The Board of Trustees increased student instructional and general fees as part of a $38.1 million educational budget for 1987-88 at its June 26 meeting.

As a result of the action, the cost of a year at Bowling Green for Ohio undergraduates living in campus housing will increase by $266 to $4,312, up 6.6 percent from $4,046 from the past year.

Undergraduate instructional and general fees increased $90 to $1,014 per semester, up $112 from last year, and the nonresident surcharge will rise $119 to $1,319 per semester.

The $98.1 million educational budget is 6.6 percent more than the 1986-87 budget. Projected income includes $51.7 million in state appropriations; $4.4 million from student instructional fees; $6 million from other sources, and a $1 million carryover.

The trustees also approved a $3.6 million budget for the Firelands campus in Huron, an increase of 5.8 percent over the $3.4 million Firelands received last year. The new fee structure for Firelands calls for a $75 per semester increase in the instructional and general fee to $848 per semester. The graduate instructional fee and the nonresident surcharge for Firelands is the same as the main campus.

In other financial matters, a five percent salary pool providing increases for continuing faculty, administrative staff and classified staff was approved. Also, approved was a $100,000 pool, immediate salary step increases, for graduate students that will pay them five percent more this year. They now pay $37,587.

As in past years the faculty and administrative staff pay raises will be distributed on a 60 percent across-the-board increase and 40 percent merit basis. Faculty and administrative staff will receive a three percent across-the-board increase with an additional two percent pool available for merit distribution. Classified staff will receive approximately 3.5 percent in across-the-board increases with another 1.5 percent going toward step and longevity increases for the classified staff.

The pay raises, which will cost the University approximately $2.8 million, will go into effect in July after the immediate step increases have been approved.

The trustees also approved a revised pay range and step schedule for student employees that calls for at least a 10 cent per hour difference between step increases.

In other action, the trustees endorsed a 4.6 percent capital budget that $86.87 identifies 47 construction and renovation projects, which, if all funded, would total $109 million. Robert McGeen, director of capital planning, said the plan is revised every two years to delete projects that have been funded or whose needs have been met in other ways, to add projects to meet new or emerging needs and to prioritize the projects. For the 1989-90 fiscal year, the plan lists 14 projects totaling $24.8 million.

Also at the meeting, a PERS Early Retirement Incentive Program received trustee approval and went into effect July 1. The plan offers a maximum three year buy-out; the option of a buy-out or swap for administrative staff; replacement of all retiring staff; and a five percent limitation on the participation rate among administrative and classified staff.

Under the stipulation that the program be self-funding, Dr. J. Christopher Dalton, vice president for planning and budgeting, said it was impossible to go on back

Townsend named acting dean

Dr. Ralph N. Townsend, associate dean of Arts and Sciences, has been appointed acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Eloise Clark, vice president for academic affairs announced last week.

Townsend, also a professor of mathematics and statistics, joined the faculty in 1960 after several years of teaching at San Jose State College and at the University of Illinois. During the past 18 of his 27 years at Bowling Green, Townsend has served as both assistant and associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

An instructor of both graduate and undergraduate courses, Townsend has recently begun teaching computer graphics courses in the computer science department. In addition, he has attended numerous workshops and short courses in mathematics to stay abreast of developments in the field, he said.

Active in various professional organizations, Townsend belongs to the Mathematical Association of America, the Association for Computing Machinery, Sigma Xi and Phi Kappa Phi.

A national search will be conducted for a new dean and a search committee will be appointed in early fall.

Olscamp praises Gillmor

Job hiring freeze to continue

The University will continue the job freeze that has been in effect since the early part of 1987, President Paul J. Olscamp has announced. The tight state subsidy operating budget, approved last week by Governor Richard Celeste, makes the hiring freeze a prudent step, he explained.

Olscamp said that while the state budget will permit the University to continue its operations without significant cut in non-mandatory or staff reductions during 1987-88, "the margin of operating safety is small and a high priority on our part will be required in the next two years. For this reason, no non-faculty jobs will be filled at Bowling Green without my approval."

Reclassifications for classified staff positions, which had been frozen, will be resumed and processed in the normal way, he said.

Dr. J. Christopher Dalton, vice president for planning and budgeting, said the tight state budget will permit the University to maintain the educational budget approved by the Board of Trustees June 26.

However, the outlook for the second year of the biennium is almost identical to the first and "we will have to continue fine tuning our operating budget," Dalton said.

Olscamp made a point to praise the efforts of Senate President Paul Gillmor for a special $1 million appropriation in the state budget to support Bowling Green's telecommunication services. The funds will be used to make debt service payments and to pay off an accumulated deficit thus avoiding increases in higher rates to academic users of the system.

Olscamp said, "Senator Gillmor has been a strong advocate for all of Ohio's education, including the elementary and secondary schools as well as the colleges and universities. His support is greatly appreciated."
offer a five year buy-out as originally requested by Classified Staff Council and Administrative Staff Council. Dalton cited a "bleak" state budget picture for not being able to offer an extended plan.

In other action, trustees agreed to a one-sentence amendment rescinding a bylaw passed in November requiring the president to be invited to meetings where two or more trustees would be present and to inform him of all requests for meetings or expressions to concerns.

The bylaws were amended to read, "It is the policy of the board that all information coming to trustees which is pertinent to the management of the University shall be transmitted to the president in a timely fashion."

"It was never the intent of the trustees totheme discussed any members of the University," William Spengler, board president, said. "Our original resolution was misinterpreted. We as a board wish to resolve conflicts and move ahead." Also, during the meeting:

— Approval was given to the offering of the master of technology degree program in the College of Technology, pending approval by the Ohio Board of Regents.

In his report to the board, Dr. Louis J. Katzer, dean of the Graduate College and associate vice president of research, said the program will prepare individuals with the technical expertise needed to understand both the technology and its application in industrial settings. The proposed program is timely with Bowling Green’s participation in the Industrial Systems Center which should provide new research opportunities for both faculty and graduate students in the College of Technology, he said. Trustees gave authorization to proceed with the design, development and implementation of an on-line registration system.

— Approval was given to the Faculty Senate Resolution granting increased paid time and overload compensation for the senate’s secretarial duties.

Classified Employment Opportunities

Seminar Room Named for Good

A Fostoria native now living in New York City was honored by the Board of Trustees for his generosity to the University.

Board members approved the naming of a seminar room in the Business Administration Building honoring James R. Good for a $50,000 contribution to the college’s building fund.

Good, owner and president of the Oasis Development Corporation, a real estate firm in New York City, received bachelor of science and bachelor of arts degrees in 1965 from Bowling Green. Formerly a vice president in the World Grain Division of Continental Grain Company, a leading New York-based commodities firm, Good received Bowling Green's Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1983. In addition to his many business and professional affiliations, he is a member of Bowling Green's President's Club, a past member of the University’s Development Council and a leader of the New York Alumni Chapter.

Training Program Offered to Employees

The Foodservice and Hospitality Management Training Program offered at the University since 1980 is available to University employees as a professional development activity.

The non-credit training program will begin July 13 and continue for 33 weeks. Course content is in three general areas: professional career development, supervisory development and technical development.

The cost for the course is $2,500 per participant. Fees will be waived for University employees.

Employees who wish to participate must do so on their own time. Regular working schedules should be arranged with immediate supervisors with assistance from the training department of Management Support Services.

For more information about the program, or to enroll, contact Ruth Friend or Terry Lawrence at 372-2236.
