News flash: Friends banquet to feature Edna Buchanan

A Publisher Price winning comic reporter will be the speaker at the annual spring banquet of the Friends of the Library, scheduled for May 4 at Maple Leaf Restaurant on the corner of 3rd and Monroe.

Buchanan captures newspaper readers with memorable opening lines to their stories and has become a legend in the newspaper industry. She is particularly known nationally for coverage of the Katherine Theide Center of Kaufman's in December 1987.

In addition to covering many rice farmers and other people who work to promote Buchanan to the public, she is also known for her work with the splinter group known as "The Buchanan Institute." She has been a member of the Institute since its inception in 1979.

Buchanan is the author of several books, including "The Rice Farmer's Guide to the United States," which was published in 1988.

She has also been a featured speaker at several conferences and events, including the 1990 national conference of the Friends of the Library.

Buchanan is a native of Kaufman County and has been involved in many community activities. She has been a member of the Friends of the Library for over 20 years.

The Friends of the Library is a group of people who support the Kaufman County Library System. They provide funds for the purchase of books, materials, and programs for the library.

The event will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a dinner, which will be followed by Buchanan's presentation. The cost of the dinner is $20 per person, and reservations are required.
