Investigation is warranted

Public officials' ethics have been questioned in Congress in the past few years — perhaps no one's more so than John Tower. While cases where the investigation makes a farce of the person's private life — as in Tower's situation — are not supported by The News. However, when public people perform wrongful acts, their private actions can put in jeopardy their public positions, they should be scrutinized in the public's eye. In the case of Jim Wright, Speaker of the House of Representatives, his alleged rule infractions are by no means small.

During the Ethics Committee investigation, it was found that Wright has three choices, just as Tower.

The other was the alleged bulk selling of his book, "Rip, Rodeo," which is similar to the one you are researching. If I was a professor looking for tenure I would not want to be involved in an investigation that will yield a poor solution to the problem of the problem. If I was a professor, I would want to continue to teach and learn. If I was a professor, I would not want to be involved in an investigation that will yield a poor solution to the problem. If I was a professor, I would not want to be involved in an investigation that will yield a poor solution to the problem.

Non-smokers are a majority

In response to Rob Wagner's letter in The News, "Non-smokers are a minority," I would like to submit the following points:

1. I have several reasons for believing this. When I walked in, Not only is there a moralizing tone, but the very real trauma of AIDS hit home for the reader. I have but two wishes for Rob Wagner: that he or she take this de-

2. The fact is that non-smokers are the majority. They are the ones who suffer from the health risks of secondhand smoke. It is not fair to burden them with the health risks of secondhand smoke when they have done nothing to cause it.

3. Non-smokers are not irresponsible. They are not outdoors where others can smoke. They are not indoors where others can smoke. They are not in a dangerous area where utmost care is needed to prevent injury. They are not in a dangerous area where utmost care is needed to prevent injury. Undergraduate Student Government's failure to reappoint the World Student Association to one of the several organizational seats available on the USG board next fall will not go unopposed by WSA members.

During an emergency meeting called Tuesday night by 23 members of WSA, a charge of action was brought against USG's decision.

The international Student Association, the executive director of the ISA said, "We would like further clarification as to why the remaining board deys WSA is a seat on the USG board." According to Kevin Coughlin, USG president, the international committees evaluates each organization on their constituency, size and goals.

"One of the reasons that they are a great group," Coughlin said, "these are a lot of great groups on-campus which deserve a chance on USG alone.

Hicks said although USG's reasoning for not reappo"
Stop sexual violence. There is a difference between being a victim of an unwanted pregnancy and being a victim of sexual violence. Some women choose to carry the pregnancy to term, while others choose to terminate it. However, not all women have the same options when it comes to abortion. If you are considering abortion, it is important to choose the treatment that is best for you and that you are comfortable with. It is also important to know about the options available to you and to seek support from trusted sources. The most important thing to remember is that you are in charge of your own body and your own decisions.

University students concerned about financing their college education have the help of the Financial Aid and Student Employment Office, said reporter Laura Smith.

Some of the world's greatest creations required long years to formulate. This idea could be in the minds of two University students who recently released work in the multi-volume, Hand-Book of North American Indians.

In 1954, Michael Marsden and Jack Nachbar, members of popular college group asked by the Smithsonian Institution to write a chapter for the handbook dealing with American Indian stereotypes, were anxious to see their work in print so they could sell it in the future.

Now, in the meantime, they used the material for the Handbook's chap-ter that deals with the North American Indians.

The information they had gathered provides University students with more than enough of their own personal needs. After completing the chapter, Nachbar and Marsden found themselves waiting to see their work published — a wait which lasted 13 years.

In that early stage of their career, they were able to see their work in print as they could not sell it in any other way.

"When the revision (made to the Handbook) was released in the handbook, it was decided to include the material for the Handbook's chap-ter dealing with the North American Indians," Nachbar said.

"The information they had gathered presents a complex picture of American Indian stereotypes in films," Nachbar said.

"Yes, there were certain stereotypes of native Americans," Nachbar said, "but most of these existed before the movies were made."

However, he said that a sizable number of movies have portrayed native Americans as heroes.

"When you are preparing to release these multi-media works they tend to take a long time," Nachbar said. "The American Film Institute adds to their length this year." Prof's film featured at art celebration

by Laura Smith

A University professor's film will be featured as part of a literary festival this weekend at the University Club on the University campus in late April.

Larry Smith, professor of English at Firelands College, will present the video production "Patchen: A Poet's Life," in the four-day festival in the Arts and Sciences Building.

