Commentary

Editor, The Monitor:

The issue is an open letter to all faculty and staff at BGRA. There is no making so much a reference to our program this semester. Academic statutes, at least as we view it, do not allow me to do this, but there is need to help students.

Research for more than 20 years has indicated that teacher expectation is a significant factor in student achievement. We should expect each student to do well in our courses.

Dr. John Smith, professor of education, and Dr. Jane Doe, professor of psychology, recommend the following suggestions to help students:

1. Help your students maintain a sense of hope. Expect that they can succeed, and you will create a more positive learning environment.

2. Encourage students to set clear, achievable goals for themselves. This will help them develop a sense of control and personal responsibility.

3. Provide regular feedback on student progress, both positive and negative. This will help students understand their strengths and weaknesses.

4. Create a supportive classroom environment where students feel comfortable asking questions and seeking help.

Recent research suggests that interventions in the classroom can be easily implemented to improve student achievement. These interventions include, but are not limited to

- Providing clear, consistent expectations for student performance
- Encouraging active, participatory learning
- Using a variety of teaching methods to accommodate different learning styles

In conclusion, we urge all faculty members to support and encourage students in their academic endeavors. By doing so, we can help create a more positive learning environment for all students.

Sessions offered on PERS and social security

University employees who are members of the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) are invited to attend the retirement seminar sponsored by the Social Security Administration.

PERS representative will visit the campus and present a brief slide orientation. All employees are invited to attend a question and answer session will follow.

Finalists are named

March finals have been named for the Outstanding Student Athlete Award. They are Jack Whitt, assistant basketball coach; Jon Etherington, assistant baseball coach; and Mark Warner, head football coach. The Outstanding Student Athlete Award will be presented May 7.

Positions are filled

Two new employees joined the staff of Al Minster last week. They are Joseph Luthman, senior systems analyst, and Roberta A. Porter, file clerk. Both are employees of the Information Services Department.

Join a committee

Classified employees interested in becoming a member of a committee are invited to submit their names for the two council committees. A three-year term on the Local Employee Committee and a two-year term on the Insurance Committee are available.

Nominations should be sent to Classified Staff Council, P.O. Box 31, University Hall.
