Ford discusses function of U.S. role in Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held what one termed a candid discussion with President Ford about some of the controversial aspects of his administration's foreign policy, including the American role there and should be.

Senator Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), who led the delegation, asked the president about the effects of American military involvement in Indochina and whether the United States was still committed to the containment of the spread of communism.

President Ford responded that the United States was committed to the containment of communist expansion, but he added that the approach to dealing with the problem needed to be more measured and less confrontational.

Senator Jackson also asked about the role of the United States in supporting anti-communist rebels in South Vietnam.

The president acknowledged that the United States was supporting the rebels, but he emphasized that the goal was to create an environment where the Vietnamese people could choose their own future. He also noted that the United States was working to help stabilize the region and prevent a wider war.

Senator Jackson asked about the impact of the war on American troops and the possibility of a phased withdrawal of United States forces.

The president agreed that a phased withdrawal was a possibility, but he emphasized that such a decision would be made based on the progress of the peace negotiations and the situation on the ground.

The meeting was described as productive and务实 (realistic) as both sides sought to understand each other's perspectives.

Summer job market tight

Experts predict few jobs

By the Associated Press

Find a summer job will be tougher than ever this year for the millions of high school and college students looking for work to earn some spending money for the rest of the year.

Government and private analysts predict that more than five million fewer students will be competing with the usual millions of job seekers for fewer jobs, so will be harder to find.

High school and college students who are looking for work this summer will have a much tougher time finding jobs than in recent years.

The Labor Department said the number of job seekers was expected to decline by about 500,000 from last year.

"We are predicting that the labor market will be tight this summer," said Labor Secretary Robert L. Miskel.

"There will be fewer jobs available, especially in the retail, restaurant and construction industries," he said.

Students will have to work harder to find jobs this summer, according to Miskel.

"They will have to be more selective and realistic in their job searches," he said.

Red schoolhouse completion set for fall

By Martin Crick

Superintendent

Early fall is the present target date for the Educational Memorial Center, usually referred to as the little schoolhouse, to be completed on the campus, according to Dr. David Crick, Dean of the College of Education.

The schoolhouse, which was originally designed by architect Ezra Mercier, is now being raised by the oldest student members of the class of 1970, who are in the junior (B.A.) and junior (B.S.) classes.

The cornerstone block was delivered yesterday by Carl Bricker, of Pacific Concrete Products Inc., who is a member of the class of 1970.

Dr. Crick said that the cornerstone block will be placed at the foundation of the new schoolhouse.

Most dealers report slumping sales

By Joe Walter

Most sourcing Green new car dealers report sales are off 10 to 25 percent in the first three months of 1975, but two major manufacturers said sales are up 20 to 30 percent.

Robert H. Dobbie, owner of two Datsun dealerships in Prospect Heights, said, "Our sales are up over last year. We sold customers who were economically minded and who got a good product." Dobbie added that Datsun had not sold as many cars as in the first three months of 1974 but then during the same period last year sales were down 10 percent.

Wilbur Doren, manager of the Max June Auto Sales, 740 S. Main St., said small car sales have been holding steady, butNOTE OTHERS contacted this new car every day. "This report thing has passed the gauntlet," according to Glenn D. Thomas, general manager of Ralph Thomas Chevrolet, 91 N. Main St., a new car dealership.

Ticket scalper could face UAO prosecution

According to Campus Safety Director Dale Shaffer the scalper was also could be arrested for peddling without a license according to a Bowling Green city ordinance.

Violation of the peddling ordinance carries a fine per day for each day of violation.

However, UAO has not contacted Campus Safety on the issue and Shaffer said he there is little his office can do in apprehending the scalper. "I don't think it's too feasible from an enforcement angle," Shaffer said. "I think it is a problem that should be handled by the police.

Shaffer said his department also would help UAO prosecute if UAO decided to act.

The reviewer, Randy Michael Sigler, comments that the play "Androcles and the Lion," a serious work by Armenian Arthur Haig premiere at the Joe S. E. Brown Theater, had been performed before nearly every actor had performed in a school or community theater. Sigler describes the director's vision both under- and genuine playfulness and a roll win duller all in and a roll win duller all in. Sigler also notes that the characterizations were equally well done and troublesome for some scenes. Sigler further states that the director's playful energy, cliché for economy, fused loudness for spontaneity, and genuine playfulness were virtues the director F. Lee Meles. Falconc hidden Beggar Women (blonde) was one of the few bright spots last Saturday as Bowing Green fell to Miami, 8-4. The Falcons are currently occupying a controversial position in the Western Athletic Association.

Falcons' offense was hindered by a number of factors, including a lack of teamwork and individual errors. The Falcons' defense, however, was able to hold Miami to six goals, a feat that many coaches have praised.

The game started off well for the Falcons, with an early goal from the defensive unit. However, Miami's offense quickly took over, scoring a goal on the Falcons' goalie. The Falcons' defense was able to keep Miami in check for most of the game, but eventually succumbed to the pressure.

The game ended with a 3-2 victory for Miami, but the Falcons' defense showed a great deal of promise. The team is looking forward to the next game, where they hope to continue their good form.
