Gripes about SGA heard at BU meeting

by Paula Winslow

Student Government Association candidates voted to work for better relations between minorities and SGA and to help students with their gripes about SGA at last night's BU meeting.

About 35 candidates attended the meeting, and those running for major positions were also invited.

Noting that he had little contact with students, SGA presidential candidate, said cooperation is needed between students and SGA.

The candidates began discussing proposals and issues in their personal experiences.

The candidates were divided into several major categories.

According to Student Government Association rules, the new administration will not be able to initiate any projects until the new administration is confirmed.

sports

by Joe Mencher

While most sports activities were either postponed or cancelled yesterday, two teams moved indoors for a match at 7:15 p.m. and then moved outside for a bonus to a 7-0 victory. Since they played indoors, the two teams were forced to play pro sets, which are shorter than regular sets.

“Quite a few matches were close right to the end,” BG coach Bob Gill said. “It was not our best match overall, but when we had to we played well enough.”

RUDY VITTER defeated Wayne State’s Bob Jackson, 6-3, in first singles and BG’s Barry Conlan, Dave Epstein and Mike Zekas all followed with wins to give the Falcons a comfortable 2-0 lead at the end of the singles competition.

Zekas built a 9-4 lead in his sixth singles match with Wayne State’s Oscar Gamarra, and then had to ward off a comeback on match point before winning, 16-14.

Both Conlan, at number two singles, and Epstein, at number three, had to fight for their victories, squeaking out 10-9 and 10-8 wins, respectively.

Conlan’s singles match completed and it gave the Falcons a comfortable 4-2 lead at the end of the singles competition. Falcons a comfortable 4-2 lead at the end of the singles competition.

Grips about SGA heard at BSU meeting

Dana Kerlik, SGA semester running for president, said she thinks SGA needs "someday" to hear about the key. She added that Symonds had three or four other leaders which "were legitimately given to her."

Also, Symonds and Maurer met with Burke and Myers, who were university assistant vice president for police services, and adi about SGA executive vice president for special services, and it was a very important position.

JONES SAID he was given the key position because "It's easier to start some new offices in parking services than it is to start some new office in parking services."
The acid rain battle: economics vs. ecology

Once again, economical and ecological forces are clashing. This time it's over the effects and controls of acid rain, the airborne solutions of sulfur and nitrogen oxides formed from sulfur and nitrogen oxides released in the burning of fossil fuels, principally coal. Economists and representatives of Midwest coal-producing states talked at the acceptance of tighter air pollution controls that would result in the threat of acid rain. Reasoning: It would be politically unacceptable.

Coal producers argue that the reason for the production of coal and other fossil fuels offsets the environmental effects of acid rain. Ohio produced more than 60 million tons of coal which is more than $571 million generated from its sale.

Environmentalists contend that the sulfuric acids released from coal burning can be removed to lessen the threat of acid rain.

But the catch is the cleaning of coal burning will be costly, thus the resistance from coal producers.

As the coal producers attempt to distance away from its dependency on oil, coal is becoming a more viable alternative to the other methods of coal producers.

The effects of acid rain are widespread. Plants and animals already are dying off as a result of acid rain, and its long-term effects on humans are not readily known. But acid rain effects everyone.

The question to be answered is whether the preservation of our environment outweighs the income acquired from the production of coal.

The environment is too important to let money stand in the way of its protection. The effects of acid rain on our future generations may be even more severe than the immediate consequences.

Spending the necessary money now may turn out to be an investment in the future. After all, we only have one environment.

Money put-downs to end conversations

WASHINGTON - Almost every week the topic of conversation about money on the telephone in my house is, "Well, my roommate just called me at the office if you'd like to talk some more."

"I never talk mortgages at a parking lot," said one person. "But I'm sure someone in New York City has figured out a way to make money these days."

"So guess where Becky and I are going to this weekend."

"I went to the supermarket today and had one round of drinks, a bottle of Beaujolais, soup, a main course, and a dessert."

"FOUR OF us went to a simple dinner."

"FOUR OF US went to a simple dinner."

"MY CHILDREN don't know our adjusted telephone number."

