Towers go coed; Prout switches
By Julie Hall
Staff Reporter

Students wishing to live in a coed dorm next year will have to look beyond Prout Hall but only for an Off-Ear.

In the fall, Prout Hall, which was converted to a junior-senior women's dormitory and alternating floors of men and women, will be closed to the first five floors of Off-Ear West and West.

The changes are a result of a reduction of the number of resident advisors (RA's) (by 25, according to Fayetta Paulsen, residence program coordinator).

"This budget is trying to cover the entire amount it had last year," she said. "We are trying to operate on a budget that would not increase student rates or increase our deficit.

Budgets for the BSU-Ian year are $4,250,000 for residence halls and $3,900,000 for dining halls, according to Etna. Dining, residence hall and residence hall planning, budgets include the operation of Lifetime Associates (LAA), food service, and some general, centralized and essential services in residence halls.

The Board of Trustees approved the budget and the recommendation to reduce the amount provided.

She said reductions will be made primarily in largely upperclass halls to allow money to be assigned to freshmen halls.

Print will have two RAs. Paulsen said that since five years ago Prout was an all-women's hall and "very popular.

STUDENTS WHO LOVE to Prout will pay for their room only. Paulsen said Prout will operate a public dining room and students will be able to pay cash and eat there or purchase meal coupons and eat elsewhere.

AAUP discusses salaries benefits
By Jamie Perrons
Staff Reporter

Faculty salaries at the University, relative to salaries paid at the other state university in Ohio, have slipped from their place in 1974-75 to seventh.

And salaries could drop to ninth place within three years. According to Dr. Richard C. Carpenter, professor of political science, and a member of the board of directors and a board member of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). Faculty salaries were discussed at AAUP's April meeting. According to a newsletter published by AAUP, the Faculty Association, the average salary paid to a tenure faculty member at the University in 1974-75 was $23,987. And the State University average salary is ranked at 8th.

While some state institution averages have risen to rank during the last three years, two of the schools with improved positions—Youngstown and Cincinnati—are located in Ohio.

THE FACULTY association and the administration earlier this year established the Climbing the academic ladder, seven RAs are submitted to the college. Two of the new RAs will be assigned to the women's dorms.

CAPTAINER SAID AAUP thinks "faculty should be allowed to make its promotion decision. The professors and the administration doesn't want to know the promotion process."
union dues a drag

Very few Americans can make an absolute case against union dues. Unions brought together workers, gave them a voice, and within a generation, improved working conditions and pay so that the average American worker could afford a better quality of life. But, like any other organization, unions can have their drawbacks. One is especially unfair to college students.

Most students pay for part, if not all, of their education four-year jobs. In addition, some students work part-time year round. Most of the time they must make some sort of union, and spend it to $400 in monthly dues. It's required for the job.

One Maggie high school student worked one day a week bagging groceries and still had to join the union. He paid a huge fee, not $400 a month was too late. His paycheck barely covered that. No no? No?

Twenty states have enacted Right to Work laws, which make compulsory unionism illegal. Thus, students are not required to join a union. In addition, representatives of the law school, in Congress, would exclude only students from mandatory union membership.

Called the "Student's Freedom of Choice Act of 77," the bill has the bipartisan support of both Committees from both sides.

The News considers this bill an excellent one and quickly for its introduction.

It solves students' union problems without going too far. Any student enrolled in a college program of secondary, vocational, or higher education cannot be discriminated against for not belonging to a union. However, unions that have their strength on large memberships and long-term employment will still have to correct improper working conditions, pay, benefits and retirement plans for permanent members.

Thus, students can work at a job just for income and not over contribute to unions that do not serve their union employees.

don't be internationally naive

Since our opposing view is welcome, we feel a sincerity in seeking the advice of Mr. Vincent by setting our prior view of Mr. Vincent's foreign policy. It is wise to Mr. Vincent has not done his homework concerning Mr. Carter's administration and its philosophies in foreign policy.

The following was Mead's signature "Statement to the World" on January 29, 1977, Carter announced, "The United States will meet its obligations to help break a deadlock that led to the 1973 war. This statement was the go-ahead sign for the establishment of the first Arab-Israeli partial normalizations known as the Tel Aviv-Palestine Declaration to restart on their decade of "Mobilization."

THE TRILATERAL COMMISSION is a by-product of David Rockefeller's (Chairman of the Board of Chase Manhattan Bank) Council in Foreign Relations, which is a highly secretive organization of intellectual vandals who are developing the global philosophies of the Rockefeller Organization.

The Trilateral Commission's ultimate goal is world government under a World Order Council, centered in North America, Western Europe, and Japan. The U.S. is the military and financial leader.

The following members are indicative of the total power of the Trilateral Commission: Paul Volcker, President, First National City Bank, Harold Steinberg, Harvard University, Harold Brown, United Nations Secretary General, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Secretary of State Gerald Ford, Secretary of War Donald Rumsfeld.

If the Commission achieves its goal, the current systems of individual and sovereign nation states would be replaced by a global government of nations consisting of a global internal state.

In his Article titled "The New World Order." American Opinion April 1, 1977, William P. Haeberle states, "According to sources in the state department of Trilateral papers have directly influenced the functioning of the Rand and Foreign Policy committees of the United States Congress."

Here is a statement of facts: Mr. Vincent stated that Carter "told the world that their internal business is not our business, that the world is not our business. " Unluckily it also stated that "he (Carter) must make a stand on the global stage of Mobilization."

Mr. Vincent is probably an excellent Secretary of State. However, the fact that he is the Secretary of State, is a difficult one to face. With the new United States, Mr. Vincent is an international diplomat and must be able to handle the United States in an international manner.