Patchen, who died in 1972, is well known as a poet and as a visual artist. His artwork will be exhibited in Warren at the Trumbull Art Gal-"y.

The film documents Patchen's life and death, especially his creative, socially-aware art, Smith said.

Smith himself is a student of Patchen, as he is an art professor at the University Club.

"The video was created with Adobe Illustrator/Windows, and PageMaker," Smith said. "This was a copyright of our university as the comprehensive resource needed privileges to use," Nachbar said.

Eric Goody, freshman pre-physical therapy major, left, was named student of the year Friday afternoon. His roommate Birg, better known as "Big," right, accepted the award and talked about the importance of his friend's film "Patchen: A Poet's Life." Goody explained that the film was "an artistic representation created to show as accurately as possible the real Patchen," and that the film was "about his life and the way he influenced others." Goody also noted that the film "was paid to the subject as now." The idea that a chapter for the handbook dealing with the North American Indians could be in the minds of two University students concerned with the availability of the film. Parents Alumni Club is re-ponsible for creating the Scholarship Search, which began several weeks ago. Three $5,000 grants, said Linda Ault, assistant director of development at the Alumni center.

"The parents could choose any project they wished with the stipulation that all University students could use the project that was selected," she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher food and energy costs boosted consumer prices 0.3 percent in March and resulted in a 6.1 percent annual increase. It was the largest quartely advance in two years, the government said Tuesday.

Last month's gain in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was fresh evidence that inflation continues to run above the 4.4 percent rate registered in both 1987 and 1988. Analysts said the bad news isn't over yet.

Financier accused of aiding Marcoses steal home wealth

by Lawrence Wolfson

BERNE, Switzerland — Adnan Khashoggi, the flamboyant Saudi financier once reputed to be the world's wealthiest man, was arrested by police at an elegant Bern hotel on charges he helped Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos hide $3.5 billion in assets. The jet-setting arms merchant, allegedly the man who brokered a $100 million sale of Cruise missiles to Iran in exchange for weapons for U.S. forces, was arrested for the fourth time in a month.

Khashoggi, 54, posed as owner of a chain of hotels in New York and London to get his passport renewed, U.S. Embassy officials said. The businessman is on a $300 million list of Iraq's most wanted fugitives, which includes Saddam Hussein.

Khashoggi's arrest cited four buildings in Manhattan and a collection of busts, bronzes and vases valued at an estimated $20 million to $30 million.

Khashoggi, who runs a shipping company, has been under investigation by U.S. law enforcement agencies for months. A warrant for his arrest was issued by the International Monetary Fund in 1986 for his involvement in a $100 million export deal. He also faces criminal charges in the United States for racketeering and mail fraud.

In addition, Khashoggi is wanted by France and Spain for his role in a $150 million arms deal with Iran. He has also been implicated in the Panama Papers case.

Falcons split with Flashes

The baseball team continued to have difficulties with Mid-American Conference opponents as it split a two-game series at Toledo on Sunday. Toledo, 729-5191 Collect

The Falcons, led overall, dropped their fifth consecutive MAC game with a 4-1 loss in the first game before recovering to capture a 5-3 victory in the second game of the doubleheader. The twinbill moved BG's MAC record to 2-6.

The Falcons' win in the second game of the series against the Golden Flashes was the team's first victory in its five-game series against MAC opponents. The Falcons had a MAC game with a 6-5 loss in the second game of a two-game series at Michigan for four MAC contests against non-conference foe Wayne State at Warren Field at 7 p.m. before hosting Eastern Michigan this weekend in a two-game contest Friday and Saturday.

Kent was paced early by Pat Rollins who launched a three-run homer off of Caminero in the fourth in addition to a single. Reams and Matt Rundles added two singles apiece. Rundles also scored the run.

Falcons starter Brian Kroll limited the Flashes to six hits while striking out 10 Falcon batters before being relieved by John Lezima in the seventh inning. The Falcons scored three runs in the first inning led to three unearned Falcon runs. Outfielder Chad Davis reached base on an error by the Golden Flashes in the first inning. He advanced to second base on an error by the Golden Flashes and third on a ground out by Steve Wolter.

The seventh inning scored marked the fourth time in the last six contests BG has dropped a game in the final inning.

Freshman right-hander Greg Shar, who relieved sophomore Derek Cunnigham in the sixth, took the loss to drop his record to 1-1.

Golden Flashes starter Kevin Holmton allowed six scattered hits while striking out 12 Falcon batters before being relieved by John Chilton in the seventh inning.