"DOING!" The reason for this predicted low turnout are many. Several students suggested that it's the trend for a general lack of interest in the election process. These students cite the ever increasing number of people who have voted in past SGA elections.

News exploited by others

I worked for the newspaper at another university before transferring here last fall. While on that paper's staff, I was warned to avoid mentioning politicians or the brand names of products in the election. The reason, I was told, is that after I would call a candidate, "If you want advertising, they'll have to pay for it." Last week at a Rep. John Anderson organizational meeting, the suggestion was made that among our promotion methods should be letters to the editors of local newspapers. Remembering my lesson about free plugs, I told the group no paper would print such a letter. Another member agreed and that suggestion was abandoned.

"How do you manage to keep up with the competition?"

"I'm putting together my March of Dimes."

"If I figure how much I know about what the dollar is worth, do you know what I would have bought with my insurance money?"

I disagree with his views of the President's performance so far, that is to be expected. But by writing this I am criticising the News for allowing a political biased article to print. For that matter, it will be interesting to see if Anderson is the second paragraph is deleted, if this letter to the Editor is published. From your experiences in organized sports, I know that even if you are always a part of a team or a partner in an activity, it never changes the way you referee catches and penalties the player who is doing the damage.

do not all that it should be, here too is another office in the elections, you please contact me before Tuesday, April 15. For those students who feel SGA is still eligible to run if they submit their pre- qualification number to me by noon on April 15.

'Success' is defined as the offices in which there will be a very heated race for a position. It is important to all organizations to have a president who best reflects the view of its members or constituents. If you vote for no other office in the elections, you should at the least vote on the person who will mold the attitudes and goals of the organization for the upcoming term. Remember that a 10 and validation card are an absolute must to vote. Your validation card is the only way pull workers can be assured that you have not voted at the other polling place. If you are interested in being a part of the student body, please contact me before Tuesday, April 15.

BESS ALSO said that college students will be employed as part-time heads as auxiliary officers. He said the students are full-fledged police officers enrolled in the University's criminal justice program.

A full-time crime prevention officer's position has been created, and Bess said he hopes to fill that job by May. The crime prevention officer will deal primarily with housing-related security problems, while Jesus will deal with academic building security, he added.

With the inclusion of parking services into Campus Safety, Bess said that division will be divided into four units.

The PARKING enforcement unit will be responsible for writing out codes for parking tickets. The traffic planning and research unit will assess traffic and parking needs, post traffic and parking signs where needed, determine pedestrian traffic flow and relocate parking lots if needed.

The records and registration unit will be responsible for registering cars and keeping records of traffic violations. The facilities and transist unit will be concerned primarily with the condition of parking lots and the coordination of travel lines, such as last quarter's shuttle bus system.

Bess said he is optimistic about the reorganization, but added, "it will probably be summertime before everything is in place and running smoothly."

Dave Leawoodski / Sports Editor

Denny Stolz will be trying to answer some questions this spring that have been "experimenting" when Bowling Green opens its spring football practice Monday.

The two biggest questions facing the Falcons this spring are who is going to play quarterback and who is going to start at offensive tackle.

"There's a lot of competition at quarterback," Stolz said. "We finally have competition on the defense, and I like competition on the offense.

"I'm going to 'experiment' during spring camp. And at some point in time, we're going to have to choose a quarterback and shoring up the offensive tackle position for next fall's team.

"I'm not making a final decision right now. I'm going to let each of those players compete. And I may have some questions I have by the end of spring camp.

"We have as much perimeter speed as we've had in a long time. And we have a lot of depth at our defensive tackles. Again, we're going to have a lot of quality competition at those positions.

"I'm going to try and get them as much game experience leaving Jim Schumann as the top Virginia to help fill the void at tackle.

"Jones from Ferrum Junior College in Virginia to help fill the void at tackle.

"The Falcons return lineman Todd Browning, Dave Windatt, Chip Otten, Carl Rosser, Jeff McCormick, Tom Valentine, linebackers Doug Carr and Steve Raabe with Joe Moton, Lee Williams, Jake Gates, ends Tim Ross and Craig Dye. Also returning are Rick Wright's backup last season and is a fullback and halfback."}
