Upper level curricular option being developed

An integrative general education core curriculum was the subject of a recent meeting of the General Education Committee and will be presented as a curricular option and not a mandatory curricular option by the end of the fall semester. The General Education Curriculum must develop the skills of integrative thinking, combined with an understanding of the elements of the general education program, and allow students to design curricula from the lower level core.

The subject of the General Education Curriculum was presented on Dec. 1, but proposals may still be linked to an integrative general education curriculum as expressed by faculty in most colleges as early as fall 1987.

Courses in the integrative upper level core will have courses in humanities and scientific areas at two different disciplinary curricular options that are able to broaden the curricular core.

Courses that have already been proposed for the curriculum include public health and the study of the life sciences and their role in the human brain. The curriculum must be designed to have students participate in the upper level core and the upper level core that can be broadened for the integrative core.

The upper level core must be presented in an individual and appropriate manner for the general student.

Training planned

Due to the increased enrollment in Interdisciplinary Studies and Social Sciences, Bowling Green faculty are being invited to submit their work to the upper level core program under the rubric of Social Sciences. The upper level core course is designed to have students learn about the life sciences and their role in the human brain. The program must be designed to have students participate in the upper level core and the upper level core that can be broadened for the integrative core.

The upper level core must be presented in an individual and appropriate manner for the general student.

New computer system available for use

The DEC-220 replacement, a VAX 8820, is now available for use. The system will be used for all the courses, applications, with all of the major languages that were on the VAX 8820. The DEC-220 is designed to offer more powerful computing capabilities and a rich array of software tools and applications. University study reveals data behind infant death

Despite declines in the overall level of infant mortality in the United States since 1900, a study recently conducted by researchers at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) found that many factors, including age, race, and social class, contribute to the high death rate in the inner-city and urban areas.

The researchers, Edward G. Smeak and David W. Andrews, found that the data on infant death rates in the inner-city and urban areas are more complex than the corresponding infant death rates in high-income neighborhoods.

CSC to request 6.5 percent wage increase for employees

CSC classified Staff Council began their first meeting of the semester on Monday, Aug. 20 with a request for a 6.5 percent wage increase for their members. This request is based on the belief that CSC employees have not received an adequate raise for their efforts and contributions over the past years. The wage increase, if approved, would result in a total salary increase of approximately $500 for full-time employees and $200 for part-time employees.

The request will be submitted to the University by Feb. 28 and reviewed by the Board of Trustees. Staff Council has also stated that they will continue to advocate for fair wages and benefits for all employees at Ohio University.

Book captures essence of Bowling Green's man

The 1950s was a year of special importance for the people of Bowling Green. The state legislature enacted the bow-01 plan, which directed the University to establish a new school of business. The plan was intended to train students for the new school. The city of Bowling Green had campaigned vigorously along with 8 other communities for the designation of the University of Western Kentucky.

It's no surprise researching 25 years later, for the past 25 years' worth of clues include “The University of Western Kentucky” in its designation of the campus’ history.

Dr. Hal Green, the University’s historian, has kept almost all of the events he has reviewed. His book, a supplement to “The Story of Bowling Green” by James A. Moore, was published by the University Press of Kentucky.

Dr. Hal Green has been researching the book for five years, after his 40-year-old commission to compiling the campus’ history.

I started my research by re-reading the campus’ book which covered the first 10 years of the school, Green said. Then I began with the 80 News, going through the past 25 years’ worth of clues that would verify and update the campus’ history.
