WBGTU-TV celebrates 20 years of broadcasting

WBGTU-TV is celebrating its 20th anniversary.

The station, which opened an open house on Friday, Feb. 10, went on the air as Channel 29 on March 14, 1984. The station's new quarters are located at 1300 Wildwood Avenue in the University Heights.

The station's manager, David L. Haldeman, noted that public television has to offer, the station provides a special closed circuit channel of its own.

According to Haldeman, the university has also provided hands-on experience for students and graduate students in the new field.

To commemorate its 20th anniversary, WBGTU has produced a 20-year history of the station which will be published as a program guide, "In Perspective," in March.

The station's history will be open for public viewing in the new facility.

During the tape Dr. Piper discusses stress on the job, describes a workshop for determining an individual's level of stress and suggests ways of distinguishing some of those techniques. The tape runs 30 minutes.

To view the tape, contact the space assignments office of the University. For more information, view the tape at their February meeting and have it reviewed by all areas.

What about the women?

Letters help solve historical puzzle

In 1984 Family Covey Angell, a mother and the wife of a young lawyer, committed suicide after the birth of her third child.

The condition, called anorexia nervosa, was first reported by a Russian psychiatrist in 1869.

Dr. Eakin, a resident in communications, said the new law will help public school officials. He also noted that more women will be called upon to fill the roles of daughters, sisters, wives, mothers, and daughters, in the family. The law also made it easier for women to become more involved in their families and society.

The impact of the new law on public school officials was also noted during discussion that the law really was "the law of the poor woman," as was the law of the poor man.

President Daniel Heisler, educational relations commissioner, said the new law will help public school officials.

In the recent study, women viewed the need for a role for women in their families as very threatening, and they frequently expressed their desire to participate in their family's roles.

Among the findings were that women viewed the need for a role for women in their families.

Faculty Senate

Faculty Senate sponsored an Early Retirement Incentive Plan for university employees this spring. The plan was recommended by the Faculty Welfare Committee and was approved by the university's Board of Trustees. The plan is designed to provide an incentive to retire and to assist faculty members in planning for retirement. The plan is effective for the fiscal year 1985-1986 and will be implemented in the fall of 1985.

Supplemental

University employees who have reached retirement age or who have served for a total of 20 years will be eligible for the plan. The plan will provide a lump sum of $5,000, plus an additional amount based on years of service. The additional amount will range from $1,000 to $5,000, depending on the number of years of service.

The plan will also provide a lump sum of $10,000 for employees who have served for a total of 30 years. These employees will also receive an additional amount based on years of service, ranging from $1,000 to $5,000.

The plan will be available to employees who retire on or after January 1, 1986. Employees who retire before this date will not be eligible for the plan.

Collective bargaining legislation topic of Tuesday presentation

Dr. Olscamp, the university's labor relations director, will present a report on the status of the university's new collective bargaining agreement. The agreement, which is expected to be signed in the near future, will cover issues such as wages, hours, and working conditions. The report will be presented during the Tuesday morning session of the Faculty Senate meeting.

Letters help solve historical puzzle

As an example of how letters can help solve historical puzzles, Dr. Williamson-Ige shared a letter written by a woman in 1860. The letter provides valuable insights into the historical context of the time period and helps to clarify a number of historical events.

College of Education responds to reports

The College of Education has responded to recent reports about the quality of the education program. The college is committed to improving the program and is working to address any concerns that have been raised.

STRESS MANAGEMENT TAPE AVAILABLE

A stress management tape is available to faculty and staff at the university. The tape is designed to help individuals manage stress and improve their overall well-being. It is available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Classified Staff Advisory Committee

The need for work incentives among classified employees was discussed at the Feb. 15 meeting of the Classified Staff Advisory Committee.

A memorandum signed by eight classified staff was received by UAO on that matter. The employees voiced concern about the lack of incentives for classified staff. A copy of the memo will be sent to Richard Rehmier, personnel supervisor, and Karl Vogt, vice president for operations.

Lois Howe, plant operations and maintenance, reported that the CSAC subcommittee on employee incentives has suggested that employees receive financial payment for jobs well done or for cost-saving suggestions that are successfully implemented. It was also noted that any classified staff with suggestions about an incentive program should contact Howe or any member of the CSAC with their ideas. Also discussed was the possibility of mailing a survey to all classified staff which would determine what kind of incentives employees would prefer.

It was announced during the meeting that an operations Overview Committee will review the Office of Personnel Support Services. That committee will be headed by Ingram Mottl, management support services, and will include three members of the CSAC.

Also discussed was the possibility of having classified staff longevity pay issued in one check annually rather than in paychecks throughout the year.

Questions were also raised about qualified staff with fewer than five years of service who are receiving dependent fee waivers. A memo from a classified staff member raised the question will be sent to Dr. Vogt.

The effect of new legislation which prohibits University personnel from collecting unemployment benefits when they are furloughed during semester breaks and the summer session also was discussed. A special CSAC meeting has been scheduled at 2 p.m. Wednesday (Feb. 28) in 205 Education Bldg. It was noted that this legislation affects both the impact of that legislation and would have an impact on the effect of incentives.

A motion was made to continue University "summer hours" (40 hours of work) through September and the summer of 1984. The CSAC will meet and vote on that recommendation with Dr. Vogt.

It was announced that the new performance evaluation form instituted by the personnel office. Members expressed satisfaction with the form, which they said is more flexible and personal and, endorsed its implementation within the University.

Irene Farr, library, was appointed to investigate what kinds of library privileges are available to classified staff and how those privileges can be extended to faculty and administrative staff.

It was announced that Jim Harris, athletics, will speak on the Falcon Club at the next Brown Bag Luncheon at noon Wednesday, March 7, in the Northeast Commons.

Advisory committee has new members
Two new members have been elected to the Classified Staff Advisory Committee: Sherry Biggs, Commons dining hall, has been elected to represent the student affairs area. She may be reached at 372-2563. Linda Glomacki, journalism, will represent the student affairs area. She may be reached at 372-2076. Other members can contact CSAC members with any concerns throughout the year.
