New Dormitory Nears Opening

The new residence hall east of Conklin Quadrangle should be ready for occupancy around September 10. F. Eugene Beatty, director of buildings and facilities, stated today. The new residential and dining complex, which will house 1400 students, has been under construction since February 1963.

Members of the three upper classes will be eligible to live in the new dormitory, Dean of Students Donnal V. Smith stated. Units A and B, on the west side, will be for men. Units C and D, on the east side, will house women, the dean said.

Each unit will house 350 students. There is one lounge on every floor except the first floor, where there are two.

Both a formal and an informal lounge are located on the first floor. The informal lounge is a game room set up to receive Channel 70 so it could be used as a classroom during the day, the dean said.

The final inspection for Unit A took place about two weeks ago, and that section was turned over to the University, Mr. Beatty said. "Now we are cleaning, waxing the floors, and placing the furniture."

"Unit B was inspected June 15, and we will begin work there in the next few days. We anticipate that Unit C will be inspected around July 1-15, and Unit D will be inspected by August 1. Unit E in the center will be the last to be completed, sometime in August."

Mr. Beatty explained that the outside planting and landscaping will be delayed until fall. The walks and drives are being completed now, he said.

"The center of the campus will eventually move to the northeast," Dean Smith explained. Another dormitory, a duplicate of this one, will be built north of the present residence hall. Construction will begin in late 1964 or early 1965.

First Concert Given Tonight

Robert Guralnik, pianist, will perform in the first of the Summer Activities Programs at the University tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Recital Auditorium of the Hall of Music. Mr. Guralnik's performance was publicized as in July in the last issue of the News, however, that date is incorrect.

Mr. Guralnik has traveled throughout Europe on two recital tours and is to return to Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, and Denmark next fall for another recital tour.

Tonight he will begin his program with three sonatas by Scarlatti: E Major, G Major, and d minor.

The next number will be the complete Schumann works of Carnival, op. 9.

After the intermission, Mr. Guralnik will present the Concerto in the Italian Style; Allegro, Andante, and Presto, by Bach.

Mr. Guralnik will then play three Chopin selections: Nocturne in f minor, op. 55, No. 1; Etude in A flat Major, op. 25, No. 1; and Polonaise in C sharp minor, op. 26, No. 1.

Ending the performance with two Ravel selections, Mr. Guralnik will play Jeux D'eau and Toccata from "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Department Chairman Named

William F. Schmeltz, dean of the college of business administration, has announced the appointment of Dr. Joseph C. Buford, associate professor of geography, as the new chairman of the department of geography.

Dr. Joseph C. Buford

Dr. Buford officially replaced Dr. Lowry B. Karnes, June 8. Dr. Karnes will continue teaching and plans to do extensive geographical research. Dr. Karnes has been on the University's faculty since 1948 when he joined as an instructor.

In conjunction with Dr. John Hiltner, Jr., Dr. Buford initiated the course Geography 110 last year. The course is a new physical geography sequence course.

Dr. Buford's area of regional specialization is geography of Europe, cultural geography, and political geography.

He has traveled throughout the United States and Europe. Dr. Buford is a lieutenant-colonel in the United States Army Reserve. He also is a member of the Association of American Geographers.

At the University, Dr. Buford has served on the Spirit and Traditions Board and the Speech Activities Committee.

National Accreditation Given For Graduate School Degrees

The Ph. D. degree in English, which was awarded for the first time by Bowling Green State University in 1963, has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges, according to an announcement by BGSU President William T. Jerome III.

The Association, leading general agency for the review of university programs in north central United States, at the same time accredited the University's Specialist in Education degree, which was first awarded in 1962.

Accreditation means that the credentials of the students holding such degrees will be accepted without question by other educational institutions and prospective employers, according to Dean Lloyd A. Helms, of the University's Graduate School.

The University joins seven other institutions in Ohio in offering accredited doctoral programs. The Ph. D. degree is the highest degree that can be earned, and requires a minimum of three years of study beyond the bachelor's degree.

The Specialist in Education (Ed.S.) degree is granted by the University after completion of a minimum of two years of graduate study in educational administration or mathematics supervision. The Ed.S. degree in educational administration has grown out of state certification requirements for school superintendents calling for two years of study beyond the bachelor's degree. The University has conferred the degree upon five graduates.

