CSC hears report on BGSU's growing concern of health costs

Each year health care costs are claiming a larger portion of the university's available resources. Karen Farnsworth, a senior, said, "There's a lot of concern here among students on campus as to how much the universities are going to have to pay for health care."

Following the Student Senate's resolution that the university should be required to keep student health care costs down, Senior Health Council members were asked to report on the university's health care expenses.

Kilmer said that in working with the university's health care committee, he had been "told that the university has a concern about how much the universities and colleges are spending for health care." He added, "The concern here is not the cost of what we're spending today, but the fact that the costs are going up so much and so fast." He added that the university is trying to keep the costs down by having its employees pay more for their medical insurance. Most of the employees work in the health care industry, he added.

Kilmer said that the university's health care committee has reported that it is trying to reduce the amount of money it spends on health care by reducing the average cost of the health care plans. He added that the university is also trying to reduce the number of employees who are covered by health care plans.

The university's health care committee has recommended that the university reduce the amount of money it spends on health care by reducing the average cost of the health care plans. The committee has also recommended that the university reduce the number of employees who are covered by health care plans.

High school students invited to apply for jobs

The Student Senate's Personnel Services Office is offering a Personnel Job Invitation Program to high school students. The program is designed to help high school students find part-time jobs.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The Student Senate's Personnel Services Office is offering a Personnel Job Invitation Program to high school students. The program is designed to help high school students find part-time jobs. The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.

The program is open to high school students who are interested in finding part-time jobs. The program is free, and there is no cost to participate.
Commentary

Elder, the Mentor

Some residents who are not from Bowling Green may be unaware of the "Elder Program," which is a mentoring program for students at Bowling Green. The Elder Program is open to all students, regardless of age or background, and matches students with elderly mentors who can provide guidance and support. The program is designed to provide students with a unique perspective on life and to help them develop a sense of community and belonging.

The Elder Program is run by the Office of Student Affairs and is free to all students. Participants are matched with mentors based on their interests and availability, and the program offers a variety of activities and events throughout the year. The goal of the program is to foster meaningful connections between students and mentors, and to create a supportive and inclusive campus community.

Elder Program Mentors

Elder Program Mentors are typically residents of Bowling Green or surrounding areas who are interested in mentoring students. Mentors are matched with students based on their interests and availability, and are expected to meet with their student mentee at least once a week. Mentors are provided with training and support to help them facilitate meaningful and productive conversations with their mentees.

Elder Program Benefits

Benefits of participating in the Elder Program include:

- Personal growth and development
- Increased sense of community and belonging
- Opportunities for mentorship and leadership
- A unique perspective on life and the world

If you are interested in participating in the Elder Program, please contact the Office of Student Affairs for more information.

Commemoration

Nearly 1,000 students will receive certificates of merit on Saturday (Dec. 16) at Bowling Green's Student Center on Main Campus.

Nearly 1,000 students will receive certificates of merit on Saturday (Dec. 16) at Bowling Green's Student Center on Main Campus.

Food Operations finds that giving staff 'apples increases motivation'

Food Operations has introduced a new program that will give staff at the Student Union, Dining Hall, and the Student Union Cafe apples for their effort.

The program is designed to show appreciation for the hard work and dedication of the staff members who work in these areas.

"We are happy to introduce this new program," said Managing Director of Food Operations. "This is a small gesture to show our appreciation for the hard work that our staff members do every day."
Commentary

Editor, the Mentor

Some time between Oct. 12 and Dec. 3, 1939, all the office doors of the Women’s Studies Program were vandalized. Forty on campus announcements were destroyed. Progress continued on the construction of the Castles, but steps were being taken to prevent any further acts of violence. TheWide Spread of fast food chains.

As members of the Women’s Studies Executive Committee and as responsible students, faculty, and administrators, we call for the end of this violence and destruction against lifestyle orientation wherever they occur on our campus or in our community. We also call upon our peers to join us in our campaign against violence.

Some peers, however, may not be aware of the seriousness and potential dangers of fast food chains. These students must be educated and made aware of the potential harm these chains can cause. We hope that this letter will serve as a reminder to all students that violence is not acceptable on our campus and that we must work together to prevent further acts of this nature.

Sincerely,

Women’s Studies Executive Committee

(All names from 17 departments)

Commencement set for Saturday

Nearly 2,000 students will receive degrees at 10 a.m. Saturday in Memorial Hall. The ceremony will be broadcast live over WBGU-TV, channel 11. The graduating class consists of 1,544 men and 464 women.

Schools with the largest number of graduates include the colleges of arts and sciences, business administration, education, and engineering. The smallest number of graduates come from the colleges of agriculture, pharmacy, and the graduate school.

The commencement exercises will begin at 9 a.m. with a special program for faculty and staff. The program will feature a variety of faculty members and staff from each of the colleges.

Food Operations

Food Operations has introduced a new restaurant concept that will both motivate and bring students to the cafeteria.

