Summer Show Tryouts Begin June 23rd

Tryouts for "George Washington Slept Here," the summer University play, will be held in the Main auditorium, Monday, June 23, from 7 to 9 p.m., Prof. Elden T. Smith, head of the speech department, announced today.

The play, which is written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, will be presented July 30 and 31.

There are nine male roles and eight for women. Parts range from a 12-year-old boy to a 70-year-old man.

The comedy tells the story of Newton Fuller who decides to attend. After buying the farm, much against his acid-tongued wife's will, he discovers his neighbor owns the water and the road.

Literally trapped on his own property, things are further complicated by the arrival of a rich uncle. The play then follows through to a riotous merry chase.

Dr. Poult will give the address of welcome at the all-campus interdenominational religious program, which will include Governor Thomas J. Herbert, Senator Roscoe R. An open discussion period has been announced Thursday afternoon when anyone can give his criticisms of existing practices, regulations, or legislation.

Over 500 pilots, instructors, airport managers, and other persons interested in different phases of aviation are expected to attend.

This marks an increase of 500 students over last summer's enrollment of 1094 and makes this year's summer session the largest on record.

The first all-campus assembly program will be presented in the main auditorium next Monday. A program has been scheduled by the entertainment committee for each of the six remaining academic weeks in this summer term.

The entertainment committee is a year-round group which functions in behalf of the students of the University. It is a group of faculty members who take time and effort in investigating the merits and offerings of many entertainments and recommending the best entertainment for the students—and the townpeople.

The townpeople have been invited mostly because of previous negligence of the students who are too busy or too dissatisfied to take advantage of the opportunity to hear and see some outstanding quests.

Two concerts and four speeches have been planned for this summer; the first musical program being Monday. You do not have to be a reader of best sellers or a master of the political situation to understand the things John Roy Carlson will tell you about underground activities in America. You don't have to study Chinese and India to be able to evaluate the other speeches on the bill. See story on front page.

All you need is an Acc card, and more important, enough interest to support the work done by the entertainment committee for your pleasure.