Rehearsals Begin For Summer Play

Thirteen players have begun rehearsals for the Campus Summer Theater presentation for the first summer school session, scheduled for July 9, 10, and 11.

The theater group will present Eugene Ionesco's "Rhinoceros," by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc. Dr. Charles R. Boughton, instructor in speech, is the director.

Appearing in the production will be: Lynn Apple, Clarence Babs, Van Berlin, Gabe Cazell Jr., Mathilda Cochran, Ed Coursey, Carole Derr, Dorothy Derr, and Darrel Dominique.

Also appearing will be: Skip Fox, Peg Riggle, James D. Ryan, and Mary Ryan.

Tickets will go on sale July 6 at $1 for adults, 25 cents for high school students, and 10 cents for students and other holders of summer session identification cards.

Seniors To Be Fitted

Measurements for caps and gowns to be worn in the August commencement are being taken now in the bookstore in the Union. A cash payment is not needed at this time to order the commencement attire.

BGSU is the first institution in the nation to offer a program leading the Ed.S. degree in mathematics supervision.

The program provides the opportunity for selected students to combine instruction with actual experience in supervision of classroom instruction in mathematics. This year, six students are receiving stipends from a National Science Foundation grant which permits them to devote full time to this six-year study.

Accreditation of the University's Ph.D. and Sd.S. programs followed a review of all graduate work at BGSU by four representatives of the North Central Association of Colleges. The Representatives, all leading U.S. educators, read over 100 pages of self-study materials prepared especially for them and spent four days on the campus. The team then submitted a 22-page report recommending approval.

Accreditation of the Ph.D. degree in English paves the way for the introduction of other doctoral programs. The University will not have to seek approval for each new doctoral program but will be subject to periodic review of all academic work in 1971. All member institutions of the North Central Association are reviewed every 10 years.

The report of the N.C.A. review team commended the University for the continuity of leadership at the graduate level, improvement of the quality of undergraduate students since 1961, and especially for the quality of the prospective candidates for the Ph.D. degree in English.

The team examined the first dissertations to be submitted for the Ph.D. degree and said the "student - authors achieved a thoroughly competent level of performance."

The first three degrees were conferred upon Dr. Linda Wagner, Perrysburg; Dr. Walter C. Daniel, chairman of the English department, St. Augustine College, North Carolina; and Dr. Arthur L. Ford, Assistant Professor of English, Heidelberg College, Tiffin.

The team also termed compelling "evidence that the English faculty is intellectually vigorous with a reasonably active research and publications program."

For a beginning program, it described the Ph.D. degree in English as "well-conceived and well-executed" and the "quality to date as seen in its degrees already granted is equally remarkable."

LeLong Takes Appointment To Be President's Assistant

Dr. Donald C. Lelong, the University's new institutional research and planning officer and assistant to the president, took over his duties last week in his office in 1009 Administration Bldg. in the President's Suite.

Before coming to the University, Dr. Lelong had been director of the Graduate Center Study and lecturer in economics at the Colorado College in Colorado Springs since 1962.

Dr. Lelong served as assistant representative of the Ford Foundation in Pakistan where he had secondary responsibility for field administration and coordination of Foundation programs totaling more than $3,000,000.

At Syracuse University, Dr. Lelong was instructor in business statistics from 1956 to 1957 and assistant professor of economics and statistics in 1958. He acted as assistant dean of the College of Business Administration from 1958 to 1960.

"My job," Dr. Lelong said, "is to make a continuing study of the management of the University and individual studies upon request of the president or the vice president."

"As I see it," he said, "universities have been growing so rapidly and the problems of universities are becoming so complicated that the tradition of the president being familiar with individual problems and making decisions based upon convictions or hunches is now outdated and inadequate."

"As a result," he continued, "institutional research and planning officers have been appointed in many universities to provide top executives with scientific analyses of university operations and administration. These officers provide information needed to make good management decisions."

Dr. Vogeli Returns To Campus From Russian Teacher Exchange

Bowling Green State University mathematics professor Bruce R. Vogeli has just returned from a stay in Russia since Feb. 1 where he taught and conducted a study of mathematics programs in communist schools. Dr. Vogeli returned to Bowling Green last weekend.

