university and learn Its functions and principles.

During the summer months, the pond is open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily, weather permitting. Swimming is permissible only when the life guard is on duty.

Fire-Sale Fizzles As Play

By Don Anderson

The players of the Bowling Green Summer Theatre are to be congratulated for turning in a creditable performance with what would have otherwise been an incredibly poor play. The performance was in the summer theatre production "Fire-Sale," Monday evening.

Equal credit for the performance is due Dick Hoffmnn and Jim Ruhe, both of whom were outstanding in the rendition of the cliches of the play into something resembling genuine humor. Hoffmnn, especially, in a style somewhat reminiscent of Jerry Lewis and Jimmy Durante, showed a keen sense of true comedy in turning the feeble feebles of authors Horace Murphy and James J. Martin into acceptable entertainment. Ruhe, however, had his performance more seasoned would have had to share honors with no one.

A great deal of credit for a good performance must likewise be given on Jack Mullen for an effective presentation of a difficult and acting role, that of an older, blustering, drummer of the old school. Mullen, a veteran of the bowling Green stage, will be seen again.

The play itself seems to be a resurrection of a representative cross section of the bad jokes, weird and worse dialogue that have been thrown at the audience and of the numerous so-called comedies since the advent of television. These attempts at humor have been tied together by a weak and unsatisfactory attempt at satire. The show has been more a poor imitation of the original than the play being acted.

The second act provides complications which have been thrust into the theatre as a result of the activities of the technique which may be derived from any small order course in the theatre. This act does, however, provide an opportunity for the audience to appreciate the existing liasons of Ulisse, effectively played by Lee Wilson.

The graft-seeking board of trustees of the town, which is structured with the purchase of a fire engine for, in the most part, well cast and effectively played. Mayor Tilden, the artist in alcohol, is perhaps the best performance on the local scene. In fact, Art Moore plays the role so convincingly that one almost begins to wonder.

Equally well done, among this group, is the role of the sympathetic and well meaning and easily swayed Doc Braddell, as portrayed by J. B. Williams, and his assistant Mayor Tilden, the artist in alcohol, is perhaps the best performance on the local scene. In fact, Art Moore plays the role so convincingly that one almost begins to wonder.

Present for the audience to appreciate and understand are the roles of a well-trained, well-directed cast, combined with genuine theatrical talent, to wrestle with a play that is inadequate.

Pond Offers Relaxation...

The group frolicking in the sun and water are just a few of the students who daily take advantage of the recreational facilities of Urschel Pond.

Freshmen Enroll...

The group frolicking in the sun and water are just a few of the students who daily take advantage of the recreational facilities of Urschel Pond.

Of the 3000 students who registered for the fall semester, 320 are freshmen. These are two of the many freshmen who travel to university during the summer months to become acquainted with the university and learn its functions and principles.

Karl Richard, assistant professor of Art, is shown above working on the 43" x 37" oil painting of Dr. Frank J. Prout, retiring president of the university. The portraits is the result of a precedent set when the pictures of the two former presidents, R. B. Williams and Roy E. Offenhauer, were painted and displayed in the Administration Bldg.

Karl Richard, assistant professor of Art, is shown above working on the 43" x 37" oil painting of Dr. Frank J. Prout, retiring president of the university. The portraits is the result of a precedent set when the pictures of the two former presidents, R. B. Williams and Roy E. Offenhauer, were painted and displayed in the Administration Bldg.

Bee Gee News

Official Student Publication
Bowling Green State University
Bowling Green, Ohio
Vol. 35
Wednesday, July 25, 1951
No. 63

New President Will Add August Graduating Ceremony

Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, president-elect of the University, will deliver the commencement address at August Senior graduation ceremonies.

The former National Education Association official will assume his role for the first time since Dr. McDonald was selected last week.

Urschel Pond Favorite Spot For Tired Summer Students

By BILL ELDERBROCK

Urschel Pond, where swimming and sun-bathing facilities are available for students and air force trainees during the warmer months of the year, is a recreational spot for approximately fifty people per day during the summer season.

The swimming site was originally a stone quarry, which, prior to 1900, furnished crushed stone for road and railroad beds. The quarry was leased to J. E. Kelly, an attorney, about 1905 after it was a bowling alley and abandoned because of the competition of several other quarries in the area.

