While home over Easter vacation, it would be useless for a student to find out how he stands in the extended coverage endorsement on his fine at home and the picture he has of that coverage, and the value of the insurance is the force of all the student's personal property, including clothing and miscellaneous items. In the case of BGU it is covered up to $15,000 of the policy in the event of loss by fire. If his father has a $10,000 mortgage on his household contents, the student's personal property is covered up to $15,000 in the event of fire. And the student may be a member of the immediate family and be a member of the extended coverage endorsement for a full year.

A recent fire of north Dorm and discovery of the fire cause and the consideration of the fact that personal property is not necessarily indescribableable and in the motor event in the event of loss by fire.

Just as I'm only a nut in schools with your parents, determine coverage, and thus prevent the student from a serious financial loss in the event of disaster.

Protect your property from damage and loss through checking insurance coverage.