He taught mathematics courses at the Lenin State Pedagogical (teacher training) Institute in Moscow for two months after his arrival there. Dr. Vogeli commented about his classes "I had one section each of second, third, and fourth year pupils and liked my classes very, very much. The students were kind to me and seemed to enjoy my lectures. Each class gave me a gift when I left them in April. During this two-month period I also gave a series of special lectures for the entire student body at the Institute and felt I was well received."

Since April, Dr. Vogeli divided his time between work at Moscow's Academy of Pedagogical Science and several special secondary schools in that city for pupils with exceptional mathematical talent. He said that the Academy is the agency responsible for all research dealing with the teaching of mathematics and other subjects in the Soviet Union. He had been working with the Academy on the development of a new mathematics program similar to some already in use in American schools. In the secondary schools he taught classes and visited with students, teachers, and administrators.

Dr. Vogeli made several trips outside of Moscow including one to Leningrad where he visited the university and several special secondary schools.

The professor had an article accepted for publication in the Soviet journal, "Matematika v shole."

"The Russian people," said Dr. Vogeli, "are warm and friendly and made me feel right at home." He said he has developed a very high regard for them as human beings.

Dr. Vogeli was in Russia under the terms of an ad hoc exchange arranged by the U.S. State Department and a Soviet committee for cultural relations with foreign countries. The exchange called for him to trade places with a Russian counterpart; however, the Soviets have not yet indicated they will send a mathematician to BGSU.

The area provides facilities for tennis, handball, paddle ball, basketball, and volleyball. Equipment for these activities, with the exception of tennis, may be secured by presenting an ID card at the main desk of Conklin Hall.

Raymond C. Whittaker, Assistant Dean of Students, encourages all students to make use of these facilities.

Enroll Now For Stratford Trip

Through arrangements made by the English department, Bowling Green students are invited to participate in a four-day, non-credit workshop in August at the Shakespeare Festival Theatre, Stratford, Ontario, to help commemorate the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth.

The workshop will include attendance at night performances of Shakespeare's "King Lear" and "Richard II" and to Wycherly's "The Country Wife." Group leaders will conduct seminar discussions prior to each performance.

During the four-day stay in Stratford, the group will take guided tours of the Festival Theatre's facilities and the Shakespeare Museum in that city.

A $50 fee includes all expenses except meals. This fee will pay for theater tickets for the three performances, lodging for three nights in double occupancy rooms with baths, transportation by University station wagons, and insurance.

Dr. Joseph C. Price, assistant professor of English, said that all questions concerning the workshop should be directed to him in 206 University Hall, or to extension 609.

The workshop is limited to 20 students from the University. Dr. Price said interested persons should make application with the Director of Summer School and Off-Campus Programs, Dr. Ralph H. Geer, 222 Administration Bldg., as soon as possible. No applications will be accepted after next week, he said.

Rathskeller Open Now

New summer school hours for the opening of the Rathskeller have been scheduled for 8 p.m. until 11:30 p.m. every night.

Letters To The Editor

Editor:

This letter is in reference to the June 18 issue of the B-G News, page 1, article BGSU To Welcome 320 Frosh Sunday, paragraph one. It states, "Approximately 320 entering freshmen, with exactly twice as many men as women students..."

I call your attention to the number 320. It is mathematically but not realistically possible to divide this group into two sub-groups, one containing 106% people and the other containing 213% people.

Perhaps the Registrar's Office should check this figure before it enters any additional publications.

James E. Norton

Mr. Norton:

What can I say, but that you may add this new one to my long list of "goofs."

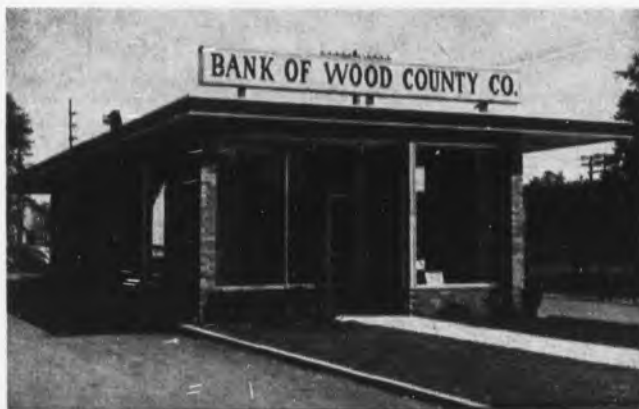

Anyway, there are approximately twice as many men as women in the Extended Summer School Session... how's that?

