Gorbachev gets U.S. invitation

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev today sent a new invitation to President Reagan promising a summit this fall. The offer came in a letter which arrived in Washington, but he said: "Generally, without reason, I do not make promises." Secretary of State George Shultz gave Gorbachev the president's letter when they met in Moscow.

"This is not just a sound," Gorbachev said as a possible visit to the U.S. "When I was young, my parents used to tell me, I may travel just for pleasure, but now I need business.

News endorses Wurgler-Dalton

It is an uncommon experience for the News to choose the front-runner, or even highly qualified candidates for president and vice president of Undergraduate Student Government.

Usually, one group of candidates is the clear-cut front-runner, while others display enthusiasm, but no punch.

That is not the case this year. We have a slugfest on our hands. During interviews Saturday and Monday, each of the candidates showed enthusiasm, but no punch.

Seldom have we seen so many with solid back- round, poise, leadership and service to students.

One group of candidates is led by John Pohlman and Julie Dalton opposition David Robinson and Jim Perry. Off the ballot, there is an unusual strong team, Christopher Reiter and Charles King, who were forced to run as write-in candidates due to last-minute actions of other candidates.

As is tradition in every USG presidential bid, each candidate stressed the importance of unity in the campaign.

Each candidate stressed the importance of unity in the campaign.

This year's crew of candidates. We hope that no matter who wins, the others stay involved in USG and contribute. If that happened, we could see the most productive administration in recent years.

At the university, there is no lack of enthusiasm in this presidential campaign. While the other candidates showed concern about the state,.only Wurgler-Dalton presented written documents which exist in this country.

It is in this preparation of concrete plans that the other candidates have to choose among a field of highly qualified candidates for president and vice president of USG.

We hope that no matter who wins, the others stay involved in USG and contribute. If that happened, we could see the most productive administration in recent years. The BG News is published daily Tuesday through Friday during the academic year.
At-Large Representative candidates

Barry Wurgler (P) and Julie Dalton (VP)

Barry Wurgler, junior political science major, is presently Undergraduate Student Government student representative on the Pre-Law Society. He was elected in a USG primary election in his freshman year as a member of the National, State, and Community Affairs Committee in addition to the Election and Operations Board. He is also a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Julie Dalton, junior interpersonal and public communications major, is presently an at-large representative and chair of the Athletics Committee. She is also a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Barry Wurgler, junior production and operations management major.

Jim Perry (VP) and David Robinson (P)

David Robinson, junior political science major, is national, open and community affairs coordinator for Undergraduate Student Government. He is a member of the University committee on Financial Aid and serves on the Interfraternity Council. He was a page in the Ohio House of Representatives, and is presently a resident advisor in Founders Quad.

Jim Perry, junior interpersonal and public communications major, is District 3 representative for Undergraduate Student Government. He is also a resident advisor in Founders Quad.

Charles King (VP) and Chris Helmick (P)

Chris Helmick, junior political science major, is presently an at-large representative for Undergraduate Student Government. He is a member of the Board of Trustees. He served on the Advisory Committee on General Fee Allocation.

Charles King, junior history major, is a member of Theta Chi fraternity and Phi Alpha Delta honorary.

Mark Apple, junior finance major, is presently a junior at Student Council and former vice president of Sigma Sigma Sigma. He said, "I'd like to further develop the representative position in the eyes of the students." He said that if he were elected, he would like to try and improve that. "We have a role in the community, and I want to become more involved with all students." he said.

Jenny Hassan, sophomore accounting major, is a member of Delta Delta Delta. She said that Undergraduate Student Government should re-focus its energies from 19 to 21. "We need to refocus our efforts on issues such as divestment to concerns "closer to home." such as proposed fee increases and the cutbacks to already funded programs." She noted, "We need to make sure Undergraduate Student Government is not just a forum for students to express their feelings, but as a voice to represent the student body in the eyes of the students," he said.

Danna Stein, sophomore business major, is a member of the Pre-Law Society and Republicans. She said that it is important that we don't just have a forum. "We need to make meaningful changes around campus." She added that if elected, she would like to work with Undergraduate Student Government to make sure that they have a forum and a way to make meaningful changes around campus.

Steve Wise, sophomore undecided major, is presently a junior at Student Council and former vice president of Sigma Sigma Sigma. He said, "I'd like to further develop the representative position in the eyes of the students." He said that if he were elected, he would like to try and improve that. "We have a role in the community, and I want to become more involved with all students." he said.

Debra Slav, sophomore business major, is a member of the Pre-Law Society and Republicans. She said she believes more students should become involved with USG. "I worry that a lot of people don't know what USG does. . . they really aren't aware of a great deal for other students.

