The Situation In North Asia Must Be Studied Both Politically And Militarily

By STEVE STAVREIDIS

We have been hearing a great deal of appeasement as to when Russia will attack Japan, and many of the early predictions just now look a little less astoundingly unrealistic. However, before we can come to any conclusions, we must get the facts and determine the situation from both a military and a political point of view.

April On The Campus Is

Still "That Certain Thing"

by PAT SWEETWATER

When spring rolls around each year, we stop a minute (probably not more than one minute) to reflect on the shortcomings of the season. Why is spring not a new beginning? Why doesn't it bring with it a new lease on life? Why does it seem to lack the enthusiasm of the other seasons?

Despite these questions, spring is still "that certain thing" that we all look forward to. It brings with it a sense of renewal and optimism, and we can't help but feel uplifted.