In 1922, the pond was leased to the Women's Club who anticipated converting it into a swimming resort. After building a small bath house on the west bank, however, the club abandoning its original plan.

After several years of non-use, according to Mr. Harry E. Thompson, a former councilman and service man, the city council began forming plans for the development of the quarry to facilitate the expansion.

In 1935, however, the pond and the surrounding property were purchased by Bertue H. Urschel. Mr. Urschel converted the bath house into the offices for the Urschel Construction Co. He built a fireplace on the east bank and superimposed a stone-covered bridge so that it could be used for swimming.

Urschel Pond Favorite Spot For Tired Summer Students

Theoden Enderbrock

Urschel Pond, where swimming and sun-bathing facilities are available for students and air force trainees during the warmer months of the year, is a recreational spot for approximately fifty people per day during the summer season.

The swimming site was originally a stone quarry which, prior to 1900, furnished crushed stone for road and railroad beds. The quarry was leased to J. E. Kelly, an attorney, about 1905 after it was a bowling alley and abandoned because of the competition of several other quarries in the area.

In 1922, the pond was leased to the Women's Club who anticipated converting it into a swimming resort. After building a small bath house on the west bank, however, the club abandoning its original plan.

After several years of non-use, according to Mr. Harry E. Thompson, a former councilman and service man, the city council began forming plans for the development of the quarry to facilitate the expansion.

In 1935, however, the pond and the surrounding property were purchased by Bertue H. Urschel. Mr. Urschel converted the bath house into the offices for the Urschel Construction Co. He built a fireplace on the east bank and superimposed a stone-covered bridge so that it could be used for swimming.

Two rather frightened and bewildered looking freshmen are caught by the camera as they register for the fall semester.

In the early spring of 1900, the pond was purchased by the University to provide more dormitory space for increased enrollment.

(Continued on page 3)
Student Farewell Party Given To Honor Dr. Prout’s Retirement

Lucille Israel, organist of the Hammond Electric Organ at radio station WLOK in Lima, has accepted an invitation to appear on the program of President Prout’s Farewell Party.

A Student Farewell Party is being sponsored by the Social Committee on Wednesday, August 1 in the Rec Hall from 8:30 to 10 p.m. in order that the student body may have a chance to say goodbye to our retiring president.

At the beginning of the summer session there was much discussion that the students would like to do something for Dr. Prout to show their appreciation for all that he has done for the campus.

The Social Committee was chosen to organize a party and Alma Payne, faculty advisor for the committee, picked a student faculty committee to plan the event.

Lucille Selbert, outstanding organist of popular music, will play for the evening. She is with stations WLOK and WIMA in Lima and is the star of “Musical Reflections” and is also on “House Party.” She will play many favorite pieces on the Hammond Electric Organ in the Rec Hall, which will be brought in specifically for the evening.

Invited to the party to honor Dr. and Mrs. Prout are the trustees of the faculty committee to plan the event. Invitations, Paul Jones, Gene Dent, hospitality, Marilyn Arps, Doris Bowman and Mary Few.

Air Force To Explain Cadet Program Here

A representative of the United States Air Force will be at the University July 26, to interview students interested in the Cadet Aviation program, and to administer the Aviation Cadet Mental Qualifying Examination for pilot and navigator training.

Applicants must be single, be in between 20 and 26½ years of age, and have completed two years of college or 60 semester hours.

The representative will be located in the “Well” of the Ad. Bldg.

Cinema Notes

Campus Movie This Week

Not For Squeamish Souls

By JIM LINMBACHER

The campus movie this Friday night is not for children or squeamish adults. It’s the original German version of Fritz Lang’s thriller about a psychopathic child killer called “M,” the shortest movie title on record.

The movie will be of interest to most fans because of the fact that a new version of the film has just been made for Columbia release, starring comedian David Wayne. Everyone who will see the new version should see the old one first. Reviewers say the old version is still the best.

Peter Lorre is the star in this German version, which has English subtitles. The campus work is one of the film’s greatest assets as it explores the mind of a maniacal killer and walks with him through the streets.

