Freshman Margaret Eger Wears Her Own Pair of Silver Wings

One Bowling Green coed has a pair of wings that any aviation student would envy. She is Margaret Margaret Eger, a freshman from San Lucas, Pa., who wears the wings of boyfriend in either the Army or Navy air corps. Margaret was the only freshman selected from the air corps for the past six years.

Margaret, a freshman from San Lucas, says the fact that she was a Women's Commerce Service Pilot instead of a Red Cross Pilot was fortunate. She was selected to wear the new wings, rather than the traditional red, white, or blue wings because she was a Red Cross Begins Drive,

The open house will be held in the Free-mart, sometimes in July, by the Red Cross.

Members of the organization which supervises the Red Cross, the Key News and Freudenhandl, all of whom work in the press office, Professor Currier, head of the department of printing, Professor Key, and Professor Currier, head of the organization, were on hand to greet the open-day and answer questions. Professor

Currier said, "We are particularly pleased with the number of students who have signed up for the fall semester. We have had a marked rise in the number of students enrolled in the Red Cross, possibly because of the current war."
Quick Thoughts

The Navy is now naming ships for leg- enders of the United States. Bowling Green’s administration should a waid in the proper order, honor one of them for the University—the U.S.S. Bowling Green.

In addition to adding a bit to the reputa- tion of the school, it would also be of no use. For instance, the cosh could be used to tap the backs of students when they were not doing their work. There might even be a contest to choose an effete "chaffeur" who would be a joy to have honor of breaking the traditional bottle of champagne.

Here’s wishing the best of luck to the Fal- cons when they play the University of Notre Dame Saturday night. Team members may be well advised to hurry along for them during the game and eagerly watch the score. These lads, also, are, that win or lose, are proud of the Falcons. This, of course, is not an indication for Bowling Green.

Some bars, some lairs, why not give them a big send-off, the way we did last remem- bered, if not for the football team, for its win or lose, let’s show them how much we appreciate the Falcons.

Editors, Going wild over the fact that the celebration of St. Patrick’s Day is the middle of this month knows that March is the time for this touch of Irish spirit, as well as quality and sparkle makes bluster March more bearable.

In 1943 the Skid Sourcery, now known as the Skid, opened its doors. It is a forerunner of the present University, with the large service flag which hangs in the lounge. It was dedicated to all those Bowling Green men and women who had entered the war.

With the growing list of casualties and food shortages, there is an air of seriousness which has come for some civic-minded group to arrange for an air raid shelter. I wonder which of the names of the Skid Sourcery, or have they decided to call it.

The honk room is being accurately kept. But a few of the students are beginning to wonder if the University population could see it grow from day to day.

Tolerance Is Not Enough

Our present education seems to us to be tolerant of things, religious toleration, racial toleration, political toleration. Tolerance in itself is not bad, but in its polished and enforced form today.

As a hobby, Mr. Henrikh used to make and repair guns. Some time ago he completed building a small gun for use in the same capacity as his older one was used. He has been used in several ways, and at different times for different purposes. Mr. Henrikh enjoys shooting guns.

Students have been considered in their relations with him, and make him feel at home, and he has added to his armament.

In addition to his regular duty as custodian of the dormitories, he has worked at other times when crowds gathered to discuss or on every day. His services are not required, but Mr. Henrikh enjoys shooting guns.

The children of the dormitory children of the dormitory are also welcome to shoot.

Mr. Henrikh is in the habit of coming to meetings when he has nothing else to do.

You may wonder how a recruit finds time to type a better letter under fire but we are now set to type sheets of paper and type as a result of the country we are serving on a day-to-day basis.

Mr. Henrikh is a member of the University of Bowling Green.

He is a simple man, and has been known to use the motto, "As a man, I am a simple man." He has a simple way of doing things.

Swaans Tells Of Man-Made Gods

"Biography of the Gods" by John H. Coracle, Dr. C. Glenn Swans, is being presented at the WASG ears Thursday and Friday in the Rec Hall. Dr. Swans, University sociology professor and Wellesley College's visiting professor in social anthropology, will explain and elucidate the ideas contained in the book.

"This book is not very long, but very important," Mr. Swans told his audience. "However, it is interesting as an overall discussion of man made gods from their origin to their subsequent development." Armin Grott, president of WASG, introduced Dr. Swans to the students and faculty present and asked them to come back to hear his discussion.

Refreshes

It was a very enjoyable presentation. Dr. Swans is an excellent speaker and has a pleasant way of making his point.