Mr. Vincent, please, just for the good of the United States, hand over to Mr. Carter's new administration the International Military Force Gold, the Line of the Co-las, the formation of the International Energy Agency, and stop in its establishment a new international currency, which replaces the United States dollar and gold.

The general report and its influence after the Preliminary Report to the Senate is an excellent one. The report is an excellent one. It's a good idea to have Mr. Vincent and Mr. Carter's new administration to take a look at the Preliminary Report of the Senate on the United States Gold Plan.

Trilateral Commission's powers of the global state: Mr. Vincent's new administration will have to give up the United States and the world government to the Global state.

Mr. Vincent, please, just for the good of the United States, hand over to Mr. Carter's new administration the International Military Force Gold, the Line of the Co-las, the formation of the International Energy Agency, and stop in its establishment a new international currency, which replaces the United States dollar and gold.

Blasting--trade learned through trial and error

By Harold Tillander

"I got a big blast from some things blown up, but I'm getting satisfaction out of doing things right," Ron J. Stonerock, a superintendent for Precision Blasting Company, said in his truck and talked about his job.

"It started out as a summer job when I was in high school. I've been blasting now for 12 years," he said.

He laughed as he said he had learned to blast by experimentation.

"It's trial and error when you first start," he said. Because of the precautions taken to prevent injury and damage, the use of explosives in a residential area is reasonably safe. We can blast as close as 3 feet from homes. I've never hurt anybody or caused more than $50 damage at one time," Stonerock said.

BEFORE a charge is set, area roads are blocked and two-way radios turned off, Stonerock said.

"We block the roads and make sure radios are off as well as they don't set off the blasting caps," he explained.

The enrollment of women in the College of Business Administration has increased steadily in the last 6 years, according to Marie Hodge, assistant to the dean of the College of Business Administration.

"I presume that the reason is because there are no longer as many education programs available," she said.

Accounting, in particular, is a field that is opening up for women, she said.

The business world knows that it will lose money if women are unemployed, Hodge said. "The job outlook for women does look promising, but that will depend on the performance of the women competing in business." The College of Business Administration hasn't made any changes in its curriculum. Hodge said. A 5-year major offered fulfills the same requirements whether male or female.

PROF STUDIES COMMUNICATION SKILLS

By Kristi Kohm

Dr. Harry W. Hoemann, associate professor of psychology at the University, has received renewed funding of $154,814 from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to continue his study of communication skills of deaf and normal children.

This is the second renewal Hoemann has received since the funding started in September 1970. Since then he has received more than $300,000 and this study has become one of the largest ongoing research projects at the University.

"I'm glad the project has enjoyed such continuous federal support," Hoemann said.

Hoemann said he is holding a full-time research assistant in July with the project and hopes the position will be filled by the end of the month.

During the last seven years Hoemann has evaluated and compared the development of communication skills of deaf children and those who hear.

Although many deaf children have normal intelligences, deaf youngsters are often in the fifth or sixth grade by age seven instead of normal children in the acquisition of basic communication skills.

The next stage of his research will be directed at effectively teaching deaf children in formal communication situations such as exploring the role of a card game to encourage without showing them.

"SCHOOL FOR the deaf need a great deal of time learning language because there is a particular tendency in communication," he explained.

GRADUATE COLLEGE RECOMMENDS COMMUNICATION SKILLS

To improve quality of experience

The Graduate College at the University is reviewing many of its programs and attempting to improve the quality of experience for graduates.

"I am interested in a quality control program," John E. LaTourette, dean of the Graduate College, said. "I am not understating from colleagues of other universities, we have ideas that hopefully will be carried out, that are in the birth to the development of workshops.

THERE WILL BE added in the University credit hours method of teaching a program centering around campus or off-campus experience.

CMU edges BG in invitational

By Bill Kostin
Associate Sports Editor

Falcon women's track coach Dave Williams pointed to a large scoring chart in his office recently and noted, "This is where we lost the meet."

"We were in the lead at halftime, Central Michigan (CMU) it in our favor. And this was only the second final event Saturday."

In the tennis, we were shelved by them (Central) 143-146 and in the American Men, they won us 3-1 in the red run and 361 in the Missouri relay, those three events cost us dearly."

The Falcons captured the Missouri relay invitational team title over the weekend at Whittaker Truck.

Central, paced by meet-\-record performances by Jane Prince in the shot put (40.86 m) and discus (123.93 m), paced 533 points to win the three events. And this was the Falcons finished second for the third straight season.

Hale, Milton solidify pitching staff; BG takes 3

By Terry Goodman
Executive Sports Editor

For the last two seasons, Sewing Grosh had a "number one" starter in Stu Thiede. But, there is no longer a "number one." By Young has graduated, though, nobody has taken leadership of the Falcon pitching corps, skipper Don Purvis is still in the best of spirits.

Falcon golfers take 4th

By Kevin Coley

Ohio State's golfers captured the first three individual finishes, fashioned a total of 32 birdies and took the lead after first-round play, the Buckeye finished 2 strokes ahead of the Minnesota State Kangaroos, shared third place Stanford (360) by 1 stroke and finished 10th at 386 in the 13th annual OSU Golf Tournament held Friday.

With their record-setting total, the Buckeyes finished 2 strokes ahead of Stanford, shared third place Stanford (360) by 1 stroke and finished 10th at 386 in the 13th annual OSU Golf Tournament held Friday.

Women netters shutout Kent

By Cheryl Gescke

The Falcon's top three returning singles players Mary Lee Ho, Karen Swick and Karen Kurt were the chief assets of this match, and their winning ways Saturday as they dropped a 6-3 decision to powerful Wesleyan University.

"The key of the game was our penalty situations," said Kurx. "We're their biggest game of the season," said BG coach Bob Kurx.

"It was a good day for us," said Lorrain. "I'm happy with the win because we played well and that should be a good contest."