Kim Strong, junior pre-jurisprudence and philosophy major, is a member of the Pre-Law Society and Republicans. She said that she believes more students should become involved with USG. "I worry that a lot of people don't know what USG does. . . they really aren't aware of a great deal for other students.

Richard Cole, freshman business administration major, presently serves as an at-large representative to Undergraduate Student Government. He is also a member of the Student Senate and Alpha Phi Omega. He said, "I'd like to further develop the representative position in the eyes of the students." He said that if he were elected, he would like to try and improve that. "We have a role in the community, and I want to become more involved with all students." he said.
Platforms focus on common goals

by Trina Courtney

Communication and student interactions with University officials are sometimes subject to criticism. Student Government is in the common forum of the three houses running for president and vice-president positions this year. The students are looking for ways to target better organizational communication.

"Communication needs to be improved in USG internally and externally," Wurgler said. He said he did not want to stop the attempts to communicate to the campus.

"We'd like to attend Chi Omega meetings on a regular basis concerning the issues that arise between students and the city, like Springfield," Wurgler said.

In an effort to make USG larger through better representation of the student body, Wurgler is focusing the third part of his campaign on student enhancement.

"Student enhancement is concerned with the creation of a better environment for the growing age and minority representation," Wurgler and Dalton have done a great deal of research concerning minority recruitment.

"We're dealing with the problem of the low ratio of minority students on campus, so we would like to put together a student task force to look at high schools with minority enrollment and speak about it to the students," Wurgler has a similar idea.

"Our attempt could work with the community relations aspect of the campaign," he said.

The write-in team of Chris Robinson and Charlie King stress communication throughSG focus on common goals.

"The campaign will deal with issues concerning students so the USGs can effectively support student problems," Robinson said.

"We (also) want to continue direct interaction between the students and the administration," Robinson said of the Fellowship and minority recruitment issue.

"We're going to see if we can get another meeting for the minority students," Robinson and Perry feel that the minority student population has done enough to ensure the rights of the group.

"The USGs of the past have not been aggressive enough in challenging the administration to make it green to make students' rights are upheld," Wurgler said.

Wurgler said the word "communication" can be seen on the ticket. "Leadership is communication," Wurgler said and the students. Robinson said USG did not do so in the past and we want to challenge the administration now. Robinson and Perry would also like to create a new program for students to attend some of the free programs.

"We would like to create an essay contest on what the present help would organize the president's and vice president's campaigns," Wurgler said.

The write-in team of Chris Robinson and Charlie King stress communication through SG focus on common goals.

"The fire was toward the front of the trailer, between the lightly-packed bales. A wrecker was used to tow the 500-pound bales, each 5 feet tall, 4 feet wide and 1 foot thick out of the trailer. Firefighters wearing breathing gear had to enter the trailer and took the wrecker's tow cable to each of the bales. Firefighters had managed to remove 40 of the bales from the trailer by 7 a.m., he said.

"The Fellowship organizes other Programs in which University students participate, games and providing refreshments for the community. Students can help the needs of the people in the community," she said. "We are pleased that the Fellowship offers tutoring for people who are having trouble with their studies.

"The purpose of the program is to provide college students with the open ability to define vocational goals and later practical skills," he said. "We are pleased that the students can help the needs of the people in the community. Members of the Latino Student Union will help by organizing an Easter egg hunt, and the Latino Club Alpha fraternity is planning games and providing transportation for the homeless.

The Fellowship operates other programs in which University students participate, including poetry/short story programs, and Creative Youth, a program that helps local children develop ideas to help high school students through their social science and physical science.

John Philip Sousa is in town this week and he's not going away. The Sousa band of the early 1900's is being brought back to life by the 152 members of the University Symphonic Band and the Toledo Symphony Orchestra beginning tonight. The idea was born from interest in Sousa's music, that has been heard for several years prior to reconstruction efforts because the concrete work underneath the steps began to collapse, making them unsafe, he said. Repair work on the steps began last summer after the state inspected the structure and authorized repairs to be made.

"If new steps are not put in, these are good people in the University are not totally disabled," he said. A few years prior to reconstruction efforts at Moseley Hall, he said.

The services offered by the handicapped students, Cunningham said, are learning disabled - students who use handicapped facilities, as well as other examinations, taped textbooks for students who are visually handicapped, and can give us a broad range of disorders and students are actually labeled as slow learners. lems," he said.

The forum on handicapped students will address all the problems that arise for any type of handicapped student.

Housing hazards examined

In March 1982 when University students residing at 215 Mainville returned from spring break to find their apartments and belongings destroyed in a fire caused by a defective gas stove, Eric Sunburg, then a University senior, said in a 1982 News article that there was no fire extinguisher and no detectors in the building.

