Equipment purchases top $1 million in 3 years

The department of chemistry has chosen the American Chemical Society to be the central storage and processing facility for its chemistry-related Project Bookshelves. The project is designed to provide a means for individuals and organizations in the United States to donate books and back issues of journals to the field of chemistry to colleges and the U.S. and in developing countries which need such assistance to improve their programs in chemistry. Dale Cutler, below, is coordinating the project. Books are cataloged on computer, and stored until requested by developing institutions. Cutler said the first book release will probably be shipped to a recipient institution sometime this summer. Project Bookshelves is currently authorized for three years and is the only project of its kind on a national scale in the country.

Nominations, applications sought for University relations post

The VPUR will be responsible for public relations, publications, WBGU-TV and WNYO-FM, special events, community relations, development and other activities. The position reports to the President, Doug. Dr. Ford Miller, philosophy, has been the key in selecting the Committee for this appointment. The committee consists of vice presidents for finance, governance, student relations, and nominations for the position.

Dr. Miller said the new position will play a major role in the university’s fundraising activities, including the arts and humanities. The university has spent $1.1 million on public relations in the past three years.

Equipment improvements from state funds

The past three years have been an important period for the University of Findlay. There has been a concerted effort at the university to upgrade the "tools of instruction" in the sciences, including instruments, professional journals, computer software, and microcomputer hardware and software.

Dr. Michael J. Norwood, vice president for academic affairs, said, "The equipment program is one of the most important and aggressive programs that we have at the university."

Another $2 million in state funds also will be invested in the expansion of the current program. The university’s "equipment program," vice president for academic affairs, said, "is designed to support an emerging instructional environment at the university."

Student Employment have received written comments

The College of Health and Community Services is to receive $191,000 for items ranging from a computer lab and software packages to audiovisual equipment and units to equip a microcomputer laboratory.

The School of Technology is to receive more than $800,000 for equipment, much of it computer-related, to implement its three-year plan of enhancements to the Counseling and Career Services Center, the Office of Campus Life, and the School of Music. The funding will be used to buy equipment for a less visible nature, the library for instructional purposes and the Office of Financial Aid and Student Services.

DEC awards grant for research computer

Dr. Richard Harbou, associate vice president for academic affairs, said, "The equipment is designed to play a pivotal role in a new instructional environment at the university."
Policy center names research fellow

The University of Toronto has named historian Stephen Van Den Berghe, a member of the Philosophy Department at the University of California, Berkeley, a research fellow at the University's Center for Russian and East European Studies.

University community

The University of Toronto is a public university located in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. It is one of the largest research universities in the world and is renowned for its academic excellence and commitment to teaching and research.

Faculty Senate

A series of recommendations on governance and administration at the University of Toronto Senate at its April meeting.

Faculty, staff, and students are opposed to the recommendation that funds should be directed to areas that are not currently supported by the Senate. The recommendation proposes that the Senate appoint a committee to review the allocation of funds and make recommendations for future years.

Faculty, staff, and students are also concerned about the possibility of a new fee being introduced to fund the recommendation. The Senate is expected to debate this issue at its next meeting.

University relations

At the same time the University is seeking to strengthen its relationships with other academic institutions, a recent search for a new vice president for development in the university's external relations office has been completed. The assistant vice president will be responsible for raising funds through a variety of fundraising activities, including solicitation of gifts and bequests, planned giving, and special events.

Computer Bits

Computers for rent

The University of Toronto has a variety of computers available for rent to students and faculty. Renting a computer can be a cost-effective way to access the latest technology without the financial burden of purchasing a new device. The variety of computers available includes desktops, laptops, tablets, and smartphones.

WBGU-TV exceeds "Festival" goal

The "Festival" goal is a fundraising initiative that aims to raise funds for the purchase of new equipment for WBGU-TV, the University's campus television station. The goal was set at $25,000, and the campaign has already surpassed this target, raising over $30,000. The additional funds will be used to purchase new equipment, such as cameras, microphones, and editing software.

Beethoven and Brahms

The University of Toronto is hosting a series of events in honor of the bicentennials of Beethoven and Brahms, two of the most celebrated composers of the 19th century. The events include concerts, lectures, and exhibitions, and are open to the public.

Scott Hamilton to receive award

Scott Hamilton, a former Olympic ice dancer, will receive the "Distinguished Service Award" from the University of Toronto's Faculty of Music. The award recognizes individuals who have made significant contributions to the field of music or have served the university in significant ways.

Policy center names research fellow

The University of the South has announced that the Modern Analytic philosophy movement has appointed a Research Fellow in the Social Philosophy Center. The position is funded by a grant from the Ford Foundation, which will support the fellow's work in the spring of 1989. The fellow, a faculty member at a major university, will be a visiting scholar at the Center for the duration of the grant.

Faculty Senate

A series of recommendations on student conduct and arbitration process at Bowling Green State University have been approved by the Faculty Senate at its April meeting.

The recommendations were adopted by the Senate in two weeks of discussions following a meeting with the president of the university. During the meeting, the president expressed the need for a new process to deal with student conduct issues.

The recommendations included a call for the establishment of a Student Conduct Committee, which would be responsible for determining whether a student should be subject to an arbitration process. The committee would be composed of faculty members and would be chaired by the dean of students.

The recommendations also called for the creation of a Student Conduct Code, which would outline the behaviors that would be considered violations of the code and the penalties that would be applied.

Faculty Senate members voted to approve the recommendations by a margin of 15-10.

Faculty Senate chairperson, looking at the recommendations, said, "These recommendations are a significant step forward in the process of establishing a fair and effective system for dealing with student conduct issues."

University relations

At the same time the University of the South is expanding its research and development functions, it is also streamlining its administrative staff.

The assistant vice president for research, who is responsible for directing research and development activities, has been named. The new position will be filled by an experienced administrator who has a minimum of five years' experience in academic administration.

The position will be responsible for overseeing the research and development activities of the university, including the coordination of research grants and contracts, the development of new research initiatives, and the promotion of research and development partnerships.

Search underway for assat. vp. development

University relations has announced that the assistant vice president for development will be replaced by a new position, the associate vice president for development.

The new position will be responsible for overseeing the fundraising efforts of the university, including the solicitation of major gifts, the management of endowed funds, and the development of new fundraising initiatives.

Tornado season arrives. A new way of alerting the campus community to spring weather emergencies has been implemented by the department of public safety.

When a tornado watch or severe storm warning is issued by the National Weather Service, a siren will sound on campus between 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Public safety will initiate calls to all building positions who will be asked to begin chains of telephone calls within their respective buildings. The issuance of a "storm watch" means only that conditions for severe weather exist.

In the event of a tornado warning, which indicates that a tornado has actually been sighted, sirens will sound and personnel should respond according to instructions which are posted in all buildings.

Between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m., the National Weather Service will be on campus, including the residence halls. Personnel in the Residence Hall Reception Centers, for example, will be notified. Residence halls and residence units.