Along with the “M” movie is a 6-minute color film called “Abstractions” and features that wonderful little film, “Piddle Dee Dee,” which I told you about in a previous column. The entire movie is painted, frame by frame, on the blank film. No camera was used. All in all, Friday night’s campus movie should be one you won’t soon forget.

Saturday evening, Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson ride again in “The Woman in Green” re-starring with lovely Hillary Brooke, one of the screen’s top female threats.

Dr. Balogh Declares Drug Addiction To Be Critical Teen-Age Problem

Editor’s Note: Dr. Joseph K. Balogh, sociology department, has written the following article in light of recent nationwide narcotics scandals.

Dr. Balogh has been in communication with James B. Drumphson, Consultant on Correction and Delinquency for New York City, and Commissioner Harry J. Amsinque, Bureau of Narcotics, Washington, D.C.

The News staff felt that Dr. Balogh’s information and comments on the situation should be published in an effort to show what just what drug addiction is and what the use of narcotics can do.

By DR. JOSEPH K. BALOGH

During the past two weeks, my class in Juvenile Delinquency has been studying the multifaceted problem of drug addiction. The narcotic problem has been given nationwide attention by federal and municipal authorities.

Worst of all, is the fact that the problem has become increasingly more critical among the teen-age population. This phenomenon has been particularly very much in evidence during the past two years.

Once the human body has built up a physical dependence upon drugs, one can hardly go on living without them. It appears as if the body has developed a tolerance for these quantities. Authorities claim that it is virtually impossible for the addict to quit narcotics by himself. The physical dependency is stronger than the human will. In the last analysis, the addict will do anything to get his drugs.

The campus movie this coming Friday night is not for children or squeamish adults. It’s the original German version of Fritz Lang’s thriller about a psychopathic child killer called “M,” the shortest movie title on record.

The movie will be of interest to most fans because of the fact that a new version of the film has just been made for Columbia release, starring comedian David Wayne. Everyone who will see the new version should see the old one first. Reviewers say the old version is still the best.

Peter Lorre is the star in this German version, which has English subtitles. The campus work is one of the film’s greatest assets as it explores the mind of a maniacal killer and walks with him through the streets.

Along with the “M” movie is a 6-minute color film called “Abstractions” and features that wonderful little film, “Piddle Dee Dee,” which I told you about in a previous column. The entire movie is painted, frame by frame, on the blank film. No camera was used. All in all, Friday night’s campus movie should be one you won’t soon forget.

Saturday evening, Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson ride again in “The Woman in Green” re-starring with lovely Hillary Brooke, one of the screen’s top female threats.

Dr. Balogh Declares Drug Addiction To Be Critical Teen-Age Problem

Editor’s Note: Dr. Joseph K. Balogh, sociology department, has written the following article in light of recent nationwide narcotics scandals.

Dr. Balogh has been in communication with James B. Drumphson, Consultant on Correction and Delinquency for New York City, and Commissioner Harry J. Amsinque, Bureau of Narcotics, Washington, D.C.

The News staff felt that Dr. Balogh’s information and comments on the situation should be published in an effort to show what just what drug addiction is and what the use of narcotics can do.

By DR. JOSEPH K. BALOGH

During the past two weeks, my class in Juvenile Delinquency has been studying the multifaceted problem of drug addiction. The narcotic problem has been given nationwide attention by federal and municipal authorities.

Worst of all, is the fact that the problem has become increasingly more critical among the teen-age population. This phenomenon has been particularly very much in evidence during the past two years.

Once the human body has built up a physical dependence upon drugs, one can hardly go on living without them. It appears as if the body has developed a tolerance for these quantities. Authorities claim that it is virtually impossible for the addict to quit narcotics by himself. The physical dependency is stronger than the human will. In the last analysis, the addict will do anything to get his drugs.

Unfortunately, drug addiction may be considered a socially contagious disease. One new addict makes at least five more new addicts. The fear of infection must be removed from our communities before the problem can be improved.

Dr. Balogh Declares Drug Addiction To Be Critical Teen-Age Problem

Editor’s Note: Dr. Joseph K. Balogh, sociology department, has written the following article in light of recent nationwide narcotics scandals.

Dr. Balogh has been in communication with James B. Drumphson, Consultant on Correction and Delinquency for New York City, and Commissioner Harry J. Amsinque, Bureau of Narcotics, Washington, D.C.

