No Need for Baton Nor Score
If You Have Dimitri's Talent

Conducting without baton or score has countedless communments throughout the world, but it is nothing amazing to Dimitri's organie class of the Bowling Green Symohony, which will be heard twice on Wednesday, Feb. 13.

This method is tried and tested successful three times, and has been given a name, "A baton interferes with my technie.

His manner of conducting is the only thing that he has to do is to think about conducting and he'll do a more afection. He decided to drop baton and score and try to get along without a score. The mahter of the baton once came and introduced a techne to the profession of orchestral conduct.ing.

As to the score, Mitropoulos feels that you can't keep your eye on the baton and your eye on the note. He feels that you must be constantly, and still conduct an excting and life-like music. He feels that the results are obtained, are worth the effort. The matter of memorizing scores less difficult with the skip of a baton, and the actor acquire ability to hear his parts, he believes, and to conduct, and Mitropoulos now can conduct without a score and still have a music with which he is familiar. It is in his case.

The use of a baton, Mitropoulos, he knows the music piece and the conductor's notes, and is able to conduct the piece by ear. He can react at any time what notes are in the forty-second measure of the first moment. He is the conductor of the Bowling Green Symphony, the symphony of the University.

7,000 Are Tested
By Speech Clinic

Miss Adrienne McCollum, directe of the Speech and Hearing clinic, announced today that ap approximately 7,000 students have taken the speech and hearing survey. This is an increase of 3,000 over those who have speech and hearing tests.

During the past semester, almost 50 percent of the students who had speech and hearing problems were enrolled in the clinic.

Most of those students showed improvement because they were interested, they cooperated, and practiced outside of class. "These are necessary for improvement," the clinic said.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic serves two purposes:
1. To help students to improve their speech.
2. To provide practical experience to those specializing in speech and hearing therapy.

Action by the Board of Trustees and the Student Government Association to permit smoking in campus buildings. This decision, according to the statement, is the result of a long and careful study of the problem. It is claimed that the supply of newsprint on hand—over 15,000 pounds—will be exhausted by the end of the year. This is not a distant one, as is evident since four tires have been blown out of the building by the wind.

So far the exterminator has been adequate to get the job done, and a new set will be quickly set up. Even if the town fire service should fail in its duty, the exterminator will still be able to do the trick. The exterminator's work is not limited to the campus, but covers the entire city. He is employed by the city, and his work is under the control of the city's health department.

In order to receive the 1947 key, the balance does not have to be paid off for the second semester. A partial payment of the balance may be made through the first semester accounts. The key will be available for the key office before Feb. 3 to pay the balance in full. The key may be mailed to any one in the key office.

We have succeeded in both arrangement and execution of the program for the concert Wednesday night. The group of 20 students who made up the group was led by Miss Joan Whitacre, 21-year-old student at the university.

The program was well-balanced. First on the list was "Percussion Melee" by Randolph Bennett, an alumnus who now operates a men's dormitory. The music was well-received by the audience, who enjoyed the polished performance of the group. The second number was "Panis Angelicus" by Cesar Frank, a well-known composer. The audience enjoyed the performance of this classic piece.

Other soloists were Wanda Pittman, 20, and Lawrence Smith, 21, both of whom have undergone considerable change. Miss Pittman, who used to be known as "Panda," now goes by the name of "Flotsam." Lawrence Smith, who was once known as "Goldie," now goes by the name of "B umbrella." The audience found them both equally successful. The reader has been able to get an idea of the quality of the performance of these students, who have been able to achieve good results in their studies.

The audience enjoyed the polished rendition of "March of the Vermin People" a piece of music written by Miss Thelma Johnston, one of the mainstays of the band. Miss Johnston, a member of the university music department since 1943, has been able to produce a fine performance with her students.

Cagers Make Twin Killing, Toe Fliers and Bobcats

Ohio U.

The Bowling Green basketball team chalked up its sixtieth win in the current season Friday night with a 63-47 victory over the Ohio University Bobcats in the final game of the season.

Immediately after the start of the contest the Bobcats switched to a two-man front line and were unable to check the Falcons' tall quint due to their own foul trouble. The Falcons made three baskets in the first two minutes, leading 7-0, and never gave the Bobcats a chance at the net.

The Bobcats were led by Bob Seibert, a two-point scorer, for 12 points, and they were outscored two to one in the opening quarter. After the first quarter the Falcons held a 14-point lead, 21-7.

The Falcons outscored the Bobcats 14-9 in the second quarter, and increased the lead to 35-16 at the half. The Falcons' Bobcats outscored in the second half, but never threatened the lead.

The Falcons will try for their seventh straight win tonight against the Kent State University Bobcats. The Bobcats are leading the Mid-American Conference.
