Easterly says he'll 'call it quits' after 25 years as Science Day chair

William Easterly has two loves — science and young people. And, he loves to encourage young people's interest in science.

For the past 25 years he has done just that through his involvement with the annual Northwest Ohio District Science Day competition on campus. But when he shepherded some 450 students and their science projects through the competition this year, it was for the last time, he says.

"Dr. Easterly is ending his formal involvement with the Science Day program because he believes it is time for someone else to take his place. "I came to Bowling Green State University in 1957 and got interested in it," he said, "and the previous chairman (Gerald Acker) asked me to do it. ... twisted my arm, so to speak."

'Great Black Swamp' wins program award

A WBGU-TV production, "The Story of the Great Black Swamp," has won an award from the Central Educational Network. The station received a 1984 Program Award of Excellence in the category of local/state public affairs.

The 26-minute, 20-second film is a folkloric documentary about the settling of northwest Ohio, also won two awards in the 1983 Ohio OEBIE competition for public television stations.

Joseph L. Arpad, English, wrote the script and was the executive producer. Susan Arpad, women's studies, was the project director, and Paul Lopez, production manager of WBGU-TV, was the producer/director.

Program highlights of the program are available by sending a check or money order for $3 to Black Swamp Transcript, WBGU-TV, Bowling Green, Ohio 43403.

Education program is nation's third largest

Bowling Green's teacher-education program is the third largest undergraduate program in the United States, according to the 1984 statistical survey conducted by the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education.

The survey of 725 AACTE member institutions was based upon the number of graduates during the 1982-83 academic year. Bowling Green's third-place standing reflects the number of graduates earning bachelor's degrees.

Last year the College of Education had 724 bachelor's degree recipients who were eligible to apply for initial teacher certification in Ohio. The college also prepared an additional 250 persons through its programs leading to master's, specialist and doctoral degrees.

With 974 graduates at both the graduate and undergraduate levels in 1982-83, Bowling Green ranked 15th in the total number of persons prepared for teaching and other education-related positions.

Faculty and staff to star in 'Fiddler'

Faculty and staff are among those cast in the community musical theater production "Fiddler on the Roof" to be staged July 13-14 and 16-17 on campus.

All performances begin at 8 p.m. in Kobacker Hall of the Moore Musical Arts Center. The musical is produced under the auspices of the University Theatre and the College of Musical Arts.

Tickets are on sale at the Moore Musical Arts Center box office, open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on performance dates. Tickets can also be reserved by calling 372-4117. Tickets are $7 for adults, $5 for students and senior citizens may purchase tickets for $5 and $3.

Thomas L. Kinser, an assistant professor who has appeared in every Bowling Green summer community musical since 1979, has been cast as Tevye, the poor but hard-working dairyman who struggles to earn a living for his wife and five spirited daughters while upholding the traditions of his Jewish religion and community in Czarist Russia.

Other faculty and staff cast in the production include Ed O'Donnell, food operations, and Melvin Hyman, speech communication.

Center publishes second journal issue

The second issue of Social Philosophy and Policy, the journal of the Social Philosophy and Policy Center, has just been published.

Entitled "Human Rights," the current issue contains 13 scholarly papers, most of which were presented at the conference on human rights sponsored by the center with a grant from The Rockefeller Foundation.

Ellen Franklin Paul, political science, edits the journal, which is published by Basil Blackwell of Oxford, England, the world's leading producer of philosophical materials to take a lead in the English-speaking world.

The journal is being distributed to approximately 5000 philosophers and their associates according to Dr. Paul, who said, "For a first year journal, we are told the acceptance thus far is astounding."

"Tinto: Institutions in Social Philosophy and Policy" was published in October 1983, and the third issue is expected to be released in October of this year.

Library collections to close for move

Two collections in the Jerome Library will be moved this summer, resulting in the temporary closing of some library sections.

The Government Documents collection, currently housed on the fourth floor, will be moved to the first floor near the Map Library. The Popular Culture Library, now housed on the first floor, will be moved to the fourth floor.

The move will increase the amount of space available for both collections and logically position the government documents near the maps collection. To facilitate the move, both the Government Documents and Popular Culture collections will be closed to library patrons from July 30 to Aug. 30. Anyone needing to access information from the collections during that time should complete an Information Request Form at the reference desk on the first floor. Every attempt will be made to fill requests within 24 hours.

Miller leaves BG to study in Oregon

Nancy L. Miller, director of independent studies and special programs in the Center for Educational Options, will leave the University July 13 to pursue a doctorate in anthropology at the University of Oregon in Eugene.

She and her husband Ross, director of the United Christian Fellowship the past 14 years, will reside in Eugene, where Rev. Miller has been assigned to a United Methodist parish.

Miller, who joined the Bowling Green staff in 1973 as an administrative specialist in the Environmental Studies Center, has directed independent studies and special programs on campus through the University Division of General Studies and the Center for Educational Options since 1975. In that position she has coordinated such programs as the National Student Exchange, Washington Center Internship, Jazz Internship, State Exchange, High School College Credit Program, Junior Scholar's Program and Advanced Placement.

She holds both bachelor's and master's degrees in geology from Boston University.