The News staff felt that Dr. Balogh’s information and comments on the situation should be published in an effort to show what just what drug addiction is and what the use of narcotics can do.

By DR. JOSEPH K. BALOGH

During the past two weeks, my class in Juvenile Delinquency has been studying the multifaceted problem of drug addiction. The narcotic problem has been given nationwide attention by federal and municipal authorities.

Worst of all, is the fact that the problem has become increasingly more critical among the teen-age population. This phenomenon has been particularly very much in evidence during the past two years.

Once the human body has built up a physical dependence upon drugs, one can hardly go on living without them. It appears as if the body has developed a tolerance for these quantities. Authorities claim that it is virtually impossible for the addict to quit narcotics by himself. The physical dependency is stronger than the human will. In the last analysis, the addict will do anything to get his drugs.

Unfortunately, drug addiction may be considered a socially contagious disease. One new addict makes at least five more new addicts. The fear of infection must be removed from our communities before the problem can be improved.

Dr. Balogh Declares Drug Addiction To Be Critical Teen-Age Problem

Editor’s Note: Dr. Joseph K. Balogh, sociology department, has written the following article in light of recent nationwide narcotics scandals.

Dr. Balogh has been in communication with James B. Drumphson, Consultant on Correction and Delinquency for New York City, and Commissioner Harry J. Amsinque, Bureau of Narcotics, Washington, D.C.

The News staff felt that Dr. Balogh’s information and comments on the situation should be published in an effort to show what just what drug addiction is and what the use of narcotics can do.

By DR. JOSEPH K. BALOGH

During the past two weeks, my class in Juvenile Delinquency has been studying the multifaceted problem of drug addiction. The narcotic problem has been given nationwide attention by federal and municipal authorities.

Worst of all, is the fact that the problem has become increasingly more critical among the teen-age population. This phenomenon has been particularly very much in evidence during the past two years.

Once the human body has built up a physical dependence upon drugs, one can hardly go on living without them. It appears as if the body has developed a tolerance for these quantities. Authorities claim that it is virtually impossible for the addict to quit narcotics by himself. The physical dependency is stronger than the human will. In the last analysis, the addict will do anything to get his drugs.

Unfortunately, drug addiction may be considered a socially contagious disease. One new addict makes at least five more new addicts. The fear of infection must be removed from our communities before the problem can be improved.

Dr. Balogh Declares Drug Addiction To Be Critical Teen-Age Problem

Editor’s Note: Dr. Joseph K. Balogh, sociology department, has written the following article in light of recent nationwide narcotics scandals.

Dr. Balogh has been in communication with James B. Drumphson, Consultant on Correction and Delinquency for New York City, and Commissioner Harry J. Amsinque, Bureau of Narcotics, Washington, D.C.

The News staff felt that Dr. Balogh’s information and comments on the situation should be published in an effort to show what just what drug addiction is and what the use of narcotics can do.

By DR. JOSEPH K. BALOGH

During the past two weeks, my class in Juvenile Delinquency has been studying the multifaceted problem of drug addiction. The narcotic problem has been given nationwide attention by federal and municipal authorities.

Worst of all, is the fact that the problem has become increasingly more critical among the teen-age population. This phenomenon has been particularly very much in evidence during the past two years.

Once the human body has built up a physical dependence upon drugs, one can hardly go on living without them. It appears as if the body has developed a tolerance for these quantities. Authorities claim that it is virtually impossible for the addict to quit narcotics by himself. The physical dependency is stronger than the human will. In the last analysis, the addict will do anything to get his drugs.

Unfortunately, drug addiction may be considered a socially contagious disease. One new addict makes at least five more new addicts. The fear of infection must be removed from our communities before the problem can be improved.
African Student Attended Four Universities While In States

By Nick Millet

To Fansi Onwuamah Mgbako, graduate student from Nigeria, West Africa, summer session at Bowling Green was a major stage in his life, as he has been continuous and uninterrupted since he arrived in this country in September, 1948.

