Key Positions

Applications for the positions of next year's key editor and business manager are now being accepted in the journalism office, 3 ISA.

Students appointed to either of those positions by the student faculty publications committee must have maintained an average of 2.0 or better in all college courses.

The editor must be of senior rank.

In appointing the editor, the committee shall consider such factors as number of credits and grades in journalism and English courses, newspaper or magazine experience, and executive ability.

The business manager may be a student of any rank. Preference will be given to applicants who have had experience on the business staff of a newspaper, yearbook, or magazine, of who have had training in accounting, salesmanship, or personnel work.

Applications must be in the journalism office no later than Tuesday, March 30.

Bowling Green students appear to applaud the entertainment offered them in the form of lectures, assemblies, concerts, and other University-sponsored programs.

The committee responsible for providing the best entertainment available has been doing a noteworthy job in bringing out such performances to our campus. Students have the privilege of enjoying this entertainment for the small sum of 5 cents and their activity cards.

But, it is up to the judgment of the students who take advantage of such entertainment, the work of the committee is not very well appreciated.

Next Tuesday night Helen Traubel is giving a concert here. Miss Traubel has been called the "greatest Wagnerian soprano singing today." Few local students have the opportunity to hear this leading dramatic soprano under other circumstances. Miss Traubel signed a year in advance to insure her appearance here. Surely, there are enough students at Bowling Green who appreciate good music to make the effort worthwhile.

Miss Traubel's program has been planned in an effort to please all tastes. Her selections vary from operatic arias to Negro spirituals. So mark next Tuesday night on your calendar as "Helen Traubel night."

education is best defense . . .

In Washington recently a group of educators proposed that American students be taught, in the close room, how undemocratic forces start their attack. Twenty-three school administrators and teachers, from 16 states, joined in recommending measures in schools and colleges teaching to "democracy by Americans to possess. "Cannery Row" Contains Typical Steinbeck Beauty

by A. L. McClain

March with burning soul has but an hour of breath, To build a ship of truth on which he might sail, And dike up the years that are full of death. All of but truth.

If you will listen there are those who insist John Steinbeck's books are not beauty. And those people are will ing to go to any lengths to uphold their beliefs. Certainly Steinbeck's books are not only beautiful but they are also important. Several examples of his work tell those people what they are capable of being.

In "Cannery Row" one will find beauty in the rich humor of the work. The jokes and the stories are told with a deft touch and an eye for the humorous side of life. The humor is based primarily on the author's writing rather than on the situation, which is true of most of our humor today.

If one ever wants to be a strong character he will appreciate Our long journey is amusing but it is also beautiful. The poetic reader will ask, "What is beauty in a dead, smooth individual who drinks beer for breakfast?" The answer is simple—if one performs in poetry two minutes there is beauty in his individuality.

Always there is beauty in unselfishness. We take the individual of "Cannery Row" and look to the world, but is it only the individual? Perhaps the author's philosophy could be summed up in the following: The main object is to make the reader think and think about the realities of life. The book is filled with a variety of characters and situations. The author is highly regarded by his contemporaries.

Oh, how I'd like to be back home again—with all the folks I love. Papa loved Mama, but in "Cannery Row" there is optimism and a beauty in the simplicity. All the complexities of life today—artificial cycles and cycles are apart from the inhabitants of this world. In "Cannery Row" beauty is found in the words of the author's. The beauty is based on the idea of the author's writing rather than on the situation, which is true of most of our humor today.

Baseball, a motor sport which somehow never had a very large following here, may not be hampered by the constant rain that throws a damper on the first day's practice. Last season, when the Falcons won six, then dropped four games, he was unable to go with his war time stamina, and most of them failed miserably at the plate. The value of talent now on top of the brain game is probably the best ever available here.

The fine took team of a year ago should be even better with a year of experience under its belt. Coach Robert Whittaker will present an aggregation which is balanced with power in every event and which may go on to obtain the unrelucted record it so narrowly missed in 1947.

Golf, under Fred Mamm, is in a store of building also. Last year's group was the first since before the war and the boys took advantage of the fact that the opening day for the tennis court is finally here.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE DISAPPOINTING

The pilot game gets its share of the limelight this week with release of the Falcon schedule for 1948. It is obvious by the list of opponents that the effort to better Bee Gee up in the list of national football powers has been abandoned. The Bonn venture, Central, Miami, Xavier, Dayton, and William and Mary games are considerably below their previous standards. Once again, it seems that the same circumstance has relegated Bowling Green to the role of a small time competitor.

It is quite disheartening to see this happen after such a good start had been made toward bringing our football on a par with Findlay, Morningside, or other nationally unknown colleges.

Five Strong Opponents Missing On Grid Card

by Bill Day

Sports Editor

A definite drop in the caliber of opponents is shown in the 1948 football schedule for the Falcons of Bowling Green State University released last week by Coach Robert Whittaker.

Missing from last year's grueling 18-game schedule are Miami, Dayton, Xavier, St. Bonaventure, and William and Mary. Two new opponents have been added, Morris Harvey and Lawrence Tech.

Two new opponents have been added, Morris Harvey and Lawrence Tech.

Cagers Honored, By Selections

With the closing of the current basketball campaign, many of the Falcons basketball players have been honored by selections in All Ohio and All-Opponent teams.

Red Speicher and Mac Ottan were honored by being chosen on Syracuse's All Opponent squad. Speicher was chosen first team forward and Ottan second team center. Ottan also received honorable mention by being named to the American team picked by fans throughout the country. Mac garnered 1,480 votes, 2,260 coming from the East.

Captain Leo Kubik made the third All Round team. The defensive award was given to the Marquette All-Opponent team, the Pitt Cleveland Area team and the All-Midwestern squad published by Collegiate Magazine.

For All Ohio selections, Kubik made first team on the Associated Press All Round team, while Charlie Spicher was placed on the second team. Mac Ottan on the third team, and Illi Whay and Speicher were given honorable mention.

International News Service poll named Spicher at the first base, Kubik on the second squad, and Jake Parksik and Ottan received honorable mentions.

Schedule Set For Runners

An eight-meet schedule has been arranged for the Bowling Green track team, which has been honored by selections on All-Ohio and All Opponent teams.

Central Michigan's Chipper was chosen first of five dual meets to be held against the team. Central Michigan defeated the Falcons in the fourth meet.

The Falcons track is working out daily under the direction of Dave Jameson and Fred Pease, standing, are members of the BG swimming team that won the intermediate Division of the CCC meet last week.

Sigma Nu Gains First Place Tie

For the first time since the beginning of the Bowling League season, Sigma Nu's lead was threatened. Friday evening when Sigma Nu took four points from SAE.

Kappa Psi tied up two places by defeating Kappa Sig five to five points. Bob Korn (Sigma Nu) rolled a game of 211 for the evening's high. The Falcons return to the road on Oct. 9, Whittaker's squad enroute to Central Michigan and Kent State University.

Eleven Goes Set For Golf Team

Coach Fred March has announced that Bowling Green's golf team will travel to Chicago for the next two months. Six of the golfers, including Jim Underwood and Harry Ruff, will be housed in the 1935. The opening match for the linkers will be April 30 against Ohio State. All home matches will be on the city course.