The "One of a Kind" restaurant will offer a variety of different cuisines, including American, Italian, and Mexican. The restaurant will be open every day except Sunday.

The concept is designed to increase interest in the cafeteria and to provide a more diverse menu for students.

In addition, the cafeteria will offer a new deli that will feature a variety of sandwiches and salads. The deli will be open every day except Sunday.

Food Operations has also introduced a new program to encourage students to eat healthier.

The "Healthy Choices" program will offer a variety of healthy options, including vegetarian and low-fat dishes. The program will be open every day except Sunday.

The changes are part of Food Operations’ ongoing effort to improve the student dining experience.

In other news, the cafeteria will be closed for a week during final exams to allow for cleaning and maintenance.

Revent or renew your library books

The library is asking students to return or renew any library books that are overdue. The library is currently experiencing a high volume of overdue books.

The library has extended the due date for all books to Dec. 30, 2022. The library will notify students when their books are overdue.

Some students have expressed concern about the overdue books and the possibility of fines. The library has reassured students that fines will not be charged for overdue books.

In addition, the library has extended the due date for all materials to Dec. 30, 2022. The library will notify students when their materials are overdue.

The library has also extended the due date for all e-books to Dec. 30, 2022. The library will notify students when their e-books are overdue.

In conclusion, the library is asking students to return or renew their overdue books. The library is committed to providing a safe and welcoming environment for all students.

Martin from the farm handle administrative and classified staff jobs has been eliminated. The position was created in 2012 to improve communication and efficiency within the university.

The new position will involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.

The new position will also involve answering questions and providing assistance to students and faculty. The new position will be filled by an existing administrative or classified staff member.
If poet had his way, Ohio would have volcanoes and a jungle

What the Buckeye state needs are three active volcanoes, a seashore and a jungle. So contends one of the poems in a new book by a transplanted Texan who teaches at Ohio University in English.

The professor is Howard McDowell, the author of 20 books of poetry, non-fiction and fiction. The poem is called "What Ohio Needs" and it's from McDowell's latest book of satirical poetry, The Duke of Chemical Birds. McDowell directed the University's creative writing program from 1971 until 1980 when he returned to the classroom full-time. His long list of awards includes two Ohio Arts Council Fellowships and two National Endowment for the Arts Fellowships, but the one that matters most to him is his induction last year into "Writers of the Past: El Paso Herald-Post Writers Hall of Fame."

"The award has a sentimental value," admits McDowell, who adds, "It's nice to be remembered by the home folks. A plaque designating him as a "Writer of the Past" hangs in the El Paso library where McDowell gained his first newspaper experience. An identical plaque hangs in his office. In that office, surrounded by piles of papers, a wall of well-used textbooks, cowboys hats and an adorned deer skull, the Texas native jokes about his adopted state and says Ohioans usually laugh right along with him.

Roberts updates text on sociology

A text, which according to its publisher sets the standard in the field of sociology of religion, has been revised by its author, Dr. Keith Roberts, sociology, Fredonia College. Roberts has spent the last three years expanding Religion in Sociological Perspective, published by Wadsworth Publishing, from 10 to 16 chapters. In order to make this widely used college and seminary text more appealing to undergraduates as well as graduate students, Roberts said he has added photos and chapters on some of the current and more controversial topics such as televangelism.

In describing his approach to the sociological study of religion, Roberts said that most students do not understand what a sociological study of religion entails.

"They expect a comparison of what different groups believe," he said. "But sociologists are convinced that belief is only one small part of religion. So this text explores the social psychology of why people join cults and how religious organizations influence society.

Religion in Sociological Perspective is available in the Fredonia College Bookstore.

Some retirement credit can be purchased by employees through payroll deduction

House Bill 58, which became effective Nov. 2, allows members of each State Retirement System (STRS, PERS and SEIS) to purchase certain types of retirement credit (military service, dependents' contributions, etc.) through payroll deduction.

Forms and procedures currently are being developed by each retirement system to accommodate this recent legislation. Members of PERS can make a written request to PERS to participate in the payroll deduction program. STRS does not anticipate establishing procedures for purchasing credit by payroll deduction before July 1, 1990.

Assistance in purchasing retirement credit, as well as other information regarding PERS and STRS retirement benefits, can be obtained by contacting the Benefits Office, 100 College Park Office Building, or by calling 372-2112.

Deadline near for submitting nominations

Faculty are reminded that if they wish to nominate a colleague for Distinguished University Professor, Distinguished Research/Creator/Professor or for the Oscob Research Award, nominations for the current academic year's selection must be submitted by Dec. 15.

Nominations received after that date will be held for the next academic year. Nominations for the Distinguished Professorships are to be made to the vice president for academic affairs and must carry the endorsement of the nominator's department head/school.

Nomination materials should include a letter of endorsement detailing the accomplishments of the nominee, a current vita and the NIH/NIHSF publication list. Nominations may be submitted by contacting the Benefits Office, at 100 College Park Office Building, or by calling 372-2112.