8-22-1988

Monitor Newsletter August 22, 1988

Bowling Green State University

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor/935

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at ScholarWorks@BGSU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Monitor by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks@BGSU.
Ed O'Donnell, assistant director of Food Operations, displays an award the Bake Shop Goodies Service won recently for its creative service that includes cookies, brownies, cakes or fruit baskets to students on campus. "Receiving some of the credit for the award are (from left) Roben Sukalis, delivery, Carol Schroeder, shop supervisor, and Leona Converse, baker.

Bake Shop finds sweet taste of success

A Food Operations program that has won rave reviews from students recently won them from professionals as well.

The Bake Shop Goodies Service received an award in the Cuisine Idea Exchange competition from the National Association of College and University Food Services. The association consists of approximately 600 member institutions which operate their own food services.

The Bake Shop Goodies Service, parent can send their children bakes goods to celebrate special occasions or to cheer up a bad day. Jane Schimpf, director of Food Operations said the service will deliver cookies, brownies, a cake or a fruit basket to students on campus. The student honor society Mortar Board assists with the off-campus deliveries.

Located in the basement of Kohl Hall, the Bake Shop is overseen by Ed O'Donnell. Carol Schroeder is the shop supervisor and Leona Converse is the baker.

Food Operations was commended for the creativity demonstrated by the Bake Shop Goodies Service. Schimpf said the program is successful because it helps both students and Food Operations. It generates additional income and it's a great way for students to receive something special from their parents, she explained.

Schimpf accepted the award at the annual conference of the National Association of College and University Food Services in Hawaii. In addition to the awards program, the conference featured sessions on such topics as nutrition and wellness and opening a non-alcoholic campus bar.

Schoof, who also serves as president of the association's fourth region, said the conference introduces "members to food manufacturer's innovations, and also allows members to share their own successful ideas.

Successful ideas, like the Bake Shop Goodies Service, have brought recognition to Food Operations in the past. The most prestigious award came in 1984 when it received the Ivy Award from Restaurant and Institutions magazine. Food Operations competed with restaurants and institutions from across the country for the award which honored outstanding performance in the 'food industry.' --Diane Docis

Center receives its 100th grant

The Social Philosophy and Policy Center has recently received its 100th grant, a $5,000 contribution from the John William Pope Foundation.

Fred D. Miller Jr., executive director of the center, said the center has received about $5,700,000 in grants, contracts and gifts from 37 different sources since its founding in 1981.

During 1988, the center has to date received grants totaling $34,934.38, he said. These have included a $250,000 grant from the Sarah Scalese Foundation, a $100,000 grant from the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation, as well as grants from the Pope Foundation, the Amoco Foundation, the Earhart Foundation, the Charles G. Koch Charitable Foundation and the Procter and Gamble Fund.

"The grants from the Scalese and

Continued on page 3

Strains of jazz emanating from the middle of some of country's richest farmlands? City slickers may scoff, but Jeff Halley says Bowling Green is a fine home base for a jazz music program.

"Music has become decentralized," says Halley, a bass player and director of jazz studies. "In the big media cities-New York and Los Angeles—what has taken over and jazz players are left out in the cold. Sure, there are geographic differences, but jazz is here, right in the heartland."

For the first time this fall, students attending the College of Musical Arts can earn a bachelor of music degree with jazz emphasis.

An Afro-American art form, jazz is considered one of the most important American contributions to world culture. It is a field of music that is particularly important because of the many facets of employment it embraces: recording, movie and television work, public performance and education.

While the degree program is new, jazz has always been a part of the music curriculum at Bowling Green. The award-winning Jazz Lab Bands under the direction of David Meile, musical gifts, regularly appear at the Ethelbert Jazz Festival and have made many recordings over the years.

The curriculum also benefits from the presence of small combos and specialty groups, like the all-electric Fusion Ensemble directed by Halley and the Guitar Ensemble headed by Christopher Buzzeles, who also is director of the Toledo Jazz Orchestra.

The University has had a strong jazz program with a fine faculty. Each has a special expertise and are active performers," adds Halley.

The University also hosts an annual Jazz Fest featuring campus and area musicians in concert, a clinic for high school jazz groups and a "big-name" concert each spring. Headliners in the past have included Wynton Marsalis, Maynard Ferguson, Spyro Gyra and Chuck Mangione.

Bowling Green's jazz groups perform regularly on campus throughout the year as well, and jazz fests are featured at other concert series sponsored by the College of Musical Arts.

Last year, the Modern Jazz Quartet appeared as part of the Festival Series. This year, jazz pianist George Shearing is booked to perform Dec. 3 at the Moore Musical Arts Center.

The new jazz major emphasizes studies in performance, theory, composition as well as studio and recording techniques. The ability to answer all questions regarding wages, hours and working conditions will often present problems, like the Hotline will provide some answers to questions or rumors that are often presented.

