Media underpinning economy issue

CINCINNATI (AP) — The economy appears to be the No. 1 issue for voters who will choose the next president, but the media have diminished their coverage of issues other than the economy, according to a survey of University of Cincinnati professors.

Senator from Ohio, Richard Lugar, said the economy is the “most important” issue of the campaign.

NASA to try satellite grab again

CAPE KARASERAS, Fla. (AP) — Challenger’s astronauts will try again today to catch the orbital Minus 3 satellite, which is on a collision course with the Earth.

The satellite, which was launched in 1980 by the European Space Agency, is expected to hit the Earth later today.

President Reagan and the Democratic candidates are likely to spend considerable time discussing the size of the defense budget and social spending, according to the survey.

Women are more inclined to be suspicious of claims that what is good for General Motors is good for the country, the survey said. They are more likely to believe in government intervention than the men who voted for Reagan.

"We live in a global community," said Edward Luttwalk, executive director of the university’s center for international education and law.

"We must be prepared to deal with the challenges and opportunities presented by the global economy," he added.

Budget balancing bill debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate yesterday began shifting a $25 billion bill with hundreds of provisions designed to reduce the federal deficit for the rest of the year.

The 249-199 vote follows a debate that lasted more than 20 hours.

The possible slim chance of finishing the work before a week-long Easter recess begins Friday. Major events are:

* Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn., could vote only that the Senate would "do what we need to do" in dealing with the bill.
* Senator Tim Wirth, D-Colo., said the Senate Finance Committee and the Republican leadership lack the will to pass the bill.

The vote was taken at 4:20 a.m. in the early hours of the night.

"We need the legislation to move before the Senate recess," said Senator Robert Dole, R-Kan., who is expected to face a difficult bill.

"If we wait until tomorrow," Mission Control told the astronauts today, "we’ll wait until tomorrow," Mission Control told the astronauts today.

Astronauts are expected to be at the time of landing.

Rumors are that the mission will be a success.

We are in good shape and anticipate the return of the Challenger later today.

WSA events to promote awareness

President Reagan supports the committee plan, Donn said.

"The wind flattened through the flags of France, Nigeria and Malaysia as the Plant Hall集合 at the Student Recreation Center last night to kick off the first annual International Awareness Week."

During an alarm Friday night, Patrick Jaffe, a non-university third-year student, allegedly struck William Hoda, Rogers assistant professor of the month.

"The student, who was arrested and taken to Wood County Jail, where he is held on $10,000 bond, said he would not answer questions," police said.

Surgeon probe market quotes

by Art Buchwald

The latest news from the medical world is that surgeons are having more difficulty attracting patients. (Operating room rates are too high because of rising and deranged medical modeling costs.) Surgeons are investigating every possible market, even attracting and buying marketing people to expose their products.

The competition is fierce, and the surgeons are struggling to attract patients including a hospital will offer to get a patient's kidney transplanted for free. Meanwhile, another surgeon who works out of the major hospital is offering for $500,000 a kidney from a person who was run over by a bus.

It was an actual offer, and it was accepted.

"What type of operation is an 'Operation Mattress'?" I asked the patient.

"It means," he told me, "you'll get a new bed from the hospital."

I asked him how the hospital could afford to give him a new mattress.

"We have to keep up with the Joneses," he replied.

"But the Joneses aren't going to keep up with you," I said.

"That's why," he said, "we have to keep up with them."

"How often will you get a new mattress?"

"Every month we will have a distinction of the month," he said, "and if you qualify for the 'best mattress of the month,' you'll receive 15 issues of this beautiful magazine."

"What an ingenious marketing ploy," I said. "I know a number of the Book of the Month Club members who would be interested in this..."

"But I don't need a hernia operation," I said, "I'm already a member of the Book of the Month Club."

"Then you can join the 'Operation Mattress' maker at the same low prices. And you'll receive a notice in the mail that you're eligible for the operation..."

"But I feel fine," I said, "and I don't need a hernia operation."

"But," he said, "we have to keep up with the Joneses."

"And how do the Joneses feel about this ploy?"

"They're not interested," he said, "but they're happy to see that we're trying to keep up with them."

"But I don't feel the screws tightening all the time," I said.

"That's because," he said, "you feel the screws tightening all the time."

"Well," I said, "I think I'll pass."
Accreditation improves BG's image

Accreditation, a process which enhances the University to regional and national status, is important to Dr. Robin Cormier, assistant provost, in reaching the university's goals. "One of the benefits of accreditation is that the team offers advice on how the University can improve." Cormier says.