Violet said tenant disconnect smoke detectors in the building.

"I was working about a year when they moved in," he said. "Ninety-nine percent of the detectors we put in don't work because the tenants wind it. I cannot tell you how many batteries we have to replace in May, not because they're dead, but because they're missing."

Violet said tenants disconnect smoke detectors on purpose at the alarm being set off when they cook, and he said wanting the students of the possibility of fire was little good.

"You can warn them, but young people are going to be young people. They figure it's never going to happen to them," Violet added that since the 1982 fire he has installed fire extinguishers in most of his apartments. He said putting smaller extinguishers in the individual units keeps tenants or vandals from waiting them by setting them off for no reason.

Overall, Violet said he believes there are housing violations in the city, but they are not a widespread problem.

"They (violations) are on a much smaller scale than in bigger cities. There are no points in Bowling Green," he said.

Media pros give sound advice

by Julie Wallace

"Students get real experience instead of just using the textbook, and that is very beneficial to their future," said Terry Rentner, graduate student in mass communications.

Rentner said her goals in planning the week were to bring in some big names in the field and to generate more interest in the media careers.

"The week is a great opportunity for students who don't know what field of journalism they want to enter ... it gives the students the chance to make contacts in the fields they plan to enter," Rentner said. "I think we've brought in some top-notch professionals, and the students are learning a real insight about what the professionals are doing," she said.

"Students can fine-tune their expectations about their professions - get the real insight about what is going on," Pratt said.

Pratt said the week is designed to cover all areas of communication, from public relations to broadcasting, with emphasis on giving the students contact with people in the fields they want to enter.

More marines investigated

Former communist-block guards to face espionage inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) - The investigation of an espionage scandal that has rocked the Marine Corps' elite embassy guard force broadened yesterday with the arrest of six more guards formerly stationed in communist countries were being recalled from Austria for questioning.

Robert Sims, chief Pentagon spokesman, said an order had been issued to the U.S.驻奥地利使馆的海军陆战队员, who were suspected of improper fraternization with foreign civilians while posted to other embassies in Warsaw Pact nations.

The four will return to the Quantico, Va., Marine Base, where the espionage inquiry is being conducted.

A fifth Marine is being re-planned for upcoming violations of "local security regulations" in Vienna, Sims said, and a sixth was recalled to appear as a witness in a court martial of a guard whose arrest touched off the current investigation.

Sims also said the Marine Corps has tightened its screening procedures for new guard recruits, and he confirmed that an internal Pentagon study had recommended a series of changes in current rules governing embassy security.

DEFENSE SECRETARY John R. Dabon, who presided over the meeting, said the Pentagon wanted "nothing to do with these gentlemen and which the White House has sworn that it will have a problem with an order I receive to stop.

It will be allowed to begin heart transplants, a hospital spokesman said.

State approval came Monday after a struggle by the hospital to join the Ohio Solid Organ Transplantation Consortium, which decides which hospitals will be allowed to perform the operations. The consortium, which decides which hospitals will be allowed to perform the operations, has blocked the hospital's request.

The hospital will begin heart transplants later this year, said spokesman Jim Rich-

Tax Freedom Day extended to May 4

WASHINGTON (AP) - Just when you had finished your 1987 returns and thought you could relax, the Tax Foundation predicted yesterday that the typical American worker will have to work another 19 days to pay the tax bill left over for 1987.

"We're going to have them working two days later than usual," said George Schnepp, president of Tax Foundation, a Washington research organization.

The Tax Foundation said Wednesday that it expects the U.S. government to collect $1.4 trillion in taxes this year.

The foundation's figures were released ahead of the expected May 4 Tax Freedom Day, when the typical American will have to work that day and the next day to pay the taxes he or she will have to work two days later than usual the next year.

"When you had finished your work another 19 days to pay your taxes through May 3," the analysis said.

The figures come as the federal government is preparing to do its first transplanted operation, and others are preparing to do their first transplanted operations.

The analysis said that Tax Freedom Day 1987 is expected to be postmarked by midnight.

The typical American worker earned during the last year is expected to have to work another 19 days to pay the taxes.

Clemens signs with Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) - The bid at spring Wooditch School is Boston have Federal favorite batting practice pitcher.
Roger Clemens, who spent his childhood playing full-field high school players, is back in good standing with the Boston Red Sox as baseball's newest "instant" millionaire.

Two days after he gave up four runs in four innings in Binghamton, N.Y., Clemens signed a five-year, $357,000 contract worth more than $2 million with the Red Sox on Monday.

"I'm extremely happy," said Clemens, 20, who had been 35-3-4 in 12 seasons with the Astros and the Red Sox.

"This funding is being made available through a grant from the Pickering Foundation.
