Schwarz Retires After 25 Years of Service

Retirement of Prof. John Schwarz will put an end to 25 years of service for the chairman of the history department.

Prof. Schwarz came to Bowling Green in 1923 as a social science professor. In that year he also became faculty advisor to the Emerson Literary Society, oldest campus organization. The society was founded in 1914 to promote correct parliamentary procedure.

He was made first chairman of the History Department. He received his B.A. from Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, and his M.A. from Chicago University. He also attended Columbia and Ohio Northern.

Active membership in the Eastern Star, Kappa Phi Kappa, national education honorary, and Pi Gamma Mu, social science honorary, occupy time. He is also a member of the American Historical Association, Mississippi Valley Historical Association, and the American Society of International Law.

Chairman of the university artists council, assembly committee and the committee on gifts, endowments and memorials helped to keep Prof. Schwarz occupied. He was also a member of the first library board.

His students will perhaps remember him best for his six lectures on prominent Americans. After retirement, Prof. Schwarz will continue lecturing and writing.

The new acting chairman of the history department will be Dr. Grover C. Platt, a native of Texas. Dr. Platt was graduated from Lincoln High School, Council Bluffs, Iowa. The University of Iowa and Tutla College equipped Dr. Platt for his work of teaching.

He came to Bowling Green in 1946 after teaching at Fairmont College and Western College, Oxford, Ohio. He also served with the Army Intelligence Service in the New Guinea and Philippine campaigns.

Guidance Is New Graduate Major

Definite plans are under way in the Experimental Extension for an introduction of a graduate major in guidance and counseling, according to Dr. Emerson C. Shuck, director of the graduate school.

A committee comprised of Dr. Shuck; Martha M. Gesling, assistant professor of education; Dr. Samuel H. Lewin, professor of sociology; Adeline E. McClelland, assistant professor of speech; Kenneth H. McFall; and College of Liberal Arts; John Wernick, associate professor of psychology and James Wright, assistant professor of psychology, are making the preliminary arrangements to put the course into effect.

"It must be stressed that the committee does not intend to set up a program for training psychologists or psychiatrists, but primarily for social workers who wish to do this.

Twelve hours of psychology and six hours of sociology are the under-graduate prerequisites for the course, beneficial to basic education certification.

After completion of plans, a committee of four members, one each from the Psychology, Sociology, Education and Speech Departments, will continue administration of the course. The chairman of the committee will be in charge of the complete program.

"It is expected the course will be completely organized during the coming fall term," Dr. Shuck declared.

Ginkgo Trees Are Oriental

by Harold Marillat

An ancient and oriental touch is added to the campus because of the one ginkgo tree growing here.

Origin of these trees can be traced back to the Pennsylvania period of time when the coal in the Eastern United States was forming. The ginkgo was about 250,000,000 years ago.

One of the trees on campus can be found at the Court Street entrance, the first tree on the library side. The other tree is located between the walk and the parkway of Ivy Hall. Both trees are between six and nine feet tall.

Another rather large tree was reported in the northern part of the city, but this report has not been verified, according to Dr. Mayfield, director of the Geology Department.

A large specimen of the tree can be seen in Toledo across from the Art Museum. Dr. Mayfield says this is the largest of the species in the state.

Ginkgos, commonly called Maid-en Hare Trees, are deemed sacred in China and Japan. The people planted them around their temples, and it is believed that for this reason they have been able to come down through the ages. No wild species of the tree can be found.

Fossil specimens which are traced back 150,000,000 years ago are almost exactly like those of today. The Ginkgo was one of the most widely distributed trees at that time.

Ginkgos are unique in that they have no close relatives. It is the only species, genus, family, and order of its kind.

The tree has fan shaped leaves, partly divided in the middle.

Annoy Irishman

Lennox Robinson, Irish playwright who conducted classes at the University last year, considers the present successful in America radio broadcasting "perfectly dreadful."

"After returning to Dublin, Mr. Robinson told newspapers that he knows many Americans who don't listen to their radio because of "the awful advertising and housewife stuff." "However, in many homes the radio is the only time I'm not bombarded with commercials," he said.

Two Floors of Book Stacks Added To Campus Library

When the University Library opens this fall, two new floors of book stacks will have been added. The new stacks will hold 30,000 volumes and mark a 50 per cent increase over the original stack space.

Much of the growth of the Library has come during the five years in which Dr. Paul Trelstad, who has been 7,000 bound volumes added in that time. The total number is now 90,000.

"Emphasis has been placed on the quality rather than the number of volumes," Dr. Leedy stated. Many of the books are rare and contain significant research material.

A special collection of 160 first edition volumes of the works of William Dean Howells is expected to arrive soon. Current issues of the 650 periodicals which the Library receives are on display in a room opened last fall. "Tie-ups"—back volumes waiting to be sent to the bindery—also are in the periodical room. It provides study space for 80 students.