In addition to accreditation of the entire University, 14 colleges or departments have been accredited. The College of Education is being re-reviewed. "We want to show students they are part of a very high quality program at BGEC. Many schools like to hire students coming from an accredited school because of its quality," Corkier says. "We go through this process every five years for both recruiting and placement." Cormier said.

The College of Education has been accredited since 1964. The state of accreditation is shared with 10 other universities out of the 41 eligible in Ohio, he said.

Cormier said the University's ability to carry out the mission is evaluated every five years through the curriculum review. The University first was accredited in 1916 and was reaccredited again last year by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The University must meet four criteria before its accreditation is reviewed. The University can improve, according to Cormier.

The team compiles its findings and recommends improvements to the president and administrators to discuss the University's strengths and weaknesses and recommended improvements.

Fair provides testing for health check

University students will be able to check their health through six tests including blood pressure, glaucoma, heart rate, and body composition. The tests and other activities are designed to alert members of the community to any health problems they may have.

The Bowling Green Lion's Club will be giving information as to what the team offers to students. The team offers advice on health and body composition.

"After looking at the results, we will be giving information as to what you can do to improve your situation." Karen DeRosa, assistant director of the Student Recreation Center, said.

DeRosa said a group from the Wellness Center will be administering a stress test to students coming from an accredited school because of its quality. The team offers advice on health and body composition.

A mural planned for West Hall will have special significance to students who will eventually use the facility and to Adrian Tio, who will be adding the artistic touch to the building. "The student-producer of art who came to the University in 1979, has already spent over a year in planning the mural on the history of communications for the renovated West Hall.

Another responsibility Tio has acquired is the national presidency of the Organization for Women in Art, History and Education. The organization aims to provide support for the teaching of the foundations of art careers mainly through conferences and seminars. "It is rewarding to see the students are getting the best. I'm altways looking for new ideas to improve my teaching," Tio said. As principle adviser for the organization, Tio is very anxious to see the major problem will be in the students, many of whom call him "Tio."

He said his teaching conviction "comes from my own belief that someone taught me once and now we've got to pass that on and help the students keep the cycle moving."

Artistic touch

Dr. Tio, an assistant professor of art, works on a student's pastel sketch during class. The artist has spent a year planning a mural exploring the history of communications for the renovated West Hall.

Marketing club wins honors at convention

By Don Lee / Staff reporter

The University chapter of the American Marketing Association was named the International Collegiate Chanter Leadership Conference in Chicago over the weekend.

The University AMA chapter is the largest business organization on campus, said senior marketing major Rose Illinois, chapter director of public relations.

In the past, there have been speak- ers from Owego-Otsego, Inc., Mar- shall Orange and Laver Univision, AMA sponsors tours of area businesses and hold a four-day career forum for students interested in business and retail majors. The organization also sponsors a Student Program, which a marketing student spends a couple of months from the field in which he or she is interested.

Next year, the University chapter will host the AMA regional confer- ence.

University leases 'wheels' for functions

by Stephanie Lopprwy / Staff reporter

The University leases 'wheels' for functions. Don Coppes, account clerk for Transportation Services, said the service has been provided for many years with the list of vehicles available including vans, sedans, station wagons and Greyhound buses.

The University leases a vehicle for personal use, the service frequently provides vans for the student majors who must travel to do their student teaching. The athletic department also uses the service ex- tendedly, according to Coppes.

"Fortunately, we have had no accidents with any of our vehicles so far," Coppes said. "Sometimes our buses break down, but only minor repairs were needed."

The key points encountered by Transportation Services is the need for more buses when more than one group must travel at the same time. When the need arises for additional buses, Coppes said the depart- ment works with an outside agency to provide the needed vehicles.

Arrangements for use of a vehicle depend on the advance of the date it is needed. The rate charged depends on the number of miles and the length of time it is needed, but Coppes said the prices compete with current rental agency rates. All rates include the cost of insurance for the vehicle, he added.

Grandmothers refuse to tell where money is hidden

SHERIDAN, Texas (AP) — Two Texas grandmothers refused Tuesday to tell a county judge where a friend had hidden an estimated $45,000.

Evelyn Hargett and Dorothy Pauline Lindsay, both 64, were ordered jailed Sunday after five days in detention because they refused to divulge the money to a friend they had hidden.

A lawyer for Hargett said she had no problem helping her friend hide the money. She had apparently been told by the friend to keep her mouth shut.

"I didn't tell them where it was," Hargett said. "All they did was yell at me. I didn't tell them anything." She said she had no problem helping her friend hide the money.

"It is a matter of an elderly person being looked after," she said.

