Announcements

Hamlet, portrayed by William Prentice, reaches for a skull from the second gravedigger. In one of the most difficult and tragic of the tragedies, William Prentice as Hamlet, demonstrated the true feeling and ability and true feeling. If such is to be the case generally, the last Tuesday night and all the seven curtain calls at the Bowling Green State University Theatre last night were by Terry Schon as Guildenstern, with sincerity and in part to words of the famous.
Spittoony Meets Tragic Defeat

No one knows what mental tortures I suffered after the loss of Gaydy Kans and Don Merh. I tried to adopt my favorite method of self-indulgence, shooting off lots of words in the student paper. Then I read the new constitution. It was abstract, vague, and cold—a far cry from the colorful, descriptive type of writing usual on this paper. I had my work cut out for me, and I set to work as a long-suffering, working member of the student Senate committee.

The committee composed of about twenty members, six of whom were from the roller derby and eight of whom were from my last class and the senior college, got together in the Student Center one night and started work on a constitution. The committee went through all the sections and sections again, and finally came up with a constitution which we all felt we could live with.

The constitution was submitted to the student body for ratification. It was a close call, but the students approved it by a narrow margin. Everyone was happy, and we all went out to celebrate.

We were all hoping for a great future with this new constitution in place. We thought we had finally found a way to tackle the problems facing our college and our community.

After a few months, however, I began to see some problems with the constitution. I noticed that certain sections were being ignored or forgotten. The committee had done a good job of writing the constitution, but now we were struggling to enforce it.

We tried to bring some changes to the constitution, but the committee was resistant to change. They argued that the constitution was set in stone and couldn't be altered.

I realized that we needed to have a more active and engaged student Senate to ensure that the constitution was followed. We needed to have a system in place to enforce the rules and regulations outlined in the constitution.

I was disappointed by the lack of enthusiasm and engagement from the student Senate. It was clear that we needed to do more to get people involved and invested in the constitution.

I decided to take action and started organizing groups to bring some changes to the constitution. We held meetings and gathered signatures, and eventually we were able to get some changes made.

As I reflect on the experience, I realize that the constitution was just a starting point. We needed to work hard to keep people engaged and invested in the campus community. The challenges we faced with the constitution were just a small part of the bigger picture.

The experience taught me that change is not always easy, but it is necessary. I learned that we can't just pass a constitution and assume that everyone will follow it. We need to actively work to ensure that the rules and regulations are being followed.

I'm hopeful that the changes we made to the constitution will lead to a more engaged and active student body. I'm excited to see what the future holds for our college and community.

Kent State A Cappella Choir
Will Present Program May 11
Kent State University's A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Dr. Daniel J. Cappelletti, will present a program which begins at 8:00 p.m.

The program will consist of an "Alleluia" for three choirs, written by the composer Dr. William J. affirmation, and sung by the choirs of the University of California, Berkeley, and University of Oregon.

The program will also feature a selection from "Messiah," and all-Bach programs written by the 16th century composer, and edited by Professor Carapetyan.

President for a Day, Emerson Spohr recently announced the schedule for the annual Women's Hi, for announcement of time and date.

Swim Club officers for next year include: Joyce Bittker, president; Ruth Murphy, vice president; Mary Kang, secretary; and Joyce McCreery, publicity chairman.

The choir repertoire is being composed of early and contemporary American and English composers. The choirs are under the direction of the composer Dr. William J. affirmation.

Choir Race Winners Given
Phi Mu, Sigma Nu, and Sigma Chi were given the title of "Choir Race Winners" by the Interfraternity Council.

Phi Mu took first place in the competition. Purdue University won second and the University of Illinois won third.

The program is being given in honor of the University's 100th anniversary and the 15th anniversary of the Interfraternity Council, which was organized last Saturday by the Kent State University. The program will be held at 8:00 p.m. on Friday night.

The choir repertoire is being composed of early and contemporary American and English composers. The choirs are under the direction of the composer Dr. William J. affirmation.

Any Suggestions?
Suggestion boxes have been located in the Student Union, and in the University's main corridor. Suggestions should be addressed to the students who are interested in organizing the activities. Student suggestions should be taken at meetings of the Interfraternity Council, which are held at 8:00 p.m. on Monday nights.

Falcon Nine Victorious
Over Wayne, Wesleyan
Ray Robb continued his mastery over the Wayne University Tartars Saturday as he limited them to four hits to win his second victory of the season 2-1. A double, the only extra base blow Robb gave up, resulted in Wayne's lone tally.

The Falcons scored early as Owen Efficiency led off with a walk and moved to second on an infield out. He advanced to third on a passed ball and then glanced home on a wild pitch. They added another in the second on Bill Lute's triple and another in the third on a wild pitch.

Wayne piled up their counter in the last of the second when D'Ambruso doubled, went to third on a wild throw by Catherine Button, and then scored on a wild pitch.

After the brief flurry of activity in the opening frame the game settled down into a tight pitchers battle. Wayne held the Falcons to three hits but lost the contest because of his early wildness.

Two of Wayne's four singles came with two out in the ninth, but Robb tossed out a Tartar runner at home finishing the game.

MICHIGAN NORMAL 3 — BG 2

Michigan Normal edged BG 3-2 in 10 innings Monday afternoon as he limited the Tartars to four hits to win the fifth. The Tartars sneaked up on BG in the ninth, the first five innings, but in the sixth the Tartons finally began to break through. The Tartars scored first after hitting a fly ball behind the plate. Lute服务商 was at the plate, and the Tartars failed to score. Over the next two innings both teams had chances, but neither scored.

The game settled down into a tight contest because of his early wild performance of Lou Cross, regarded Bishop of Ohio Wesleyan, after the jailer’s injury. The Falcons scored early as Owen Ernsthausen led off the ninth.

In the seventh, Ray Roob continued his mastery over the Wayne University Tartans Saturday as he limited them to four hits to win his second victory of the season 2-1. Arm Chair Managers
Now In Their Glory

By JACK BAYLOR

Springtime is famous for a varied assortment of reasons. One of the foremost of these is the return to the spotlight of that great American institution, baseball.

As every parent knows, the baseball brain trust begins going over the merits and demerits of the various big league ball teams. Though Green baseball fans do not protest the preferences of their merchants, and in this cosmopolitan atmosphere one may hear from all sections of the big league baseball world, and even the team is represented by at least one fan.

These days are extremely active ones, for while the 1949 season is starting the 1949 season, the afternoon games are known to the fans as the contest of the two major pennant races.

If the fans were to give breaks, he may be the one to win.

"I'm a Yankee worshipper. "Watch the Yankees, they're going to win every game this year."

"Why the matter so? a workman yelled, "so many so?" To the tune I had convinced him it wasn't, it was too late.

"What's the matter so? a workman yelled, "so many so?" To the tune I had convinced him it wasn't, it was too late.
