Campus Given Opportunity To Discuss World Problems

Subject matter for the Institute of International Relations program this winter will be presented to everyone on or off any college campus which is interested in the relationship between the United States and the other powerful nations of the world. One of the criteria for choosing a subject is that persons conducting the discussion groups can take part in them and have uncovered any questions they may have concerning the problems being pondered. The complete schedule of the sessions is printed on page 1 of this issue.

The World Student Association, Sociology Club, and Phi Chi, national psychology recognition society, are to be especially commended for endeavoring to bring such an internationally important conference to Bowling Green.

Senate Presents New Plan To Stop Heavy Absenteeism

In an effort to “persuade” senators to come to meetings, Senate this past Monday night proposed having the names of absent and tardy senators printed in the News. There are two things to be said about this.

First of all, while something has to be done to convince the senators of the desirability of attending meetings, it is debatable how much coercive effort the printing of names will have.

Secondly, it is untenable for Senate, supposedly composed of top caliber students from the student body, to have to stoop this low.

A certain obligation goes with the position of senator. Missisng meetings signifies that the obligation is taken lightly. Senators who take their obligations lightly should hardly be allowed to sit upon that body. This will print the names of absent and tardy senators, and suggests to Senate-represented areas to allow those senators who are absent or tardy to sit upon the body. The News will print the names of these senators who are absent or tardy. Senators who take their obligations lightly should hardly be allowed to sit upon that body. Falcons Face W. Ky. In Final Game

Monday's Game Is Last For Captains Long, Joyce

Eli Joyce and Bob Long, Bowling Green basketball team's two seniors, see their last collegiate action next Monday night as Western Kentucky becomes the Falcons' twenty-seventh and last for the season.

Bob Long, Eli Joyce

The game will be played in the Toledo Sports Arena and the crowd is expected to be capacity. The contest was officially added for Feb. 5, but was postponed because of hazardous road conditions.

Western, coached by Ed Diddle, Sr., defeated the Falcons earlier in the season, 67-64, at Oberlin's Recreational Center, Ky. Since then, the Hilltoppers have steadily increased their season's record to a respectable 12-3, while the Falcons losses at DuPaul and Marquette set their record at 14-12, this would mean Coach Harold Karrick would lose in his head coach.

Western Kentucky has Big Gill, 6-8 center, Jack Turner, 6-6 guard, and the Hilltopper coach, to pace the contest, which is so similar to that taught the Bowling Green. Westerners still have hopes for a bid to the National Invitation Tournament and a win over the Falcons on the central sports arena. Eos will just about clinch them for them.

Diddle, who scored 13 points against the Falcons in the first encounter, will be watched closely. His long shots in the second half and a short twirler in the last 20 seconds gave the Kernels the victory over the Hilltoppers.

As many games, this season, the Falcons were ahead at one time or another, but dropped behind in the second half, being unable to keep up the rapid pace which synthesized Harris into his most successful effort.

CINCINNATI, O. MARCH 1 (Daily Cincinnati) -- The favored Western Kentucky basketball team was knocked out last night after a hard-fought second overtime.

The Hilltoppers were trailed 31-30 at halftime. Forward Bill Huffer and center Gene Smith paced the winners with 14 points each. Kentucky forward Frank Waller was high man with 17 points.

The Queen City squad, before a crowd of 5,700 home town fans, erased their sixteen win of 24 as they were Western Kentucky's tenth loss in 26 games.

NCAA To Decide Fate Of Television

CHICAGO, MARCH 1 (NEWMEN) -- The counsel of the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets in Chicago today to discuss the still disturbing problem of television and its effect on college football.

The NCAA has declared a moratorium on televising of non-League games but will consider proposals to conduct controlled tests in various sections of the action to determine the effect of video in stadiums.

Several conferences, including the Big Ten, already have banned television of 1951 contests.

Bill Hesslowschwart, freshman, Defense: "I think it's going to take a lot of rules for the girls. We won't see much of them and they probably won't have much time to date. Their coming will be a real plus in the life of the University, but it will be very difficult for them to date. Many girls will stay in, and I think it's going to be this way. There might be some Kappa between the students and the fellows."