The purpose of the Hotline is to provide answers to any questions regarding union organizing and collective bargaining under Ohio law. While the University is prohibited by law from soliciting concerns or complaints and from making any promises, representation issues, including wages, hours and working conditions, and group activities, the Hotline will provide some answers to questions or rumors that are often presented.

The Hotline is patterned after a similar service offered earlier this year for employees in the custodial, food service and telecommunications areas who reached third-party representation by the Communications Workers of America in a Feb. 4 election. During the six weeks prior to the Febuary election, more than 150 employee questions were answered in the Hotline newsletter.

Union representatives from the Teamsters, Communications Workers of America in a

To answer questions about union organizing

A Collective Bargaining Hotline will go into operation this week to provide answers to questions University employees may have about the upcoming collective bargaining election.

The election has been scheduled for Oct. 12, and the Employee Relations Board and will determine if approximately 6,500 craft employees want third party representation from the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Union Local No. 20 in Toledo.

The Hotline will begin taking calls Monday (Aug. 22). The number is 372-6055, and will open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Teamsters Hotline operator and the answers will be published in a weekly newsletter that will be distributed each Monday beginning Aug. 29.

The procedure for answering questions permits time for each question to be thoroughly researched and accurately answered. Issuing the answers in newsletter form will allow employees to benefit from the questions. The Hotline will not answer questions dealing with individual situations but will respond to most other questions.

The purpose of the Hotline is to provide answers to any questions regarding union organizing and collective bargaining under Ohio law. While the University is prohibited by law from soliciting concerns or complaints and from making any promises, representation issues, including wages, hours and working conditions, and group activities, the Hotline will provide some answers to questions or rumors that are often presented.

The Hotline is patterned after a similar service offered earlier this year for employees in the custodial, food service and telecommunications areas who reached third-party representation by the Communications Workers of America in a

February election. During the six weeks prior to the February election, more than 150 employee questions were answered in the Hotline newsletter.

The procedure for answering questions permits time for each question to be thoroughly researched and accurately answered. Issuing the answers in newsletter form will allow employees to benefit from the questions. The Hotline will not answer questions dealing with individual situations but will respond to most other questions.

The purpose of the Hotline is to provide answers to any questions regarding union organizing and collective bargaining under Ohio law. While the University is prohibited by law from soliciting concerns or complaints and from making any promises, representation issues, including wages, hours and working conditions, and group activities, the Hotline will provide some answers to questions or rumors that are often presented.

The Hotline is patterned after a similar service offered earlier this year for employees in the custodial, food service and telecommunications areas who reached third-party representation by the Communications Workers of America in a

February election. During the six weeks prior to the February election, more than 150 employee questions were answered in the Hotline newsletter.

Hotline to answer questions about union organizing

A Collective Bargaining Hotline will go into operation this week to provide answers to questions University employees may have about the upcoming collective bargaining election.

The election has been scheduled for Oct. 12, and the Employee Relations Board and will determine if approximately 6,500 craft employees want third party representation from the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Union Local No. 20 in Toledo.

The Hotline will begin taking calls Monday (Aug. 22). The number is 372-6055, and will open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Teamsters Hotline operator and the answers will be published in a weekly newsletter that will be distributed each Monday beginning Aug. 29.

The procedure for answering questions permits time for each question to be thoroughly researched and accurately answered. Issuing the answers in newsletter form will allow employees to benefit from the questions. The Hotline will not answer questions dealing with individual situations but will respond to most other questions.

The purpose of the Hotline is to provide answers to any questions regarding union organizing and collective bargaining under Ohio law. While the University is prohibited by law from soliciting concerns or complaints and from making any promises, representation issues, including wages, hours and working conditions, and group activities, the Hotline will provide some answers to questions or rumors that are often presented.

The Hotline is patterned after a similar service offered earlier this year for employees in the custodial, food service and telecommunications areas who reached third-party representation by the Communications Workers of America in a

February election. During the six weeks prior to the February election, more than 150 employee questions were answered in the Hotline newsletter.
CSC wants to study wage structures at other colleges

Developing an improved and equitable compensation structure for full-time assistant professors is critical to the future of the College. As with other major personnel actions, the changes will be necessary to maintain the quality of the student experience and the ability of the College to attract and retain high quality faculty and staff.

The College pays full-time assistant professors a base salary of $30,000 per year. This is below the national average, which is approximately $35,000. The College has also not made any significant increases in the base salary for many years, despite the fact that the cost of living has increased significantly. This has resulted in a significant disparity between the salaries of assistant professors and those of similar positions at other institutions.

The College is currently conducting a study to determine the appropriate base salary for full-time assistant professors. This study will be completed by the end of the academic year. The results of the study will be used to determine the appropriate base salary for full-time assistant professors, and the College will make any necessary adjustments to the salary structure as a result.

Graduates should try to measure up to their own life standards

In the context of the current study, the graduates were asked to rate their life experiences compared to their own personal life standards. The results showed that the graduates generally rated their lives as being good or better than expected. The survey results indicate that the graduates believed that they had achieved their personal life standards and were satisfied with their lives.

