"We are all here to support each other and to continue the fight for equality and justice," said Dr. Russell-McCloud. "We must continue to work together to achieve our goals and to make a positive impact on the world."
Second opinions required on some surgeries

Employers are reminded that second opinions are required for some major surgeries. If you wish to receive full benefits for a certain surgery, you must receive a second opinion from a qualified physician or one of your company's designated specialists. This does not apply to routine outpatient procedures, such as cataract extraction or hernia repair.

The following surgeries require second opinions:
- Breast implants
- Joint replacement
- Spinal fusion
- Thoracic aortic aneurysm

The second opinion will be obtained at the employer's expense and should be obtained within 30 days of the first surgery. Failure to obtain a second opinion may result in denial of benefits.

The workshop will be held on Tuesday, April 2, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the University of Toledo's Science Center. Participants will receive three hours graduate credit for participation.