Bookmen's Annual Display Due In Grand Ballroom July 1 And 2

Between 30 and 40 educationally-concerned book companies will display their products in the Grand Ballroom of the University Union next Wednesday and Thursday, July 1 and 2, for the annual Bookman's Club display.

Members of the Bookman's Club, including most of the book company representatives in the state, visit all state and other universities and colleges each year to display their books and other educational materials.

Dr. Ralph H. Geer, director of off-campus programs, explained that this program was designed to give the bookmen an opportunity to display their products before a large public at one time. This eliminates the constant calling of individual bookmen throughout the year, and it also gives the representatives the chance to meet customers whom they otherwise would not be able to call on during normal rounds of their sales areas.

Teachers and other educators attending the display can see products important in their fields, which they might not have the opportunity to know of or see if they depended on individual bookmen to call on them.

Each company represented in the display will set up two six-foot tables for the show.

Items the companies will be showing besides books, include projectors and other visual-aids materials, maps, and other educational materials aimed at the teacher and education administrators. The display also will feature reading machines which are designed to aid learning speed and comprehension.

The displays will be open to the public Wednesday, July 1, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. and on Thursday from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Twenty-eight students from Bowling Green left Monday for an eight-week language study tour of Germany.

The students will combine studying in the University of Salzburg with traveling to historical and cultural centers of Germany.

The group is being accompanied by Miss Eva Marie Gabor and Dr. Liuda L. Alssen, both instructors in German at the University. They will serve as director and assistant director respectively of the study.

The students left New York by airplane, and will return by plane August 17. The group will study in residence from July 6 to August 15 in Salzburg, Austria, which is on the border between Austria and Germany. Each student will live with a family in the same neighborhood.

Mechel, Margretta E. Lee, Gretchen Styhlmiller, Marcia J. Sweda, Marilyn Kreischer, and Barbara A. Mercer.

Federal Grants Awarded In Teaching And Geology

Federal agencies have delegated two grants totaling $25,330 for use at the University, President William T. Jerome III announced.

A $21,600 award from the Division of Research and Development of the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare will provide funds for six traineeships for undergraduate students to study teaching methods for slow learning and mentally retarded children beginning this fall.

A $3,730 National Science Foundation grant that will be matched by University funds will be used to purchase optical equipment for the geology department.

The six teaching trainees will each receive $1,600 stipends plus a waiver of University fees while carrying courses designed to prepare them for teaching handicapped children. The grant also covers expenses for administering the program which will be under the direction of Dr. Louis Brown, assistant professor of education, until the arrival later this summer of Dr. Darrel Minifie, newly appointed associate professor of education. Dr. Minifie is presently director of special education at Buena Vista College in Storm Lake, Iowa.

The new optical equipment and accessories for the geology department will make possible the revision and updating of the general curricular sequence of mineralogy, optical petrography, igneous and metamorphic petrography, sedimentary petrography, ore microscopy, and micropaleontology. The grant will be administered by Dr. John Coash, professor of geology.

First Graduate Courses In Journalism Designed For High School Advisers

The first courses to carry graduate credit in the University's School of Journalism will be offered during the second five-week summer school session, July 20 to Aug. 21.

More Study Areas Open

Two additional study areas have been opened to accommodate students living on campus.

These areas are: the east dining room in Commons, which will be open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, and the west dining room from Founders Quadrangle, which will be open from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. every evening.

Professor Jesse J. Currier, journalism school director, said that three hours credit will be given for the course, Supervision of School Publications; and one to three hours for Special Problems in Journalism. Dr. Jeff Clark, associate professor of journalism, will teach both courses.

School publications is designed for teachers and prospective teachers of high school journalism and advisers of school newspapers and yearbooks.

Special problems will involve research, practical projects, or intensive reading designed to meet the needs of the student's special interest in journalism.