However, the survey also revealed that some graduates felt that they had not achieved their personal life standards and were dissatisfied with their lives. These graduates believed that they had not achieved their personal life standards and were dissatisfied with their lives.

Russell is named School of HPER acting director

Dr. Ronald I. Russell has been named acting director of the School of Human Performance and Recreation (HER) at the University. He will serve in this position until a permanent director is appointed. Russell has been a member of the School of HER faculty since 1980 and has served as interim director since 1987.

Russell is a well-respected scholar in the field of health, physical education, and recreation. He has published numerous articles and books on these topics and has received several awards for his research. He is also an active member of professional organizations and has served on numerous committees.

The School of HER is committed to providing students with a high-quality education that prepares them for careers in the field of health, physical education, and recreation. Russell's appointment will help ensure that the School continues to provide high-quality education and research opportunities for its students.

Ricky wins George Polya Award for Newton article

Ricky won the George Polya Award for his article on Newton's work. The article was published in the Journal of the Mathematical Association of America. The award is given annually to recognize the best paper published in the Journal of the Mathematical Association of America.

The article, which was titled "Newton's Work," was published in 1990. It focused on Newton's contributions to the development of calculus and the study of motion.

The article was well-received by the mathematical community and was praised for its clarity and insight. It was also highly cited, indicating its importance and relevance to the field of mathematics.

Ricky was also recognized for his contributions to the field of mathematics. He was named a fellow of the American Mathematical Society and was elected to the National Academy of Sciences.

Ricky's work has had a significant impact on the field of mathematics and has been influential in the development of new mathematical theories and methods. His contributions have helped advance our understanding of the natural world and have had a profound impact on science and technology.

Ricky was known for his dedication to teaching and his ability to communicate complex mathematical concepts in an accessible manner. He was also a skilled researcher and was recognized for his contributions to the field of mathematics.

Ricky's work continues to be studied and cited by mathematicians and scientists around the world. His legacy lives on through the many people who have been inspired by his work and continue to advance the field of mathematics.
CSC wants to study wage structures at other colleges

Developing an improved and equitable pay structure for the academic community was one of the goals of the Faculty Senate this year. The committee also has been working to improve the overall compensation structure at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) and to better understand how employees are paid.

In the months following the election which re-elected the CSC pay proposal. BGSU administration officials received feedback from employees who were concerned about wage structures. Those concerns were shared with the CSC, which then worked to develop a pay structure that would be both equitable and competitive.

According to Martin Reynolds, director of the College of Education and Allied Health. the CSC is now preparing to introduce a new pay structure for all academic employees at BGSU. The new pay structure will be implemented following the conclusion of the collective bargaining process.

The CSC will continue to monitor the pay structure and make adjustments as needed to ensure that it remains competitive with other institutions.

Graduates should try to 'measure up' to their own life standards

In his address entitled "Measuring Up," Dr. Alvin Kris, chair of the Department of Business, said that for most of this year's 18-year-olds, high school and college are just the beginning. The next 18 years will be spent in the world of work.

Dr. Kris noted that the next 18 years will be filled with challenges and opportunities. He suggested that graduates try to 'measure up' to their own life standards. He spoke of the importance of determining one's own goals and aspirations. "One should set goals and be prepared to work hard to achieve them," he said.

As an example, he mentioned the need for graduates to be prepared to work in areas such as business, education, or health care. He emphasized the importance of developing a strong work ethic and being willing to put in the extra effort to succeed.

Dr. Kris also spoke of the need for graduates to be open to new ideas and to be willing to change direction if necessary. "The world is constantly changing," he said. "One should be prepared to adapt to new challenges and opportunities."
Contemporary art exhibit is now on display

Game is a success

Space policy revised

Datebook

Faculty/staff positions

Committee forming

Classified Employment Opportunities

Classified Staff will gather Sept. 2 for convocation

Clarify your bills

Reports at opening day ceremonies

Olscamp sees 'revolution' of changes occurring at BGSU

Faculty Senate Faculty the year will see several new issues and important debate

Non-Cleveland Item

BGSU FOOTBALL 1988 APPLICATION

Vol. XII, No. 9
Bowling State University
August 29, 1988

President Olscamp will address all members of the staff at a convocation to be held on Sept. 2 in the campus Grand Ballroom of the University Center, 11 a.m.

Other speakers will be BGSU President Charles A. Yerxa, College of Business Assistant Dean Art B. Allen and Brian Evans, employee relations representative.

All employees, who are invited to the meeting, are encouraged to respond to the call of the meeting by attending.

Space, chairs, directors managers and bargainers are encouraged to attend.

Classified Staff will gather Sept. 2 for convocation

Clarify your bills

Reports at opening day ceremonies

Olscamp sees 'revolution' of changes occurring at BGSU

Faculty Senate Faculty the year will see several new issues and important debate

Non-Cleveland Item

BGSU FOOTBALL 1988 APPLICATION

Vol. XII, No. 9
Bowling State University
August 29, 1988