Mgbako attended University of Missouri and Villers University State Teacher's College of Pennsylvania. In the possible an earlier graduation from Pennsylvania and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Fansi says he can compare Bowling Green with those other colleges since he has only been here during a summer season, but he does feel that the courses he is taking are practical and fit in well with his plans for the future.

Plans To Establish School

These plans are primarily to start a combination school and college in his home town of Renegu, Nigeria, as soon as he finishes his studies here. The school will include all grades from kindergarten to the senior year in college. The reason for his including all grades is that at the present time his people have practically no opportunity for education. As Fansi so phrased it "Here it is just a question of going to school, at home it is a question of having schools."

He also plans on establishing an agricultural cooperative for the midwestern states, an agricultural cooperative for the south and set up well planned leisure hours for the villagers.

Mgbako is always interested in education as a means of helping his people. He majoring in economics at Franklin and Marshall and plans for transferring there after he graduated. He was very much impressed by Gimbels, department store when he arrived in New York, and when he discovered a chain store in Philadelphia, he decided that he would set up Gimbels for his people in Africa.

While studying at Franklin and Marshall Mr. Mgbako played soccer. He also is a member of the University swimming team are participating in the swimming events. He is also working as a computer in the London Company.

The actual trip will last 20 days with visits to geological complexes near Boulder, Colorado and Colorado Springs. Also included in the trip will be a view of the Mississippi River, a river tour of the University of Nebraska, the Virginia City, a piece in Palm Springs, a visit to the historic site of the Florida National Monument near Jenness, Utah, a stop at the Devil's Lake State Park near Bara, Wisconsin, and Indian Dunes State Park.

Three days will be spent in Colorado Springs and the sightseeing will be given an opportunity to visit the Garden of the Gods, the North Cheyenne Canyon, the Garden of the Gods, and the Florence Petrified Forest. The return trip will include a visit to the capital of the Badlands of Wyoming.

Official Announcement

The University of Missouri Communications Office announces that a student, who has violated the rule which prohibits smoking on the grounds of the University, has been suspended for one week. The student, who has a history of smoking on the grounds, has been suspended for the remainder of the semester.

On the occasion of the University's centennial, the students are requested to report to Mr. H. Gladstone Steele.

The THE STYLE CENTER

Store for Women

Welcome to our city and shop! Let us help you with your shopping problems.

Free... 29c Drene with purchase of 57c size. Both bottles of shampoo for 57c.

G & M DRUG

Phone 9621

AUGUST

Place orders now for Personal Name Enclosure Cards.

Take advantage of group printing prices.

REPUBLICAN PRESS

134 East Wooster Phone 5721
Paul Brown Arrives; Camp Officially Open

The "World Champion" Cleveland Browns are here again.

The arrival of Paul Brown and his coaching staff last Monday, along with the arrival of the last of the players yesterday, marks the seventh straight year that the Browns have trained on the campus. Each of those years the Browns have finished at the top of their respective leagues.

The Browns were champs of the now defunct All-American Conference from 1946 to 1948 and won the Championship of the reorganized National League last year.

The sessions on the field are preceded by a skull session, and the team usually begins practice around ten in the morning and two in the afternoon.

The practice sessions of the Browns will be open to the public as usual, but there will be one or two closed sessions devoted to sharpening-up for the All-Star Game at Chicago on August 17.

The team will remain here until September 13, when they will break camp and return to Cleveland.

3 Golf Tournaments Set This Summer; First Is Underway

Three golf tournaments are scheduled for the college golf course this summer.

A men's single match play tournament is now in its final stages with Art Bates and Frank Kraft meeting to determine the winner.

Bates and Kraft both have won three matches and they will stage the finals sometime this week. Bates has defeated Ennis Walker, the former BGSU golf captain of 1947, Wiedner, and Smith. Kraft has defeated Rehark, Burns, and Everet.

Another men's singles tournament will follow this first one and a doubles tournament will be run at the same time.

THE BIGGEST "PLUS" IN CIGARETTE HISTORY

"NO UNPLEASANT AFTER-TASTE"

...added to the world's most famous ABCs

Always milder
Better tasting
Cooler smoking

"CHESTERFIELD IS THE ONLY CIGARETTE of all brands tested in which members of our taste panel found no unpleasant after-taste."

From the report of a well-known research organization

ALWAYS BUY CHESTERFIELD