The main reading room, with 325 seats, contains approximately 5,000 volumes of reference material. At night, students also may study in two rooms provided for the reading room overflow.

Distinction of being a full Government Document Depository came to the University Library in 1933. In that year the depository for Northwestern Ohio was moved, by petition, from the Hayes Memorial Library in Fremont.

The Government Printing Office files at the University Library are copied of each document issued for public use. Approximately 70,000 documents are on file. Bowling Green is one of nine full depositories in Ohio.

Plans are being made to convert a large lecture room in the Library Building into a reserve book room.

Finders Not Keepers—Miss Moten Needs Book!

Remember the little black book Miss Moten used during her concert recently? All the words to her African songs were contained therein.

That book has been lost—and a fountain pen with it.

Prof. John Schwartz says the loss of this book is a serious one and would appreciate the finders returning it to him as soon as possible.

Top-Notch Coaches Are Half Of Champ Building--Brown
by John Schwaller

In addition to good, big, fast players a successful football team must have good leadership, and smart coaches have made the All-American Conference champion Cleveland Browns, now in the second week of practice on the Bowling Green University campus, the team that it is.

Head Coach Paul Brown is well known for his ability to recognize playing talent at a glance; he is an equal judge of coaching ability. Brown's success at Massillon High School and Ohio State University is so well known that this article needn't repeat these facts, rather it is important to show how Brown, the perfect, tiniest, has moldered a coaching staff of experts second to none in the land.

Brown has always been smart at football. He had to be to stay alive. At Miami University he quarterbacked the team for two seasons while weighing in at 125 pounds. Incidentally, the Bowling Green coach, who was a teammate of Miami's Gallagher, a native of Ironton, O., has coached high school ball in Ironton and Pedro, O., and at William and Mary College where he also was head coach of basketball and baseball.

One of the backfield coaches, John Brickles, instead of being Brown's friend was a long time enemy until they joined forces in 1946. While Brown spearheaded the Miami team, Brickles was star of the rival Wittenberg aggregation. In his first season he returned kicks 55 and 65 yards for touchdowns that beat Brown's Miami squad. The following season he reversed the score when he harried two touchdowns passes to trip the Wittenberg eleven. During the war when most of the present coaching staff was in service, Brickles did most of the work in molding the present group of star players. Brown picked 'em and Brickles scouted and signed 'em.

Blanton Collier, of Paris, Ky., is the other backfield coach. Collier is the diagnostician and the expert responsible for the Browns' successful pass defense.

Collier was on the Great Lakes staff with Brown and so impressed the famed pilot that Brown persuaded him to join his staff instead of taking a position with one of the large universities in the country.

Only 15 lettermen will report to Coach Bob Whittaker for pre-season football practice in August, but 1948 nevertheless looms as a big year for the Falcon gridiron. The schedule, which opens on Sept. 29 at Ohio University, is one of the lightest in recent years. The first three games, all on the road, probably will be toughest for the Orange and Brown. The Central Michigan and Toledo University encounters follow the Bobcat tilt. Morris Harvey, Baldwin-Wallace, Findlay, Kent State, Morningside, and John Carroll complete the agenda. In looking over the prospective candidates for the squad the situation of the past few seasons seems reversed. This time there is an abundance of backfield talent while reserves on the line are few.

Whittaker's starting backfield of Russ Maple, Max Minnich, Jack Freitas and Jack Woodland returns intact backed by monogram winners Howie Schaadtke and Dick Van Atta. Mel Augusten, Pete Schmidt, Ed Simmon, Rick Reis, Bob Denella, Bob Pegler, Lee Lukac, Rod Lasch, Joe Menorio and Tony Antonelli all will be on tap once more. From the freshman squad more help is expected in the persons of quarterback Nick Pohlman, fullback Bill Numansaker, and halfbacks Norm Rousey, Harry Fox and Don Kaplan.

Up front, ends Vern Dunham, Doug Mooney and Bob Schnelker, tackles Don Verduin, Harry Foa and Gordon Ackerman, guards John Sheldon and Don Dunham, and center Bill Seccor are the only letterwinners. Fresh star Hal Dunham, Bob DePeters and Dutch Rastetter will probably fill in at the ends. At the tackles, where material is the shortest, Bob Mason and another varsity newcomer, Bob Buckenberger, undoubtedly will do much reserve duty.

Red Schin, John Kistler and Ray Neihm, plus Lee Sulani and Fred Waugh will be seeking guard berths. Bernie Wheeler and converted tackles Don Mansfield and}

Ed Kunts, "Dog" McCleary, Homer Millikan and "Curley" Hoffman pose after the duo on the right won the golf best-ball title.
