"Concepts in Biochemistry," which emphasizes the teaching of biochemistry to students in the basic sciences, will be a regular feature of the column. Scovell said the new column will allow him to bring more of the basic science to students who are not currently studying biochemistry. The new column will focus on the basic concepts of biochemistry and their applications to the health sciences.

Scovell said the new column will be more closely tied to the research being done at Ohio State University and will be more closely integrated with the teaching of biochemistry.

"I'm really excited about this new column," Scovell said. "It will provide a valuable resource for educators and students alike."

Scovell also noted that the new column will be more accessible to a broader audience. The column will be published online, allowing readers to access it from anywhere in the world.

In Brief

Nathan will direct gallery

Jasmine has named Nathan as director of the University's Fine Arts Gallery. Nathan will begin his new role this summer.

Nathan has extensive experience in the arts, having served as director of the Columbus Museum of Art and the Toledo Museum of Art. He is currently the director of the Fort Worth Art Museum in Texas.

Nathan will be responsible for overseeing all aspects of the University's Fine Arts Gallery, including exhibitions, public programs, and community outreach.

The gallery will be renamed the "Nathan Gallery," in honor of the new director.

Code change affects fees

Some students will notice changes in the fees they pay for courses in the coming academic year. These changes will affect students in all categories, including in-state and out-of-state students, undergraduate and graduate students.

The changes, which are part of a broader effort to improve the cost-effectiveness of education at the University, will go into effect next month.

The changes include:

- A decrease in the cost of tuition for in-state students.
- An increase in the cost of tuition for out-of-state students.
- A decrease in the cost of fees for graduate students.
- An increase in the cost of fees for undergraduate students.

The changes will affect students in all colleges and schools at the University.

"These changes will help us to better align our costs with our resources," the University's provost said. "We are committed to providing a high-quality education at an affordable price."
Commentary

To The Editor: The story in the Dec. 9 issue of the Monitor summarizes a Faculty Senate adoption of a Faculty Benefits Benevolence Fund (FFBF). The FFBF is a fund created by the Faculty Senate in the 1960s to provide aid to faculty with special needs. The fund is used to assist with emergency financial needs, medical expenses, and other unforeseen circumstances. Contributions to the fund are voluntary and are tax-deductible.

The FFBF is a valuable resource for our faculty and is an important part of our community. We encourage all members of our faculty to consider making a donation to the fund.

Sincerely, [Your Name]

In Brief

Nathan will direct gallery

J. Nathan will have been appointed director of the University Art Galleries, effective May 1, 1986, according to a recent announcement. Nathan will be responsible for the supervision of the University Art Galleries, including the planning and implementation of exhibitions, educational programs, and other activities. He will also be responsible for the development and implementation of programs related to the promotion and dissemination of art.

Code change affects fees

Some employees will notice changes in their paycheck this month because the university has made a code change affecting fees. The code change has resulted in a reduction of fees for some employees, while others will see an increase. The purpose of the code change is to ensure that all employees are correctly classified and that their fees are accurately calculated.

SRC hosts open house

The Student Recreation Center and the Office of Student Affairs will host an open house for faculty and staff and their families on Thursday, Dec. 19, from 5-8 p.m.

Mary Edmonds, vice president for student affairs, said the event is "a nice way of saying thank you to the University for its support of the Student Recreation Center. It is also one way for Student Affairs and other areas of the campus community to mix."

People attending the open house should come dressed for activity. Free activities include instruction in nautilus training, water aerobics, wallball, aerobics and swimming. Refreshments will be served beginning at 8 p.m and Santa Claus is scheduled to make an appearance.
