Excercising art is a daily job for director

An art gallery director's work is much more than what meets the eye on a daily basis, said Joaquim Nathan, director of the Fine Arts Gallery at Bluffton College. "There's more to it than saying welcome to the gallery, sitting behind a desk, and discussing the artwork," Nathan said. "I have the capability of being there to work with the public, to work with the artists, and to facilitate their work." Nathan spends a significant amount of time preparing for new exhibits, organizing the gallery, and providing educational opportunities for the community. He is also responsible for maintaining the gallery's financial records and overseeing the daily operations of the gallery.

Olscamp elected to commission

Olscamp is one of the two new members elected to the 4th member body of the Board of Trustees. He will serve a three-year term as a member of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Trustees for the Ohio State University. Olscamp's term will expire in 1985.

Olscamp is an associate professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering at Ohio State University. He has served on the university's Board of Trustees since 1982 and is a member of the Board of Trustees for the Ohio State University Medical Center.

As a member of the Board of Trustees, Olscamp will have the opportunity to provide leadership and guidance to the university in areas such as academic programs, fiscal management, and strategic planning. He will also serve as a liaison between the university and its stakeholders, including the alumni, the community, and the state legislature.

Olscamp's election to the Board of Trustees is a testament to his commitment to higher education and to the university's mission. He brings a wealth of experience and expertise to the board, and his leadership will be an asset to the university as it continues to advance its academic and research programs.

Alumni Association begins process to select the 1989 Master Teacher

Several faculty members have recently received tenure or promotion at Bluffton College. These include: Elizabeth M. Arnold, associate professor of music; Robert G. Christie, associate professor of history; and Harry B. Durham, associate professor of English.

In addition, the College has announced the appointment of a new associate dean for the Division of Education. The new associate dean is Mark A. Smith, who will assume his duties in August.

The College also announced that it will hold its first annual Career Development Conference in September. The conference will focus on career development for students and alumni and will feature sessions on resume writing, interviewing techniques, and networking strategies.

Submit proposals

Faculty members are encouraged to submit proposals for the Fall 1989 Conference. Proposals must be submitted by April 1, 1989. For more information, contact Dr. Meeting, the conference coordinator, at 271-3200.

Student life

The student newspaper at Bluffton College, The Blufftonian, has announced the selection of its new editor. The editor is a second-year student, and this is the first major change to the editorial staff in recent years.

The Blufftonian is the official student newspaper of Bluffton College. It provides a platform for students to express their views and opinions on a wide range of topics, including campus life, local and national news, and culture.

The new editor, who is expected to take over in September, will oversee the production of the newspaper, including the selection of articles and the design of the layout.

For sale

The College's athletic department is offering the following items for sale: various clothing items, metal storage cabinets, bookcase, and office equipment.

The sale will begin on September 1, 1989, and continue through November 15, 1989.

The Board of Trustees has selected John E. Haggard, Bluffton College president, as its new president. Haggard succeeds James L. Olscamp as president of the College.

Haggard has served as the College's vice president for academic affairs since 1987. He has also served as interim president several times during the past decade.

Haggard is a native of Bluffton, Ohio, and a graduate of Bluffton College. He has been a member of the College's faculty since 1975, and has served as the College's director of admissions and financial aid, as well as director of student life.

Haggard's appointment is effective immediately, and he will serve a five-year term as president of the College.

Olscamp's election to the Board of Trustees and the appointment of Haggard as president are significant developments for the College. They mark the College's commitment to excellence in education and its dedication to providing a quality education for its students.
Experiencing art is a daily job for director

As an art director, the work is much more than what is painted on the walls, suggests Nathan Olscamp, director of the Fine Arts Center. Olscamp, a mother of two, is an art major behind a marble sign that was once part of a local art show. She is aware that the job is not as glamorous as many believe, but she enjoys the challenge.

"I've worked as a graphic artist, graphic designer, and art director for many years," Olscamp said. "I find the work rewarding and fulfilling." She is a member of the American Association of University Professors and the College Art Association of America.

Olscamp is also active in community affairs. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Youngstown Art Gallery, the Youngstown Art League, and the Youngstown Symphony Orchestra. She is also a member of the Youngstown Historical Society and the Youngstown Area Chamber of Commerce.

"I enjoy being involved in the community and helping others," Olscamp said. "I believe in giving back to the community that has given me so much." She is also a member of the Youngstown Area Young Professionals and the Youngstown Area Business Association.

"I'm proud to be a part of this community and to make a difference," Olscamp said. "I enjoy being a part of something bigger than myself." She is a member of the Youngstown Area Young Professionals and the Youngstown Area Business Association.

Alumni Association begins process to select the 1989 Master Teacher

The Alumni Association held its annual meeting on April 12 to select the 1989 Master Teacher. The award is given to an outstanding teacher who has made a significant contribution to the field of education.

The selection committee, consisting of representatives from the Alumni Association, members of the Association's Governing Board, and the University's faculty, will meet to discuss the candidates and select the winner. The winner will be announced later this year.

The forum, which was held at 8:00 p.m. on April 12, was attended by over 100 people. It was moderated by Dr. Louis Kretzer, assistant vice president for research and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"I spoke on the topic of "The Role of the Arts in Education,"" Kretzer said. "I believe that the arts are essential for students to develop their full potential." He also discussed the importance of music, art, and literature in education.

Scots from the front page

The Scots, which was founded in 1909, is the student newspaper of the University. It is produced by the students for the students. The newspaper covers campus news, sports, and entertainment.

"We are proud to be a part of the University community," the Scots' editor said. "We strive to provide the students with accurate and timely news." The newspaper is available on the University's website and in the student center.

Art exhibit features Blosser works

The exhibit, which was held from April 15 to May 15, was sponsored by the University's Art Department. The exhibit featured works by local artist John Blosser, who has been a member of the Art Department for over 10 years.

"John Blosser is a talented artist," the exhibit's curator said. "His works are very popular with the students and faculty." The exhibit was held in the University's art gallery and was open to the public.

Forum focuses on harassing campus behavior

Dr. Elizabeth Ntepyi, psychology, tells students there is a serious problem on campus that should be discussed in open forums before it escalates. The topic is sexual harassment.

"We have a serious problem of unreported sexual harassment cases on our campus," Alber said. "This has come to our attention in recent days as a result of our own activities." The response is for students who have been affected.

A total of 12 cases have been filed in the past year, and 9 of these cases were handled by the Department of Human Resources. The other 3 cases are being handled by the University's Student Conduct Board. Students have been encouraged to file complaints and to discuss their experiences with their classmates.

Campaign makes it clear why you should buckle up

How many people would jump head first from the top of a three-story building? That is a question Pete Reznik asks when talking to people about wearing their seat belts. Reznik's campaign is to raise awareness about the importance of wearing seat belts.

"Every day, we see accidents that could have been prevented with the simple act of buckling up. We see people who have lost their lives or who have been injured because they chose not to buckle up," Reznik said.