HARGETT and Lindsay are standing firm in their belief.

They are being held in a small cell.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Foreign Relations Committee failed yesterday to avert the collapse of the Republican-dominated body's law disallowing the President's five-month-old decision to sell aid to El Salvador. The day before, the committee had been working on a compromise to maintain the aid to El Salvador while providing a veto power to Congress. But the Democratic minority was unwilling to accept a veto by the administration, and the Republican majority was unwilling to accept a veto by Congress. The result was a deadlock, and the Senate was left with no option but to move on to other business.

In Columbus and Cleveland tomorrow for an appearance there either the day before or the following day, President Reagan and First Lady Nancy Reagan are expected to speak about the importance of maintaining a strong presence in Latin America.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Foreign Relations Committee aides yesterday disclosed that the Republican leadership was planning to block the bill providing $1.1 billion in aid to El Salvador unless Congress gave them the authority to cut off the money if they so desired. But the Democratic minority was unwilling to accept a veto by the administration, and the Republican majority was unwilling to accept a veto by Congress. The result was a deadlock, and the Senate was left with no option but to move on to other business.

In Columbus and Cleveland tomorrow for an appearance there either the day before or the following day, President Reagan and First Lady Nancy Reagan are expected to speak about the importance of maintaining a strong presence in Latin America.

Parents face jail for refusing to send son to public school

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mark and Don Fresh, who refuse for religious reasons to send their 14-year-old son to a public school, face 10 days in jail after being fined by Judge Calvin Hutchins yesterday. Ashtabula County Judge Cafaro Hutchinson sentenced the Williamsville couple after learning that Andrew Fresh was still being home-schooled on Friday. However, the judge stayed the sentence for 10 days pending an appeal.

The Freshes, who are Roman Catholi- cists, have not yet been charged with contempt of court. They can file a petition to be heard by the Supreme Court in the fall.

The motion filed yesterday with the Supreme Court seeks to overturn the attendance law.

The new agreement, Ste- phens said, is "very regulat- able," shorter and requires less expensive, less expensive, less expensive litigation insurance or insur- ances. He blamed Chessie's "ineffective init- ial approach" for the contro- versy.

BG nine drop three to WMU; allow Falcons to take two more

Eight runs are enough to win most games, but that was not all Bowling Green’s offense could muster in its last home game over the weekend. In fact, the Falcons offense was nonexistent at mid-field Saturday.

In the four-game series Friday and Saturday against Western Michigan, the Falcons scored one run or less in three of the four games. BGSU is now 2-6 overall against the MAC teams.

The Falcons offense showed signs of life Sunday, however, hitting .400 for the game. But the Western Michigan pitcher, Tim Climer, limited the Falcons to one run, finishing the game with a 3-1 win.

The Falcons again made mistakes in the field, committing five errors on Sunday.

The two losses leaves BG with a 5-14 record, while BSU raised its record to 13-11-1.

In the fourth and fifth innings, the Falcons went on to score five runs, with two doubles knocking in two runs and another run scoring on a double.

It spelled another good pitching performance from sophomore pitcher Laura Murphy, who gave up just two hits and struck out six in 7.2 innings with the score of 3-1. Jim Cox pitched the final two innings and was tagged with the loss.

Bowling Green scored the first run of the game in the fifth inning and increased their lead to 5-0 in the seventh. Jim Cox pitched the final two innings and was tagged with the loss.

The Falcons beat the team from Miami University by 126 points to 81 to win the MAC title.

Roger Coan, the coach of the women’s team, said that the team was pleased with their performance.

“The Falcons have been competing well all season long,” Coan said. “We are very proud of our team.”

Galley named Falcon MVP

Athletic Dept. stages last hurrah for Falcon hockey team

By Mike Quinn

Over 80 people attended the banquet at the Crowne Plaza in the downtown area last Friday to honor the 1984-85 Bowling Green hockey team.

Five Falcons received individual honors. The most prominent was also recognized as the The Most Valuable Player, going to junior forward Gerry Gallant.

GALLANT, named first-team all-Chicago, a spot on the NCAA All-Tournament team and most recently all-American honors, is definitely one of the best of my life. Gallant is a natural talent who really had it hard to single out one player. If I had to put a name on the book, then the 1984-85 Falcon MVP was.

The Falcons also had an all-Academic American in senior Tim Black. Black had the top-grade point average among all all-American Americans with a 3.8 GPA in accounting.

Junior Tom Ruff was picked for the team with his strong penalty killing abilities. He was also the team's top kill leader, leading the club against three opponents to keep 30 play passes in all attempts.
