That's according to a national survey of high school guidance counselors which appears in the "Kaplan/Newsweek College Catalog 2001."

The catalog provides admissions information on more than 1,100 colleges and universities across the country.

Counselors surveyed say Bowling Green is popular with students because of its quality of education, tradition and ties to alumni. Other trendy institutions cited include Arizona State, the University of Colorado, New York University, Ohio State, Stanford, the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin.

The counselors describe BGSU as "academically competitive" because of its reputation and selectivity. The catalog also lists BGSU as one of 33 colleges and universities considered a "best value" when the caliber of the education offered is compared to cost.

in brief

Help make campus parking easier

Stacie Enriquez, manager of the University's parking and traffic division, has two reminders for the campus community:

- Campus departments should notify Parking and Traffic of any special events they are hosting which will bring additional vehicles to campus. This will help the division plan for the visitors and prevent parking problems.

- The McFall Center lot is reserved for admissions visitors Monday-Friday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 7 a.m. till noon. The campus community is asked to avoid using the lot in order to make parking easier for prospective students and their families.

Welcome Week kicks off new year

This year's fall Welcome Week events will take place from Aug. 26-Sept. 2.

On Sunday (Aug. 27), freshman and transfer students will be welcomed with a picnic after the New Student Convocation. The picnic will be held from 5-6:30 p.m. in the green space near Anderson Arena.

Volunteers are still needed to assist in the set-up, serving and closing down of the event, beginning at 2 p.m. and finishing at 8:30 p.m. Volunteers are asked to serve one-and-a-half to two-hour shifts.

Anyone wishing to take the opportunity to show support for the University's new students should call Donna Johnson, dining services, at 2-2892.

A complete schedule of Welcome Week events can be viewed at www.bgsu.edu/offices/student_affairs/O-Reg/welcomeweek.html.

Caregivers seminar set for next month

The BGSU psychology department in September will offer a seminar for family members caring for elderly relatives.

Topics covered will include stress management, communication, legal resources, home and institutional health care, balancing work and caregiving, and dealing with grief and with the changing roles of parent and child.

The four-session, interactive seminar will be held on Wednesday evenings (Sept. 6, 13, 20 and 27) and costs $5 for materials. For more information, contact Erin Emery at 2-2540 or at emerye@bgnet.bgsu.edu.

the attention this type of recognition provides," said Gary Swegan, interim director of admissions. "It validates the tremendous effort the entire University community has made to establish Bowling Green as the premier learning community in Ohio."

Swegan added these types of guidebooks are particularly useful to recruiting efforts because families who live outside Ohio often learn about BGSU through consulting them.

Market Measurement, a national market research firm, conducted a random sample survey of U.S. public, private and Catholic high school guidance counselors to gather data for the Kaplan/Newsweek catalog. Data from the telephone survey were weighed to match the percentages of schools in each region of the country, according to the publisher.

The 1,400-page catalog, which accepts no advertising from the colleges and universities profiled, began arriving in bookstores last week.
